COMING ATTRACTIONS.

"The Tide of Life" at Cordray's.
It is not a new thing to use electricity in stage effects. For the last few years the subtle power has been employed in various ways to produce sensational effects in serious drama or to produce brilliant spectacular effects in extravaganza and opera. An entirely new use of electricity is shown in the play "The Tide of Life," which comes to Cordray's for the week commencing next Sunday night, August 24. A main who is better out of the way anyhow is electrocuted on five wire suspended 30 feet above the stage, in full view of the audience. He jumps from the second story of an office building in his flight from justice, and clutches at a trolley wire. There he hangs with flashes of steady light from all parts of his body, and the hissing and crackling which tells of the deadly work of the electric force. It is a weird, wonderful scene, and one that the spectator never forgets. It seems a fitting fate for the rascal who has had no mercy on any one else. "The Tide of Life" does not depend upon its realism for success, however; it tells a touching heart story, and abounds in wholesome humor, set off with singing and dancing as well as in fact, the play is in every sense an entertainment worthy of the intelligence and appreciation of a letter-day audience. It achieved a triumph in New York City, where it was originally produced last season, and has repeated that triumph wherever else it has been. It will be presented with the scenery, mechanical and electrical effects and a company of well-known artists.

Tivoli Opera Company at Marquam.

The advance sale of seats for the coming engagement of the Tivoli Opera Company at the Marquam Grand Theater will open this morning at 9 o'clock. The company opens its engagement next Monday night, presenting "The Serenade." Victor Herbert's tuneful opera, which will also be given on Tuesday evening, Wednesday and Thursday nights "The Idol's Eye." Friday and Saturday nights with a special matinee Saturday. "The Toy-maker." Popular prices will prevail during this engagement. The versatile comedienne, Fannie Harmon, is again the head of the organization, and the roster includes such first-class artists as Annie Myers, Bertha Davis, Frances Graham, the famous contralto, especially engaged for the tour; Arthur Cunningham, Edward Webb, Joseph Fogarty, Karl Formes, Jr., and others. A complete chorus is carried, and the mounting of the opera will be a complete duplicate of the San Francisco production.

OPIUM SMOKERS FINED

JURY FINDS G. H. SMITH, C. FOSS AND F. L. JONES GUILTY.
M. H. Flynn and William Bannan Go Free, but Are Rearrested for Frequenting an Opium Joint.

When charges of smoking opium were filed against five young men, G. H. Smith, C. Foss, F. L. Jones, M. H. Flynn and William Bannan, in the Municipal Court yesterday, they demanded a jury trial. The result was that Smith, Foss and Jones were found guilty, after the jury had deliberated over one hour, and that Bannan and Flynn were found not guilty.

The jurors were: A. P. Workman, J. Mitchell, Henry Moore, C. D. Tipton, J. P. Mather and M. Glosser. Only two witnesses were called for the prosecution, Policemen Kellier and Tichenor, who testified that they found the five defendants in a second-story room on Tuesday, and in the act of smoking opium. Flynn and Bannan were reclining on a bed, pipes, opium, needles and an opium laudanum near the men. None of the defendants was examined in his own defense. They were defended by two lawyers.

In addressing the jurors, Deputy District Attorney Gatens said: "I am a convict in this case. These five young men are unable to leave opium alone. The better way would be to place them in the county jail for a short time, where they can't get opium. It would be for their own good."

"Indeed," remarked one of the opposing lawyers. "The only man that I ever heard getting any benefit out of the county jail was the jailer."

After the six jurors were out for one-half an hour they came into the court again, and the foreman asked Acting Municipal Judge Wilbur if the jurors were compelled to declare all the prisoners guilty or not guilty. Could not the jurors on the evidence submitted find some of the prisoners guilty and others not guilty? The court decided that the latter proposition was correct. Then the jury retired to the seclusion of their room and again wrestled with the problem. When they announced their verdict, there was joy among the police, who had watched the case narrowly.

Smith, Foss and Jones could not pay the $25 fine, and they went back to jail. Flynn and Bannan, who were found not guilty on the charge of smoking opium, were permitted to leave the city, but were placed under the good favor of a big policeman stepped up to them, saying: "Not so fast, please. You are both arrested again."

"What for?" gasped Bannan. "Frequenting an opium joint," said the policeman, holding up a warrant that had just been issued. Flynn and Bannan had to recall their companions.

George Andrews and May McMullen, charged with smoking opium, pleaded guilty. They were arrested along with the other defendants, and were each fined $50. They could not pay the fine and went to jail. The woman was well dressed.

The Griddle was also before Acting Municipal Judge Wilbur, charged with unlawfully having morphine in his possession. Policeman Tichenor testified that he met the defendant on Third street, near Flinders, and, becoming suspicious of the man's appearance, arrested him. At the police station, when Griddle was searched, he was found with a little more than a yard of morphine in his pocket. "Giddy, sir," said Griddle. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $50, and as he walked off to jail it was noticed that he broke down and cried bitterly.
