A similar outbreak occurred at Padua.

DEWET IN CAPE TOWN.

Upsets Preparations Made for His Reception.

CAPE TOWN, July 28 .- General Dewet provel that he could evade friends as successfully as he did enemies, by arriving here unexpectedly this afternoon, up-setting all the elaborate preparations prepared for his reception. He strolled through the streets, casually nodding to acquaintances and occasionally to a former opponent. Arrangements were ouickmade by Afrikanders to entertain the famous leader tonight at a semiprivate dinner, tickets fir which already stand at 5 guineas ($26 25) premium. striking contrast to Dewet's return was the scene Sunday, when General Botha and General Delarey attended church. The building was packed, mainly with women, and the service was scarcely concluded when their Cape Town admirers stormed the pew in which the Gen-erals sat. With difficulty they retreated to the vestry. The congregation followed, and Generals Botha and Delarey were lifted to the vestry table. The pastor of the church warmly remonstrated, where-

COLONIAL FEDERATION.

Speeches by Visiting Premiers at Glasgow.

GLASGOW, July 28 .- Premier Seddon, of New Zealand, in a speech here today, said the Colonies had already proved that they love the motherland by sending their sons fight in South Africa. They wished to go further and give the mother country trade preference over other nations, but too much attention was paid to what continental nations might think. What the colonies and Great Britain should do was to join in common cause to meet American competition. Should this be done the result need not be feared, said Mr. Seddon, because the British workmen and manufacturers were unequaled in the whole world.

George W. Ross, Premier of Ontario, declared in a speech that the war in South Africa was prolonged to the extent that it had been because there had been so few colonial troops in the field.

down no matters of opinion, but only mat-ters of fact. This is to give the pupils practice in estimating the value of books for library for library purposes, taking account of the points that the librarian should be informed upon before buying. I can see in this the germ of something greater, a central bureau, where competent persons will prepare estimates of books to be sent out to librarians. "It is manifestly impossible for the librarian to read all the books that are published. Different employes about the llbrary may read them, but the result is haphamard. And yet every book should be read from beginning to end before it is placed on the shelves. A librarian may glance it hastily through, or read several chapters carefully, and pronounce the book suitable, when, as a matter of fact, he has missed something that is very objectionable indeed. This brings one to the first point, which should be covered in the estimate of the book. The appraiser should state whether or not there are any scenes, any features, discussions or lan-guage in the book which render it unfit for the shelves of a public library. If there are the book must be excluded even though, from a literary point of view, the book may be a great one, and ough it may appeal to people of cultivated tastes and high character. But in a public library there must be nothing which would provoke criticism as unsuitable for young folk. "A very important point for the ap-praiser to pass upon would be the personality of the author as to fitness and previous preparation for his work. If there is a new book on volcances we want to tion from volcanoes or from the encyclo-pedia.- If personal investigations have made him an authority on the subject, we would buy the book, even though it were badly written, and otherwise a poo specimen of a book. Of course, this would apply generally to books other than nov els. Still, there might be a novel which would not amount to much as a story, but would present delightful pictures of life in Japan, or India, for instance, If we know the author had lived in those coun tries and was informed upon those sub-jects, it would render the book valuable for that reason alone. "As to style, that is largely a matter of opinion, and as such would not be a proper subject for appraisement. But in the writer were guilty of grammatical errors, or equally flagrant sins, that would "Novels should be classified in the ap-

"Novels should be classified in the ap-praisement as religious, sociological, his-torical, and so on. If there were a par-ticular demand for stories on the rela-tion of labor and capital, for instance, we might buy a new one, even if it were not so very well written. The interest of the matter to the reading public would compensate for the lack of style.

"This plan would save librarians a lot of uncertainty and labor, and occasional mistakes. The question then would be re-duced to one of literary values. And as to that, i don't think any hard fast rules can be made. As to the exclusion of a new book for three years after its publication, that would have deprived the libraries of three years' reading of 'David Harum' or 'When Knighthood Wag in Flower.' And, while those books have lived three years, their final position in

It can't be done by rule. There are certain authors whom we know it is safe to buy without reading. Everything written by Mr. Howells, Mr. James, Mr. Cable and other authors who have demonstrat-on that honorable list. Over at the Brooklyn library they have made a rule not to buy the first book of any author intil the expiration of a year. I wouldn't do that. I do not believe any ironclad rule can be profitably made with relation to style. Each book must have its in-dividual judgment. But the other points I have mentioned could be profitably ap-praised. The points the librarian wants to know, about a new book are either not covered, at all in the book reviews, or he has to wade through columns to get them.
