AMUSEMENTS TONIGHT.

SHIELDS' PARK, 11TH AND WASHINGTON. Leonard and Leonard, Helen Lamer, vaudeville and music.

EXHIBITION GROUNDS, 22D AND BAYVIEW. "Hanging Bros." Circus.

DIDN'T KNOW HIS OWN HAT—A young man, who from his appearance, had brought his hat to town to see the circus, and had become bewildered by what he had seen, created much amusement in a downtown restaurant last evening. The young man and Mandy Ann were seated at a table near the rear of Reuben had placed his Sunday head-gear on a rack near the middle of the room. After scraping the bottom of every dish—for sightseeing all day had made them hungry—they started for the cash counter. Now the young man's troubles began. He had hung his hat on one of the half-dozen racks lining the wall, but he could not remember which one, and after gazing intently into the interior of 25 soft hats, he saw a young man in a black hat on one side of the room, he began on the opposite racks, and meanwhile every one had stopped eating to enjoy the hunt. Reuben had gone over nearly every soft hat in the room, when the young man came to the rescue. "I think you had a derby hat," said he. "Isn't this yours?" handing him one. "Joy! It is!" shouted Reuben, with joy. "Dumbly thought I had on my old slouch instead of this new, stiff thing." The pair hurried out, while those at the tables turned their faces the other way.

LAST GOSPEL.

Should any one ask Dr. Harry Lane why he is so brown and sunburned, he will reply that he has been a blackberrying. He acquired a love for wild blackberries in his youth and has never lost it. For years he has been longing to be turned loose just once more on a well-laden patch of those berries, which become scarcer year by year, but still maintain their original flavor, and which are not a berry can begin to equal. A few days ago he heard of a fine blackberry patch 40 miles from Portland, up the Sandy, and he at once set out on his expedition. He had gathered 150 quarts and the other almost as many, but there were still some left, and Dr. Lane and his party pushed in the field determined to secure at least 20 quarts, which they did, and were tanned to the color of berries beside, and so came home satisfied. The fact is, that no cultivated berry approaches in excellence of flavor the wild blackberry, the wild huckleberry, or many other wild berries.

TRAVEL PLANTS GROW WILD.

Two men and women who had been out in the suburbs Sunday morning, when the weather returned, displaying to a crowd at Third and Morrison streets several large tassel plants loaded with tassel burrs of very large size, which they had found growing alongside the road in the hills near the region. Very few who looked at the plants knew what they were, but one man said he knew, as he had seen fields of tassel in the hills near the hills near the region. Very few who looked at the plants knew what they were, but one man said he knew, as he had seen fields of tassel in the hills near the hills near the region.

STORING FUEL FOR WINTER.

Piles of wood of many kinds are becoming very numerous along the streets in many parts of the residential portion of the city. There are huge piles of cut wood, and some of the old-fashioned for cordwood, for long the standard fuel here, but oak or oak grub or hardwood of any kind is scarce. People are buying about where these wood piles are, and occasionally a pile which they do not know what to make of, and wonder where it came from. These piles are of round sticks about three feet in length and six to eight inches in diameter, which bear marks of iron, as if they had been turned in a machine, and have a bark on them, but are very white and clean, and free from knots. It has been ascertained that the wood is spruce or balsam generally, and the sticks are the cores of blocks which have been used for the great quantity of berry boxes. The wood looks well, but neither spruce nor balsam (cottonwood) is considered as good for fuel as red fir. The cores, however, serve to excite the curiosity of observers, as the piles of them are not very numerous.

LECTURE BY MRS. GALPIN.

Mrs. Kate Tupper Galpin will lecture tomorrow night at the Unitarian Church. Her subject will be "Some of Shakespeare's Heroines," and the lecture will be illustrated by readings from plays. Mrs. Galpin, who, under the name of Miss Kate Tupper, is well known to old Portlanders as a former teacher in the High School, has been conducting classes in Shakespeare at Los Angeles. In these classes the average attendance has exceeded 75. Through her efforts also the Shakespeare House was erected in that city as a memorial to the Bard of Avon. Mrs. Galpin is well known in club circles throughout California, and represented the state in the World's Congress of Women held at Chicago in 1893. Portland people who remember Mrs. Galpin's enthusiasm and gifts will not be surprised to learn that she has attained a national reputation as a student and speaker. She is always instructive and always entertaining.

DEATH OF MRS. SECAR.

Mrs. Rebecca Secar, of Kelso, Wash., who has been sick at the St. Vincent's Hospital since August 7, died last night. Her disease was of long standing, and her case has been regarded as hopeless for some time. Her husband is here, and will arrange for the funeral.

MRS. KATZ TUPPER GALPIN.

President emerita of the Shakespeare Club of Los Angeles, will lecture on "Some of Shakespeare's Heroines" with extended illustrated excerpts from the great dramatist, at the Chapel of Unitarian Church, Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock. Admission, 25 cents.

