Smallpox Comes From Lewis River Country.

DISEASE IS COMMON THERE

Form Is Mild, and Public Is Indifferent.

NO QUARANTINE OF ANY KIND

Many Victims About Woodlandsome Come to Portland for Treatment-Epidemie Is Likely, Unless Prompt Action Is Tuken.

Reports as to the prevalence of smallpox along the Lewis River, in the State of Washington, having reached The Oregonian, a reporter was dispatched to Woodland, with instructions to make careful investigation. The result is full confirmation of the rumors. The disgusting disease is widespread, and no precautionary measures whatever taken to protect neighboring cities and towns. From this place come many cases to Portland; and unless drastic measure are soon taken it is obvious that Portiand will be face to face with a troublesome epidemic during the coming Winter. The purpose of The Oregonian in making this inquiry has been to ascertain the facts, in order that the public may be informed and quar-smallpox-breeding ground, from which the disease is being scattered over the entire country, is located along the upper Lewis River. Woodland, Wash., to be the center, and no precautions are there taken against transmission of the disease from one person to another, or carrying it into other localities. All the surrounding country is infected, and numerous cases are reported over as far as La Center, Wash. The victim is, as a rule, entirely regardless of the welfare of others, and roams at large, spreading infection among all be meets. In some cases patients have de-liberately boarded a boat and came to, Portland, in order that they may be taken to the Pesthouse and receive treatment free of charge. People whose fam-ilies have smallpox visit other localities, and take no steps to kill the dangerous germs. In fact, this infected spot may well be considered the source, directly or indirectly, of most of the cases of smallpox that are intruding themselves over various parts of the country at this The physician who has charge of of the smallpox in that community takes no precautions to prevent the dis case from spreading among his patients. He does not even take the trouble to disinfect his clothing after he visits a case,

We have no state ealth board, and there is really no way that we can stop them from coming to our city. We are powerless to prevent the sprend of the disease as long as they are scattering the serms broadcast among the people. It will be only through the most extreme measures that we shall be able to prevent a general smallpox epidemic this Winter. It is something extraordinary that there should be so many cases at this time of the year. As soon as Winter sets in there is no telling how wide a course it will run." Dr. Zan, however, stated that he expected to do all in his power to save Portland from the results of the almost criminal ss of the people around Wood-"I cannot quarantine the place, "but I can demand that the rtation companies refuse to carry people from that section, and if they insist on taking them, I can prevent them running into Portland. I will take the matter up the first thing in the morning, and will insist that the companie quarantine these places."

It's Mild, They Say.

people of Woodland do not make any attempt to deny that there is a large amount of smallpox among them, and that they do not take any caution as to its spread. If a visitor says that he has heard that they have smallpox, they tell him that it is in a very mild form, and is not to be feared in the least. They even attempt to argue that the disease should be spread among the people while it is in a mild form, and that this, the most formidable and most-dreaded disease against which the medical fraternity has combat, is almost to be desired much as it cannot be contracted the sec-

Perhans the case that could be called the nearest to criminal neglect is that of the Woodland Postmaster, whose name is Fields. His family is sick with the smallpox, and his own face is a mass of pustules. He has never been compelled to shut up his office, but has continued to listribute the mail among his customers Not only this, but he has also received muil, sorted it while in the worst stages of the disease, thus depositing a countless number of the germs on the mail matter and sent it broadcast over the country. How many of the cases that are reported over the country came from this it is impossible to say, and how many more of the germs may lie latent until the more favorable Winter sets in and then assert themselves will never be

"Do you know that you are violating the laws of the country?" asked one of the more careful citizens of Fields, "and that you are liable to do a great damage by being so careless?" But the warning had no effect. Determined that such a practice was wrong and could be stopped, this citizen wrote to the Postoffice Inspector in this city; but he says no rewas ever had from the letter. Miller Was Not Alarmed.

blacksmith, whose name is Miller, has recently had smallpox, and but a few days ago his 2-weeks-old child was taken with the disease in a violent form. The mother had smallpox at the time the child was born. The father had made light of the discase when he had it, and had said: "There is no danger in it. It is not as had as a bad cold," and continued to work in his shop and wait on all customers. While his wife had it also, he did not pretend to take any caution gainst transmitting the germs to others. very mild but the form that has at-tacked the child is of a different sort, yet mild as compared with what may be expected at any time. The father continues to wait upon the customers while his clothes are loaded with the smallpox germs taken from both his wife and baby.

