FINE DAY AT BATHS

Boys by the Hundreds Splash in the Cool Water.

GIRLS, MEN AND WOMEN, TOO

Pool Is Filled With Youngsters Playing All Kinds of Pranks—2500 Persons Enjoy Plunge Under a Blistering Sun.

Big boys and little boys, nice boys and good boys, redheaded boys and towheaded boys—boys, boys, boys—hundreds and hundreds of them, were at the public swimming baths yesterday.

Oh, my! wasn't the water good!

The boys plashed and splashed and paddled about and the blistering sun never phased them. Early in the afternoon there wasn't 18 inches between the bobbing heads. Were arms and backs burned by the sun? Why, yes, of course; but that didn't bother the boys a bit.

Two thousand boys is Superintendent Murray's estimate of the number of them. In the morning the number was 500; in the afternoon 1500. In the afternoon there were 200 girl and women bathers, and in the evening the attendance was about 200 men. The total number of bathers yesterday was about 2500.

"Are there any bad boys here?" responded Mr. Murray.

"Yes, sometimes; but we soon get next to them, and before we are done with them they are as docile as any. See that big boy over there? Had to put him out yesterday; he refused to obey one of the rules. See here, young fellow!" addressing him, "spit outside, not in the pool."

The boy obeyed without any opposition whatever.

"I don't monkey with the boys when they break the rules, and they know it. If I didn't boss this business they'd boss it and me, too, and drive me out of it."

"See here, you! Give that to me. Now wouldn't that jar you?" holding up a clay pipe. "They bring in all kinds of things. You'd be amazed at the variety. This pipe would break and cut their feet. If I knew who threw that ribbon into the pool, I'd make him get dressed."

Just then a small boy came up whimpering with a splinter in his toe.

"Splinter, my boy? Go to the office. Mrs. Murray will fix it."

"Yes," went on Mr. Murray, "we have a good many splinters."

"What's that, my boy?" A lad complained that somebody had stolen a knife and a dollar from his clothes.

"Why didn't you get a locker? It costs only 5 cents."

"That's the way with some of them. They think they can save 5 cents by bringing their own suits and using the free dressing-room. But sometimes they lose more than they save. One boy lost a gold watch the other day, and—"

"Say, you boys, go off and swim. Don't crowd around here as if you never saw a gentleman before. Move off. You're getting the man all wet. Get a move on."

The boys cleared away without a look or a single voice of disrespect.

"Obey me, do they? Well, I rather guess they do. When the baths started up, some of the boys tried to be smart, but I took all that out of them in short order. A man has to know his business at this job. He has to know boys, too. If he wasn't full of sympathy and tact, he'd be in heaps of trouble, that's all. It's a high art to manage a horde of boys like this, if I do say it myself."

It certainly looked that way. Deference was paid to him on every side. So practiced was the eye of the superintendent that he could tell by a single glance the lad who meditated or contemplated guilt. They knew when they were doing wrong as well as did he.

"No running there," he yelled. Then, to the reporter:

"They might slip on the wet places and get hurt."

"You big boy, duck a fellow your size, won't you? Now let him go."

Then to another: "Boy, go pick up that what you threw. This is no baseball field."

The boy hesitated. "Go on, I tell you," and the boy went.

"Say, Mr. Murray, hold this for me, please?" piped a small voice, and a lad held up a juvenile treasure.

"All right. Now, don't go into that deep water until you swim better. Hello, what's this? Got some tar on you? Why, there's no tar around here. Boy took hold of you, you say? Well, go to Mrs. Murray. She'll take it off."

"What is it, little man? You want to learn to swim? Come on." In a short time the boy had actually made progress toward keeping himself afloat.

"It all depends," continued the superintendent, when the lad had grown tired, "on the boy, how soon he learns to swim. There's one who, one week ago, couldn't swim a stroke. See him now—perfectly at home in the water. Watch him dive. Swims on his back, on his side, any way he wishes.

"There's a boy with only half of a leg. Came here a week ago. Couldn't swim any at all. Best swimmer in the pool, you say? Well, he's equal to any."

It was now 10 minutes past 3 o'clock, and at 3:30 the baths were to open to girls. The bell gave its warning sound.

"All out!" shouted Mr. Murray. All the boys scampered nimbly for their dressing-rooms, showing the influence the commander wielded over them. But one lone urchin wouldn't come out. Mr. Murray had his shoes and coat on, and the boy thought himself secure.

"Get out and dress."