YOUNG WOMEN BLUFF CONDUCTOR.—A conductor on the Third-street line has some new ideas about the general capabilities of young women. Yesterday afternoon two young women got on the car at the Third and Morrison streets. The car was comfortably filled, and it was not till past Taylor street that the conductor asked them for their fares. They handed him two ancient transfers, and the conductor carefully explained to them that these transfers were a week old, and moreover were only good (when fresh) on the cable line. Then ensued a wordy war, which there were violent protestations on the part of the young women as to the recent date, goodness and so forth of the dilapidated transfers in the conductor's hand. It ended by the conductor stopping the car and requesting the women to alight. This they refused to do, and while the car stood still various remarks relative to the rudeness of the conductor could be heard from the other passengers. As if it were a sudden inspiration, one of the young women turned to the other with a sigh: "What shall we do?" she inquired, "when we haven't a cent between us?" The conductor growled out: "Why didn't you say so before?" and rang the bell to go ahead. As the car started, a fat man in the corner desisted from some mysterious exertions, withdrew a pudgy hand from his pocket and remarked, genially: "That was an awfully lucky thought of yours, just about the way your fare." The young ladies glared at him majestically, and there was an icy silence through the car until they alighted. As they swept their skirts off the platform, one was heard to say to the other: "What a vulgar man! Why, we can pay our own fare, I guess, if we want to." And the fat man threatened to report the conductor.

GOOD ROADS AT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.—James W. Abbott, who represents the roads division of the United States Department of Agriculture, has arranged for a meeting with the Chamber of Commerce this morning at 11 o'clock, at which his mission to Oregon will be explained and arrangements made for a good roads convention in Portland in October. Mr. Abbott would like to see a wide popular interest in the movement. He will be obliged to leave Portland tonight for duties at other places in the Northwest. Banker Albert, of Salem, telegraphed Mr. Abbott yesterday expressing great interest in the good roads work, and asking for a meeting in Salem, and from several other points have come evidences that people want improvement in their thoroughfares. But the time will be so limited that it will be impossible to hold meetings everywhere they are wanted, and for that reason it is desired to effect the largest opportunity for people to attend at the centers where the conventions will be arranged.

FATHER ADOLPHUS'S VISIT.—Rev. Father Adolphus, of the Benedictine Monastery at Mount Angel, who founded that institution about 30 years ago, and has for many years prior thereto, has been for the past 10 days preaching a retreat at Mount St. Joseph, the Sisters' home for the aged, near Mount Tabor. He was in the city Sunday evening, attending the lecture on woman at St. Lawrence church, and left for home yesterday morning. Father Adolphus is a powerful preacher, and one of the inmates of St. Joseph's Home states that his sermons there were the means of leading a Lutheran to embrace the true faith, and also to induce to return to the fold a lamb who had been wandering far away for many years. Things of this kind rejoice the reverend Father, and his friends greatly, but the opportunity for people to attend in the matter can only be surmised. His history is now only an old, old story, it is such a while gone by.

AH LING TRIES TO TALK MELICAN.—Ah Ling, the Chinese headquarter in the Municipal Court, yesterday, why he should not be charged with larceny in stealing a sledge hammer and an iron wedge from Peter Brown, but the inquiry was that Ah Ling insisted on speaking in Chinese. Both Municipal Judge Hogue and Deputy District Attorney Gatens shook their heads, and Mr. Gatens, who was trying to explain to the court, said: "Velly well," said Ah Ling, obligingly, and he started on a mixture of pigeon English, and began grotesque contortions with his head, hands and feet. It looked as if he were trying to strangle how wood was chopped. "Where do you live?" asked Mr. Gatens. "Where I ketch up hop," said Ah Ling, and then started to explain in Chinese. He was persuaded to explain in English, and the case was continued until today, in order to find a Chinese interpreter.

ROBBERS VISIT ELKS.—Robbers broke into the Elks' Central headquarters, Seventh and Stark streets, early yesterday morning and forced open a few desks and walked off with about $1 in money. The Elks' parade was passing Mrs. Faleto's house, six and a half blocks from the place, and a thief entered the place and stole $15 in money and a gold watch chain, which had been left in a bureau drawer. William Quimer, 26 Fifth street, also reported that a quantity of cloth had been stolen from his store.

JAMES HILL FINED AGAIN.—James Hill, an old offender, was again before Municipal Judge Hogue yesterday, charged with being drunk. "Guilty, sir," said Hill. "I'm afraid I'll be compelled to send you to the rock pile," remarked the Judge. "Sure, I can't make any money wur-kin' at the rock pile this winter," remarked Hill, in a surprised tone. He was fined $20, with the option of 10 days on the rock pile. He walked to his cell with the air of a man who feels that he is very much humiliated.

A GIRL'S PLUCK

Food That Cut Work in Half. The food that will enable a person to accomplish in one year the work laid out for two years is worth knowing about. Miss Annie Avery, a student in Lennox, Ont., writes: "I know I felt my ill health even more than I had been engaged in any other work, as the confinement of a school only increased my sickness and inability to study. 'Last year I was on the way to a general breakdown in health; I suffered from severe headaches, was becoming a confirmed dyspeptic, nervous system broken down, and my condition went on from bad to worse until I was unable to study or even go to school. 'My parents were very anxious about me, as medicine did not help, and, moreover, hearing about Grape-Nuts, obtained some, and I commenced to use it at once; I was very much surprised at the quick effect the food had on me. I began to get better, and as a result from its continued use I am no longer troubled with sick stomach and headaches, nor am I the nervous girl I was last year. I feel so well and steady that I am now engaged in an attempt to get my certificate with but one year's work, when at the very least two years are always allowed for it. I have gained in weight, and my responsiveness and now enjoy good physical and mental health."