No Precautious Are Taken. A reporter called yesterday at the of-fice of Dy. Shoemaker, who handles the smallpox cases of that community. "I understand that there is smallpox "I have just come from the worst case that I have had yet," said he. "Mr. Miller's little baby is in a very bad condi-

"The whole country is full of it, but it is in a very mild form," said he, "and is not much to be feared. There are three or four cases right here in town, and I cannot say how many in the country around. I really know of but few families here who have not smallpox now or have had it since last Fail."
"What presention do you take against."

"What precaution do you take against its spreading?" he was asked.
"None." said he. "It is so mild that the people do not dread it, and there seems to be no use of raising any trouble about it. I tried to have the first few stay in their houses, but they would not do it, so'I gave it up and let them do as they please now."

they please now."

"Then a large number of people that go to the city and other places must be infected?" said the reporter.

"Of course, they are," said he; "but I don't see that that makes much difference. The leading doctors of the world are that smaller in courses.

ence. The leading doctors of the world say that smallpox is growing milder and milder, and will finally die out."
"Is it not possible that some that have the smallpox go to the city?" This question seemed to touch a sore spot in the doctor's memory, and recalled a fee that he might have had but did not get.
"Yes," said he indigenantly "recurs of any doctor bill."

"Do you know of any one that has done this?" asked the reporter.
"Yes." said he. "The blacksmith's son, Robert Miller, had the smellpox a short time ago and went to Portland, so that he could go to the Pesthouse and not have to any arm bill."

have to pay any bill."

A number of other citizens were questioned as to this fact, and in response to the question said: "It is true, and his folks bragged of the fact, and said that he had a long head."

The people argue that the disease is in a mild form, and that it is not to be dreaded; yet, when questioned closely, Dr. Shoemaker was forced to admit that some of the cases had been very severe, but owing to the fact that there has been none of them die of the disease, it was

After talking to the doctor for some time, it occurred to the reporter that a physician's clothing might carry as many germs as those of an ordinary man. "I may get the disease from you," he said, stepping back at a safer, more discreet distance. "Or do you disinfect your cloth-ing before you leave the house?" The suggestion that he should go to so much trouble over a little case of smallpox seemed to amuse the doctor greatly, and be gave the reporter a glance that could well be interpreted as one of pity for being so full of silly suggestions.

No Use to Disinfect. "Why, I never bother about anything like that, and I don't think there is any need of it," he responded. "If you are going to get it, you will get it. Two of my children have not even been vaccinated, and they run around where it is all of the time. I go and visit cases and come home and hold them on my knee, and still they do not get it. My wife goes with me to see most of the cases, and neither she nor the children have it yet. You are as made ther way." trying to avoid it as in any other way." doctor did not attempt to evade the fact that the country at large is exposed to smallpox on account of the carelessness of his patients, but tried to establish the fact that smallpox was nothing to make such a fuss about.

Is This a Mild Disease? When asked concerning this condition, and the argument of these people, Dr. Zan said: "Smallpox has always been mild here. It was thought to be excep-tionally mild last year; yet there were As long as such conditions exist, the city officials are powerless against the spread of smallpox. will break out in a severe form.
"I am very much afraid we shall have a bad epidemic here this Winter, and it will take the strongest possible efforts to prevent it. We have recently been informed of the condition about Woodland. I believe that it is the center from which the disease has been spreading, but at the same time it is but an illustration of the way that such things are handled in the little country towns. No one has any jurisdiction over them, and it is in the power of no one to quarantine them. We can shut the gates of the city against them, and not allow them to come here, but we cannot force them to stay at nome. If there were state health boards, and they would do their duty efficiently, they could have such places closely quar-antiped, and it would be but little trouble to stamp smallpox out of the country. We stamp it out here time and time again, but it is always reintroduced by some outsider. If every one would keep Walks about the city."