"What's that?" was the derisive answer.

"I'll show you what," and that instant in plunged Mr. Murray after the culprit. Down they went together, and stayed under until the boy's breath was almost spent, for he came up spouting like a whale.

"Now get out." And the boy got out immediately.

"Hurry; get on your clothes."

Then Mr. Murray started in to wash off the platforms, so that everything would be neat and clean for the girls. He worked so fast that within 15 minutes all was done. All the boys were out save two or three. Two of them poked their heads out of their dressing-rooms appealingly.

"Can't dress yourselves? What's the matter?"

The superintendent soon found out. The boys were so young that they actually didn't know how to get their clothes on. So Mr. Murray did for them what was mamma's duty.

By this time the girls outside were very impatient. "We know it's hot, but we're doing the best we can for you," declared Mrs. Murray. Then the doors were opened. About 150 women and girls pressed forward.

"The girls give lots more trouble than the boys," said Mr. Murray. "Sounds funny, don't it? But it's so. We have a hard time managing them. What's the reason, you ask? Well, they say that woman was created to make trouble, and that's all I know about it. It's harder to teach them to swim, too. They are afraid, and cling to the outside of the pool, and get excited when their heads go under. But this is not always the case, for some girls take to swimming as readily as boys.

"See that girl diving? Water is 10 feet deep there. She couldn't swim a stroke a week ago."

HOT SPELL STAYS TWO DAYS.

Highest Temperature Reached Since August 5, 1898.

Two days in succession, both with a higher maximum temperature than has occurred since August 5, 1898, were imposed upon the Portland people yesterday and the day before. The month of August already has given a more continued hot spell than has occurred since the memorable year of 1891, when the thermometer reached 102 degrees in the shade. The maximum temperature yesterday was the same as the day before, 96, but a comparison of the hourly temperatures shows that yesterday was if anything the hotter of the tow, as there were several hours in succession when the temperature was above 90, which was considered a very high maximum but a few days ago.

The temperature all over the state was about the same as it was Wednesday, except that it was a trifle cooler in the southwestern part of the state, and at Astoria 14 degrees cooler, owing to a change of the wind bringing the breeze from the ocean. The indications are, however, that the hot spell will be broken today or tomorrow, and more moderate weather may soon be expected. Forecast Official Beals has sighted a cool spell coming, but it is coming in a very uncertain way. He compares it to a train running wild, and says that it will be impossible for him to tell just how soon it will be here, but he feels sure that it will make its presence felt within a few days.

Wednesday was borne by the people in an admirable way, as they thought that, like some of the other hot days, it would be followed by a cool one, and that they had only to be patient and wait for relief. When, however, early this morning the thermometer began to reach a higher scale than it had at the same time the day before, all the prophets were sure that they were in for it again, and all patience was lost. Men who had insisted on clinging to cool-weather garb were forced to admit that they had adopted the wrong policy, and could be seen passing down the street, first with their coats off, later with their vests also, and a little later with their collars and ties hanging over their arms.

The table of hourly temperatures is as follows:

5 A. M.	65	12 M.	89
6 A. M.	65	1 P. M.	92
7 A. M.	67	2 P. M.	95
8 A. M.	70	3 P. M.	95
9 A. M.	74	4 P. M.	96
10 A. M.	83	5 P. M.	96
11 A. M.	87	6 P. M.	94

BOYS CAUGHT IN SWIMMING.

Nine Youngsters Arrested for Seeking Relief in Cool River.

Nine boys were caught swimming in the river yesterday by Policeman Welch below the Steel bridge, West Side, and on being arrested gave their names and addresses as follows: Walter Degroat, 472 Overton street; Joseph Hurley, 271 North Twelfth street; Patrick Keegan, 120 North Fifteenth street; William Treedel, 82 North Ninth street; William and Harry Thomas, 166 North Twelfth street; George Ray, 566 Morrison street; Harry Beck, 462 Davis street. The culprits were taken in the patrol wagon to the police station, but were not locked up.

"Don't you boys know that it is unlawful for you to bathe in the river? What made you do it?" asked Police Captain Moore.

One little boy observed in a scared whisper that the weather was very warm.

"Why did you not go to the public bath, then?" asked the captain.

"Don't know sir," said a chorus of treble voices. Finally the boys were reprimanded and released on an understanding that they would not bathe in the river again.

BOY FALLS UNDER TRAIN

Frank Bunch Is Severely Injured While Dropping Off a Freight.

