KOSTAL EASY FOR THE MINERS

Webfoots Able to Get Home Only Twice on Nine Hits-Loss of This Game Pinces Portland in Fourth Place.

BUTTE, Aug. 21.—(Special.)—Pitcher Kostal was easy for the Buttes today and the Portland twirler was pounded all over the lot. Piggy Ward opened the bombardment for the Miners and it was continued for almost the entire nine innings. Seventeen hits and six sarned runs the state of the sport with summed up the total of the sport with the man on the slab,

The game was a slugging match throughout. Dowling coming in for his share. The Webfooters secured nine hits off his delivery, but they were scattering and counted for little, with the exception of the fourth inning, when Portland got her two runs on three hits and two bases on balls. Both teams indulged in pretty fielding, though Portland three costly errors. Two double plays made by the visitors drew forth applause. In the fourth inning Weed singled and so did Harris, the latter being forced out at second through a double play. Delsei hit to Ward, who threw to Kane, catching Harris at second. Kane then threw the ball to Huston and caught Deisel at first; Weed and Vigneux both scored on the following plays. Dowling gave two passes and Huston made an error, which, with Muller's single brought in two runs. In the fifth inning Portland made a pretty play in which two Butte men were caught. Ward was on third and Marshall put one to Kostal, who sent the ball back to Vigneux, catching Ward, while Sammy whipped to first, putting out Marshall. Score:

READVILLE, Mass., Aug. 21.—The Massachusetts stake race for 2:12 class trotters, the biggest prize of the Grand Circuit week at the Readville track, proved to be a commonplace affair this after-noon through Major Delmar's win in three straight heats. The gelding made a miserable showing, seldom having speed enough to get shoad of the second platoon. THE TRIBUNAL OF THE WORLD.

In next Sunday's Oregonian Dr. Edward Everett Hale will tell of the first formal session of the International Tribunal called to convene at the Hague September 1. CANAL AND CABLE. Their Important Relationship to Pacific Mastery.

New York Commercial Advertiser. "Two very recent facts, the President's decision to authorize Pacific cable construction by a private company and the decision to investigate forthwith the Panama Company's title with a view to be ginning the construction of an isthmian canal, lend a more sailent interest to large questions of Pacific trade than would otherwise characterize them. A number of writers, British and American, are trying to anticipate destiny in fixing the mastery of the Pacific; but for Americans the speedy construction of an isthmian canal and a Pacific cable may well ac entuate consideration of ultimate aspects of this question. Without these two aids Pacific trade possibilities for this country would have for the present an academic interest with which our manufacturers and merchants would not be content. the cable completed in little more than a year, and with the canal built a few years afterward, the balance of advantage in istance and convenient situation now enjoyed by Europe in relation to Oriental rade would be transferred to this country. It has been pointed out with much clearness and mastery of detail by Mr. O. P. Austin, chief of the Bureau of Statistic at Washington, that, in spite of the handicap of high railroad freights from the Eastern cities of this country to the Pacific Coast ports, the exports of the United States to the Orient have grown faster than those of any other nation, and that if we had direct all-water transportation, as Europe has, the growth of exports would be much faster. Our European rivals have an advantage of from 2000 to 5000 miles in distance. The great gain, bowever, for an American all-water route especially by way of the Panama Canal, rould be in cheapening the price of Amer-Austin shows in the current National Geographic Magazine, lake freights, as com-pared with those on the railroads, are only one-tenth as much, and, whatever the average rate of ocean freights as con pared with railway freights might be, it certainly is very much less. A single ocean vessel of modern capacity can be loaded with as much as 400 railway cars, or 20 trains of 20 cars each, can carry; so that the exporting nation with an allwater route, from factory door to Chinese shop in Shanghai or Hong Kong, or to a distributor in Mantla, has an immens advantage over the rival exporting intereats which have to use 2000 or 3000 miles of railway.

A glance at the map of the Pacific reveals an interesting race for cable mastery of that vast area, and at the same time indicates suggestively different directions in the lines of communication, Our proposed route is almost directly across the ocean the lines of communication, Our proposed route is almost directly across the ocean from San Francisco to Manila; the british route, for which the cable has already been early laid, as southwesterly from Vapcouver, B. C., to New Zealand and Australia. The former is a more direct connection with the Chinese markets, through Manila as a distributing center; the latter is, first, part of a scheme of naval and military defense, which contemplates independent imperial communications, and, second, a new facility for promotion of British trade in the Yang-taeking Valley. The rival routes will be connected by a cable from Hawaii and Fanning Island, and will insure, so far as cables can help, an early Anglo-Saxon mastery of the whole Pactile. As to which of the two will be most promotive of commerce remains to be proved, but Mr. Austin has a formidable list of American advantages in cost line, ports of call and in permanent currents of air and water that seem to turn the scale decidedly in our favor.

A factor that will compel increased American exports to Oriental and tropical markets is the growing demand for the raw materials of manufacture, which only Eastern markets can supply. We have started and permanently established lines of manufacture, such as silk, for which the raw material must come from abroad. Even in certain articles of consumption which can be produced here, the tendency is to import increasingly from abroad. These imports must be paid for in exports, and the foothold already gained in pursuance of that trade aim will be greatly strengthened when the canal and Pacific cable are completed. The actual construction of those great works will bring home these facts to the people with a concrete force thus far only dimly realized.

The trouble arises chiefly from great kinks in the line, which was so loosely laid that it went to the bot-tom in coils. The rest are new planes, by makers outside of our regular lines, and good uprights that were taken in part payment of higherpriced pianos and thoroughly overhauled before offering for sale,
