

CORN AND FRUIT MARKETS

The markets, as usual on Monday, were devoid of special interest, and while there was considerable business with the country, local trade was light. The season for California strawberries is at an end, and the only crops yesterday were of Oregon stock. Supplies were not heavy enough to affect prices, and the best stock still sold at 10c and 12c per pound, although the latter price is generally shaded. The only change of importance in groceries yesterday was a 50c decline in Arbuckle coffee. The other brands of packages coffee have not followed suit, but will undoubtedly do so. Sugar is in excellent demand, there being a marked increase in the quantities sold since June 1, as compared with a month earlier. In produce, there is still considerable strength in butter and eggs, and strictly first-class candied stock is selling at 15c. Pork and veal failed to show any advance on the weakness of last week, and both are a trifle unsteady at quotations. Potatoes are weak for old stock, and it is expected that the receipt of new potatoes from the steamers late last evening will sell at a shade under the prices at which the last previous consignment was sold. There was no advance noted in prices.

PORTLAND MARKETS.

Grain, Flour, Etc.
The local wheat market was dull yesterday in sympathy with other markets, and no new transactions are reported. As the bulk of the business recently handled here has been for the export to the African continent, dealers have frequently kept well above European values whenever they were in the market. In the absence of any transactions of importance, the quotations are for the most part nominal. The 60c is still obtainable for Walla Walla. Freight is dull and inactive, with no new transactions reported. The demand for South African Government apparently being satisfied for the present, and there being but little demand locally.