THE DALLES, Or., Aug. 7.—(Special.)—Frank Bunch, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Bunch, of this city, was shockingly injured on the tracks of the O. R. & N. Co., on Front street, at an early hour this morning, while attempting to drop off from a moving freight train, which he had jumped onto a block below. Missing his footing as he alighted, the lad rolled under the trucks, his right leg being severed about the knee and the left leg badly injured. He was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, at Portland, this morning. Young Bunch has been a messenger boy for the Western Union office in this city, and was an active, bright employe. He is 14 years of age.

At St. Vincent's Hospital the boy's right leg was amputated near the hip, and the dislocation of the other was reduced. His chances for recovery are good.

NEW AND RETIRING PASTORS OF THIRD PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Rev. Andrew J. Montgomery, of Oregon City, who has received a call.

Rev. Robert McLean, who will leave for Porto Rico.

Rev. Robert McLean, whose resignation as pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, East Side, was accepted by the congregational meeting last night, will leave Portland Monday, August 18, to enter on his duties as superintendent of missions in Porto Rico, to which position he was appointed by the Presbyterian Mission Board. His successor will be Rev. Andrew J. Montgomery, of Oregon City, to whom a call was extended last night.

Mr. McLean is familiar with the Spanish language and customs, and for this reason was regarded as especially fitted for the field he is about to enter. He will sail from New York, September 6, so as to arrive in Porto Rico in time to take part in a church dedication. He will have charge of the management of the Presbyterian missions and the educational interests in the island. Mr. McLean began his career as a missionary in Chile when a young man fresh from college, where he remained six years, when he returned to America. Being in failing health, he spent several years on a farm in Klamath County. At Klamath Falls he established a church. He was elected to the Legislature from this county, and was also a Presidential Elector for Benjamin Harrison. Called to Grant's Pass, he established a large and flourishing church at that place, which he served acceptably for 11 years.

Three and a half years ago he accepted a call to the Third Presbyterian Church, East Side, then occupying a small building on East Ninth and East Oak streets. So successful was he in his work here that a fine church building, costing $8000, will be dedicated next Sunday on a quarter block, East Thirteenth and East Pine streets, free of debt.

Rev. Andrew J. Montgomery, who received a call, last night, from the congregational meeting, is pastor of the Oregon City Presbyterian Church. It is considered probable that he will accept the call to the Portland church. He is a Pennsylvanian, having been born in Washington County, in 1864. He is a graduate of Washington and Jefferson College, class of 1897. The junior and middle years of his theological course were spent at the Western Theological Seminary, Alleghany, Pa. He completed his course at Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, in 1890. After spending some months in religious journalism he accepted a call to the Presbyterian Church at Fullerton, Neb., where he remained until 1894. From that place he came to Oregon City, and has been the pastor there up to the present. From 1899 to 1901, Mr. Montgomery was president of the Oregon State Christian Endeavor Union.

CHURCH CALLS A PASTOR

A. J. MONTGOMERY TO BE THIRD PRESBYTERIAN MINISTER.

Oregon City Man Chosen to Fill Vacancy Caused by Resignation of Rev. Robert McLean.

At a well-attended congregational meeting of the members of the Third Presbyterian Church, East Side, held in that church last night, the resignation of Rev. Robert McLean, the pastor, was received and accepted, and a unanimous call was extended to Rev. Robert Andrew J. Montgomery, of the Oregon City Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Mr. McLean opened the meeting with devotional exercises, after which he made a brief statement of the work that had been accomplished by the Third Church since he came three and a half years ago. He then submitted his resignation in order to permit him to go Porto Rico to be superintendent of Presbyterian missions under the direction of the Home Mission Board. Mr. McLean then invited Rev. William Travis to moderate the meeting, and left the meeting to act as it saw proper.

Mr. Travis said the congregational meeting was to act on the resignation of Mr. McLean, and to invite another pastor to take up the work. He spoke of the importance of the action to be taken. It was then moved and carried that the resignation of Mr. McLean be accepted. Before it was put a number of short talks were made expressive of the high regard the church entertained for the retiring pastor. Walter Johnson read resolutions commending Mr. McLean's work since he became pastor of the Third Church. The resolutions were adopted unanimously as an expression of the sentiment of the members. It was ordered that a copy of the resolutions be forwarded to the Portland Presbytery, the family of Mr. McLean and that one be filed with the records of the church.