When asked what could be done to guard against these dangers, he said:
"We cannot do much by ourselves. They are in the State of Washington, and we have no control over them. Demanding that the boats that run in here do not that the boats that run in here do not take passengers at those points will stop a large number of them; but those that choose to come by a round-about way cannot be stopped. If we could only im-press on the people the great need of caution, the battle would be ended."

WEALTHY IMMIGRANTS. Detained on Supposition That They Were Gypsies.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.-Elias J. Ivanovich, with his wife and eight children, were held over night by the immigration authorities at Ellis Island, and this in epite of the fact that he has with him $25,000 in gold cein and $10,000 worth of jewelry. When the members of the family landed from the freight steamer Byron it was suspected that they were gypsies, and until they could prove their good intent to complex to this country it was detent in coming to this country it was de-cided to look into their story. When it was learned they were possessed of wealth that fairly took the breath away from the examiners, it was too late to do any-thing more in the matter, but it is probable that they will be released. They are Servians and will five in this country. Elias, the head of the family, is a man about 50 years old. He is more than six feet tall, and with his impressive bearing and picturesque attire could well pose for a picture of the ideal bandit. About his waist, beneath a Persian lamb coat, he wears a belt containing Spanish doubloons three deep. His watch chain is of massive silver, studded with turquelses of large size.

No less gaudily attired was his oldest son, who likewise wore a belt of doub-loons. His wife's ears held gold earrings nearly two inches long, and in the of his pretty daughter were large pearls.

WHO IS ATTENDING APRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CONFERENCE

EDUCATION THEIR HOPE

AFRICAN METHODISTS DISCUSS THE FUTURE OF COLORED BACE.

Rev. S. S. Freeman Delivers Anniversary Sermon at the Conference of the Church.

The third night of the African Methodist Episcopal Conference was devoted to the anniversary sermon on "Education." The meeting was opened by singing "Yield Not to Temptation" after the lead of an oldasshioned precentor. Prayer was offered by Brother Hodgkin, and after singing by the choir and Scripture reading by Bev. Mr. Collins, the Rev. S. S. Freeman rose to deliver the sermon. He prefaced his remarks with a neat reference to his previous residence in Portland. His text was, "Study to show thyself unto God a workman that needeth not be ashamed. He said in part: "Education by teachers and parents may prepare for self-culture, but cannot take its place. A man as a responsible being must educate himself. Much effort, as we preachers know, has been and is being wasted on unintelligent improvement. If we study physiology we learn what is inside of us, and that is what we must know to educate ourselves in-telligently. We must know the particular-ities of each individual. In other words, each man must know what is in him to do his duty, and to be acquainted with the bias of his nature." This sentiment elicited loud notes of aproval from the brethren, and Mr. Freeman continued: "Each faculty must be educated by exer-cise; reasoning by reasoning, generalizing cise; reasoning by reasoning, generalizing by generalizing. This may be done by in-tercourse with men of power."

In making the direct application of this to the colored race the speaker empha-sized the fact that education means per-fection. "A man can never be educated," said Mr. Freeman, "unless he can produce something. It is a man's duty to avoid ignorance, rashness and sin. Two things are necessary for the uplifting of our race— education and religion. Education is power. Let us study, study! God help us to study! The existence of Jim Crow cars and the disenfranchisement put a value on education."