NEW CASE OF SMALLPOX

CARELESS PHYSICIAN ALLOWS PATIENT TO WANDER ABOUT CITY. Quarantine Has Now Been Established at Orchard Home, and Case May Go to Pethouse.

The imperative necessity of the strictest sanitary precautions has again been illustrated, and the case shows that the physicians themselves are not in all cases as careful as they might be. Another case of smallpox has been found, and the way it was handled before the officials were notified was such that the disease was given every chance to spread. The case is now at Orchard Home, outside of the city limits, and cannot be brought to the pesthouse without special arrangements being made, and the people of that community are making a vigorous protest against the case being left as it is. Arrangements will probably be made today, however, for the removal of the patient to the pesthouse, and they will have no further ground for complaint.

The case was first reported by one of the practicing physicians of the city. Investigation showed that the young woman who has the smallpox had been working in the city and was feeling ill, and had consulted this physician. He saw at once that she had the smallpox. Instead of holding her in his office and sending for the health officers, he allowed her to return home, taking no precaution against the spreading of the disease. She went from his office to her home in Orchard Home, coming in contact with a large number of people and exposing them to the disease. As soon as Dr. Zan was notified of the case, he gave orders to have all of the places that a small quarantine might be established, and he started from the place that she was working, and traced her course from there to her home, and any place where the germs could have been left he used freely his disinfecting agents. There must have been a large number of the germs, however, that could not have been killed, and if any of them fall on fertile soil more germs will be reported in the near future. As soon as the City Physician found that the case was outside of the city limits, he was relieved from further responsibility in the matter, and notified the County Physician, Dr. Geary. The matter was taken up and a quarantine placed upon the house. There are no children in the family, and the people are regarded as respectable and honorable citizens, and he was considered sufficient to charge them with the danger of leaving the place, and no officer was placed to guard the house. Yesterday, a number of complaints were received.

"They are not at all careful," said one, "and the whole community is exposed to smallpox." "They have cats, chickens and dogs," said another, "and they are allowed to run about the neighborhood. We are afraid that the germs are carried by them and that the disease will spread." The doctors agree that it is possible for the germs to be carried by cats, dogs and Dr. Geary at once made arrangements for the county to pay the city for the use of the pesthouse, and today will ask the patient to go there. Force cannot be used against the patient, and he will also be able to demand that the dogs, cats and chickens be locked up, so that the disease cannot be carried in this way.

25 CENTS FOR HOPS.

James Winstanley Is Overed a Top-Notch Price. James Winstanley, secretary of the Oregon Hopgrowers' Association, was in Portland yesterday, and said he had been offered 25 cents a pound for all the hops this year. He thought there would be no difficulty about getting that price for good hops for he had received two offers of that figure from men who were ready to sign contracts. This is the highest bona fide offer for this year's crop yet reported. Mr. Winstanley also expressed the opinion that the Oregon yield would be materially greater than the estimates thus far put out. He said he would not be surprised to find the total yield of the state up to 100,000 tons of merchantable hops. He and M. L. Jones, ex-president of the Hopgrowers' Association, were here in the interest of the hopgrowers, who had been so impressed with the prospect of a shortage of pickers that they wanted to arrange terms for transportation of pickers farther than had been the custom heretofore. That is, they wished to have the pickers from Southern Oregon and other distant points come to the Willamette Valley for the picking season. This was urged on the ground that the crop is so large that it will be impossible to harvest it with the help usually available. General Freight and Passenger Agent Coman, of the Southern Pacific, said that his company would co-operate with the growers in any rate adjustment that should become necessary to save their crops. The Southern Pacific usually makes special rates for hop pickers between all points in the Willamette valley, but it is understood that if it shall be demonstrated that the local labor supply is not sufficient to save the crop special rates for longer distances will be put in force. Mr. Winstanley is in excellent condition. Mr. Winstanley says, and it is practically true of vermin wherever spraying has been done.

No Summer Bowel Troubles

Not for me! I'm safe from all of them and happy. The heat of summer causes organic matter everywhere to decay. All dead vegetable or animal matter rots if not kept on ice. All undigested food in the human body will ferment a hundred times as quickly in summer as in winter. Consequence—stomach, liver, bowels poisoned, thrown out of order—sour stomach, gases, colic, diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera, appendicitis, and in some regions yellow fever and the plague. Little children suffer terribly everywhere. What does good sense tell you to do? You can't keep the human body on ice, and the drinking of ice-cold drinks does more harm than good because it stops digestion and chills the internal organs. The proper thing is to keep all impure and unnecessary matter out of the body every day, not give it a chance to sour and decay in the stomach and bowels, and poison the blood and the whole body. In this way you will stop all hot, feverish conditions, and keep your