The question of calling another pastor then came up. Wilson Beneñel spoke of the need of prompt action in securing a man to take up the work left by the retiring pastor. He moved that a call be extended Rev. Andrew J. Montgomery, of Oregon City. Remarks were made by several others, all heartily indorsing the motion. Mr. Travis told what he knew of Mr. Montgomery's work in Oregon, and Rev. W. S. Holt made a telling address, commending the action to call Mr. Montgomery, whom he said was one of the most faithful and ablest Presbyterians in the state, and remarked that the Third Church could not possibly make a mistake in extending a call to Mr. Montgomery. The motion was carried unanimously.

The session was instructed to ask the presbytery to dissolve the pastoral relations of the church with Mr. McLean, and all the officers were instructed to sign the call to Mr. Montgomery.

WANDERED AWAY.

Young Man Who Failed to Get Through Theological Course.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Wilberforce Ogden, 21 years old, son of William Ogden, a prominent New York business man, has been missing from his father's home in Chatham, N. J., since Monday. Night and day parties of friends have searched the country for him, watching every road, dragging the Passaic River and near-by ponds and even fighting their way through the wilderness of the great swamp near Chatham.

Several months ago Ogden returned from a Vermont Theological Seminary, where he was studying for the ministry, broken in health. Brooding over his failure to finish the course of study developed melancholia. His condition improved, however, and Sunday night the nurse ventured to leave him alone. Next morning he was not to be found. During the night he partially dressed himself, emptied all his bottles of medicine and left the house.

From that time nothing was heard of him until a tramp brought the news that he had seen the boy asleep under a tree near Afton, six miles away, on Monday night. Later a milkman saw him on the Orange Mountains, where he disappeared in the underbrush.

Sultan's Sympathy for Jews.

VIENNA, Aug. 7.—Dr. Theodore Herzl, founder of the Zionist movement, and head of the Palestine Association, and Dr. Wolfson, president of the Jewish Colonial Trust, has returned here from Constantinople. They report that their conference with representatives of the Sultan with reference to the proposed settlement of Zionists in Palestine have been without result. In reply to Dr. Herzl's written statement on the subject the Sultan expressed sympathy with the Jews in their purposes and named certain concessions which he would grant. These, however, did not meet the requirements of the Zionists. Dr. Herzl says he still has hopes of being able to convince the Porte of the beneficial results which would result from the settlement of Jews in Palestine.

CUSTOM DUTY BUT ONCE.

New Ruling Touching Admission of Foreign Manufactures.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Secretary Shaw is making close and critical study of the practices of the Treasury Department along a number of lines, and is determined to institute reforms where justice or good business principles seem to require them.

He made an important ruling today relative to the re-admission to this country of articles of foreign production which had once been imported and duty paid thereon at the time of original importation. After careful consideration the secretary has decided that the privilege of free re-entry may be properly accorded to all articles of foreign manufacture or production under proper safeguards for the protection of the revenues, provided the articles so admitted shall not have been advanced in value or improved in condition while abroad. The articles should be registered with full description at the Custom-House on exportation and a certificate issued to the owner, and on their return they must be fully identified as the articles exported. The secretary has issued instructions to the Collector of Customs at New York in accordance with this decision.

Heretofore the department has held that no matter how many times an article of foreign manufacture was brought into this country it must pay duty each time.

AMARINTH REACHES PORT

NEW LUMBER VESSEL TO LOAD BIG CARGO FOR ORIENT.

U. S. Steamer Mohican Again on the Overdue List—Morgan Offers Ships to British Government.

The American barkentine Amarinth, one of the Pacific Export Lumber Company's chartered fleet, arrived in last evening, and will leave up for Portland today. She is one of the latest additions to the coast-built fleet of lumber-carriers, and has a capacity of about 1,500,000 feet of lumber. Vessels of this kind are so much more economically operated than the old style square-riggers that but few of the old-timers will be used in the lumber business from Pacific Coast ports. The Amarinth comes in ballast from Japan and was about 40 days coming across the Pacific. While this is rather slow time, it is somewhat better than some of the other ships have been doing recently, as this is the time of year when slow passages are the rule.

MORGAN'S OFFER ACCEPTED.

British Government Will Have a Claim on All His Ships.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Replying in the House of Commons today to a request of Lord Charles Beresford for assurance that no binding agreement would be concluded between the government and the special commission without the agreement being approved by Parliament, the Premier, A. J. Balfour, said:

"I do not think it possible to negotiate on this or any other subject if the proposed terms are to be publicly discussed before the government has agreed to them. The government, however, is most anxious to take the House into its confidence at the earliest possible moment."