Then Mr. Freeman drew a glowing pic-ture of the relative value of might as against the brain of man. "Fifty thousand colored men with steel-like saber and sword and gleaming scabhard fought on the two sides in the Civil War. For years they fought and their blood dilutes a thousand battle-fields. Yet one stroke of Lincoln's (giorious Lincoln's) pen dld more than they all. Yet in spite of all we are physically emancipated but spiritually bond. The South has always been behind in educa-tion, but now it is pressing on with evident zenious emulation of the Northern States. Great changes are coming, and we must not be behind; we must face the new requirements. And we must succeed, for did not our fathers and our mothers, our forefathers and our foremothers go down into the grave praying for light? Yes! the events of the past century stand out so conspicuously that it would be affectation of humility to neglect them."

In apostrophizing the great development in religious matters, the speaker said: "It is no longer the old cart of the gospel horse, but the automobile of Christian-ity." At the conclusion of the service a collection was taken. Tomorrow night Bishop Shaffer, who has just returned from Liberia and Sierra Leone, will speak on "Western Africa."

The A. M. E. Conference convened at 9
A. M., Bishop C. T. Shafer presiding. Rev. S. J. Collins conducted the devotional ex-ercises. The report of Rev. N. D. Hartsercises. The report of Rev. N. D. Harus-field, of Newcastle and Franklin. was read, and that of Presiding Elder G. A. Balley. Bishop Thoburn, of the Methodist Episcopal Church in India, and the Rev. L. E. Rockwell, presiding elder of the Portland district, were introduced to the conference. Rishop Thoburn made a very conference. Bishop Thoburn made a very interesting address relative to his work in India, and Elder Rockwell spoke in complimentary terms of what was being done and urged the brethren to qualify them-selves intellectually and religiously that the world might be taken for Christ. To these addresses Elder Bailey responded in a few words. Later Bishop Shaffer gave a synopsis of the missionary work in Africa. After Elder Bailey had reported the work in Everett, the disciplinary questions were asked, and the afternoon session closed

TO PRESERVE THE CLUB. Steps Taken by Knickerbocker Athletes at New York.

NEW-YORK, Aug. 22.-Members of the well-known Knickerbocker Athletic Club have decided to take active steps to save the organization from going to pieces and to that end have authorized Professor G. Whitson to name a committee of 10 to confer as to the plan of acton to be fol-lowed. Theides prevailing now is to change the club from a proprietary one to a members' organization.
This step is a direct result of a suit begun by Adrian Relin against John H. Ballantyne and John D. Adams, to fore-close a mortgage of $400,000 on the building occupied by the club. Heretofore the organization has been run financially by Ballantyne, and the decision of the meet ing practically amounted to a rejection of Mr. Ballantyne's policy, and a determination to proceed without his assistance in the future. A prominent member of the club said that all the receipts had been turned over to Mr. Ballantyne, and, acbut in reality, the entire management rested on the financial authority of Mr. Ballantyne Ever since its formation, the Knicker bocker has had one trouble after another, and its vicissitudes have been many. Originally it was the famous old Manhattan athletic Club, but dissension grew, and its place was taken by the Picqua Club. Its carrer was brief and then came the Knickerbocker. The new life built up a magnificent club, and at one time the best athletes in the country were among its members. Harry Cornish came from Chicago a few years ago to take the po-sition of athietic director of the club.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 22.-Reports to the effect that some friction exists as to the appointment of marshal of the paradof veterans at the next National encamp ment, at Washington, next October, were shown today to Judge Ed Torrance, com-mander-in-chief of the G. A. R. He said: "I have no knowledge of any friction in regard to the marshability of the parade When Colonel Blackeman was appointed chief of staff, almost a year ago, it was with the expectation and understanding that he would act as marshal of the parade. It has been my expectation and dealre that President Reosevelt and Lieutenant-General Miles should review the parade with me, and invitations were sent to those distinguished persons. Prior to my late visit to Washington I feared that the official inspection tour of the Lieutenant-General to the Parific Const would prevent his presence at the encampment, but I am pleased to state that General Miles has signified his intention to ar range his duties if possible so that he can be present."
