Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, pastor of the Central Church, and president of the Armour Institute of Technology, may accept one of the most important non-conformist pastorates in the City of Loudon. A formal call is said to await the Chicago preacher as soon as he shows a willingness to consider it. While he declined at first to talk of leaving his friends and the large field of work in Chicago, Dr. Gunsaulus states that the prospect becomes more siluring the longer he remains there. His great effort would be to redeem the British from the autocracy of church and class. Dr. Gunsaulus filled Dr. Parker's pulpit at the famous City Temple Sunday and won the congregation by a powerful sermon on "The Cardinal Points of Anglo-Saxon Civilization." Dr. Parker is advanced in years and is seeking rest, and the report is that the City Temple wishes to secure to the Presidents which have been any of the legislative programme upon which he has set his heart. Considering the vast importance of the guestion, and the prob-ability that it will soon become the cen-tral issue of American politics, the following statement, made by the gentleman re-ferred to after his return from Sagamore Hill, must be regarded as a most valuable contribution to the discussion of this

"It appeared from the discussion at the President's house," said this gentleman, "that what the President wants is a Fed-That what the Fresdom wants is a Fed-eral law which will compel corporations doing an interstate business to submit their books to the inspection of Govern-ment officers, or to make full reports therefrom as National banks are now re-quired to do. That is the publicity idea, He also wants the publicity idea, He also wants the publicity idea, straint of trade, monopoly, etc., more clearly defined. Very well. This is a commendable programme. But at the very outset the President was informed that restraint of trade cannot be defined any more satisfactorily than it is defined in the Sherman law. It is extremely doubt-ful if the power of Congress to regulate commerce between the states can be stretched farther or be made broader than in that statute. "President Roosevelt's attention was di-ected early in the conversation to the distinction which must be drawn between regulation of corporations and regulation of the commerce of corporations that is of an interstate character. Corporations are chartered by the states. Their entity is wholly within state lines and subject to the control of state laws. The mere fact that a corporation does business in other states does not subject the corpora-tion to the control of Congress; that part of its business which is interstate is sub-ject, under the Constitution, to regulation by Congress. But President Roosevelt's multiple account of the state of the st publicity programme required regulation of the corporation itself as to its business within the state wherein it is situated, as well as in other states. Such regulation you cannot get without amendment of the Constitution. 'It is as plain as if God himself had written the words upon the wall that the states will not surrender their right to control the corporations "It is worth while to remember," con-tinued the president, "that the economics of the packing business introduced dur-ing recent years, the use of by-products which formerly went to waste, amount to at least 5 per cent of the value of the raw material. Five per cent of $120,000,000 is $5,000,000." Yet Swift & Co. have re-tained less than half of that saving for their profits. The remainder score to which they have created or may create,' the President was told. Therefore, it is wholly useless to seek a way out by Con-stitutional amendment. Such an amend-ment may be proposed, but it will never be ratified.

"Then the President was told that in considering what may be done without a Constitutional amendment-and this seems their profits. The remainder goes to some one, either to the raisers of cat-tle, sheep and hogs or to the consumers to be the only road that it is worth while to try to travel-the decisions of the Su-preme Court in former cases must be taots who grows wheat which is almost sure to be sold in the market in another state in a foreign country is engaged in interstate commerce. Remember that it is the corporation itself you are trying to control when you aim at what we call publicity. How can Congress take a state corporation and compel it to open up its pooks to all competitors and to the public in general, as if it were a Federal corpo-ration like a National bank? Senator Hoar says Congress has the power to deny access to interstate commerce to any cor-poration which does not comply with certain regulations which Congress has pretain regulations which Congress has pre-scribed. Senator Spooner replies that if Congress can do this with a corporation it can do it with an individual. If we go into that sort of thing, where shall we stop? Where is the line to be drawn?

"President Roosevelt was told that as yet no one has been able to point out a way in which the desired regulation of state corporations can be secured by the Federal Government without an amendment to the Constitution. An amend-ment is held by everyone who has investi-gated the subject to be out of the quesgated the subject to be out of the ques-tion, since the states will not surrender their right. Then what is to be done, if anything? This suggestion was made during the conference, and I understand that it is to be the subject of most ear-next inquiry on the part of the Presi-dent's lawyer friends, to-wit, that, while it is impossible to regulate the corpora-tion itself, the conduct of the corpora-tion itself, the conduct of the corpora-tion itself. tion, the moment if enters into interstate commerce, comes directly within the Fed eral purview. For instance, the corpora tion cannot be compelled to submit all its books to the inspection of Federal agents, but it may be required to submit bills of lading, consignment sheets, prices, receipts, checks, etc., on all business that is of an interstate character. Or, in other words, the state corporation is no subject to Federal interference as a corporation. But its interstate conduct i subject to such interference.

"If these principles be admitted, and when they are laid down by two such lawyers as Spooner and Knox they carry great weight, it is obvious that in seeking what we call publicity of the corporation itself as to all its business we are likely to fail unless the Supreme Court can be won over to a new interpretation of the Constitution. And when it comes to a better law defining restmint of trade we