Mr. Balfour's reply has particular interest, as Belfast dispatches today announce that the government accepted J. P. Morgan's offer to give the admiralty a claim on all the combine's ships. As evidence of acceptance, it is stated that the government has chartered the Corinthic, the first ship built for the combine, which has just been completed at the Harland-Wolf shipyards.

Inquiries made by the Associated Press show that the belief is general that J. P. Morgan's offer practically has been accepted by the government. The Belfast dispatch may slightly anticipate the technicalities required to close the agreement, or may not allow for changes inserted since the offer was originally made, but there appears to be little doubt that the spirit of the scheme is acceptable to the Cabinet. J. P. Morgan & Co., when asked concerning the agreement, made the same noncommittal answer as Premier Balfour.

MOHICAN OVERDUE AGAIN.

Ancient Training-Ship Is Out About Three Weeks From Honolulu.

The United States training-ship Mohican is now out about three weeks from Honolulu, for Bremerton, on Puget Sound, and unless she shows up within a few days will again be with the overdues, where she has a chronic habit of lodging.

The Mohican is manned by naval apprentices. She left San Francisco about nine months ago, and after a cruise down the Coast, sailed across the Pacific and called at several of the Japanese ports. About three months ago she started from Yokohama for Honolulu, and after she had been at sea for about six weeks and nothing had been heard of her some anxiety began to be felt for the old vessel and her crew. The news came from Dutch Harbor, away up in the Behring Sea, that the vessel had put in there short of coal and provisions. Adverse winds had driven her far out of her course. She took on what supplies she needed and could procure at the northern port, and, followed by breezes from the Arctic, she made the island harbor in fair time. She will probably have northerly winds to contend with on her way up to the Sound, and unless luck is with her she may again be short of supplies before she makes another port.

CAPTAIN PERRIAM RETURNS.

Master of Ship Nelson Will Engage in Business in Portland.

Captain Charles Perriam, formerly master of the British ship Nelson, which had such an exciting experience off the Columbia River last December, has returned to Portland to engage in business. He has joined forces with J. H. Roberts in wrecking, ship-lining and general marine work. The new firm will operate under the name of Roberts, Perriam & Co. Captain Perriam has had many years' experience in the shipping business and comes to the port well recommended by Shaw, Savill & Co., the big shipowning firm, for whom he sailed many years. Captain Perriam's experience has well equipped him for his new calling, and the new firm will be in a good position to assist in taking care of the rapidly increasing business of the port.

Record Not Beaten.

HAMBURG, Aug. 7.—According to the experts of the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd Steamship Lines, the Deutschland, of the Hamburg-American Line, still holds the record for the fastest trans-Atlantic trip. The experts of both companies signed a memorandum to this effect today, stating that the calculation of Captain Richter, of the Kronprinz Wilhelm, from which it appeared that the latter had beaten the Deutschland's time, was erroneous.

It was reported on June 9, on the arrival of the Kronprinz Wilhelm at Plymouth, that that vessel had arrived at that port after a passage of five days, 11 hours and 32 minutes, to Eddystone Light, at an average speed of 23.53 knots per hour, beating the Deutschland's record of 23.51 knots per hour, average speed.

Subsidy Scheme Conference.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The question of organizing an Australian-Canadian shipping combine for a service between Canada, England, Australia and South Africa, to compete with the American combine organized by J. P. Morgan, was again the subject of a prolonged conference today between the Australian Premiers and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and other Canadian Ministers. No definite conclusion appears to have been reached concerning the project.

Edmund Barton, Prime Minister of the Commonwealth of Australia, said this evening to a representative of the association with regard to the discussion today by the Colonial Premiers of a combination to oppose the American shipping combine:

"There are no developments in the question of organizing a steamship line between Australia, South Africa and Canada. The matter is still under discussion."

Jim Dumps was a most unfriendly man,
Who lived his life on a hermit plan.
He'd never stop for a friendly smile,
But trudged along in his moody style
Till "Force" one day was served to him—
Since then they call him "Sunny Jim."

"Force"

The Ready-to-Serve Cereal

a better builder than a vacation.

Sweet, crisp flakes of wheat and malt—eaten cold.

Doesn't Know When to Stop.

"I have lately been using 'Force' and find it the most palatable of any cereal food I have ever tried. The only trouble with it is that it is so delicious one never knows when to stop eating. ——, M.D., Dorchester, Mass."
