

EVE OF THE BATTLE

Army of Defense Ready to Repel Naval Attack

IN THE JOINT MANEUVERS

General MacArthur Inspects the Three Forts at the Entrance of Narragansett Bay—Activity in the Fleet

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 29.—The night before the battle of the army of defense in the several ports along shore between New Bedford and the east entrance to Long Island Sound practically in readiness to repel the attack of the hostile fleet under the command of Admiral Higginson. The only things that remain are the additional armament on both sides—the Massachusetts heavy artillery for the forts, and the Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York naval militia for the fleet. These organizations will arrive tomorrow afternoon. The artillery will be at once distributed among the posts at the entrance of Narragansett Bay and around New Bedford. As to the naval militia, the gunboats Mayflower and Scorpion will be here in readiness to receive the Massachusetts heavy artillery. The New York naval militia arriving on the Supply. These three boats will immediately leave for the east, and the militia will be distributed among the vessels of the fleet. It is expected that the fleet of Admiral Higginson will disappear from the coast sometime tomorrow night, and will not be heard from again until the attack is made.

The principal event today in this vicinity was the arrival of Major-General MacArthur, Commander of the Department of the East, on a tour of inspection. He was received at Fort Adams by the commanding officer, and a long consultation was had to-night at headquarters. After his inspection of the three forts defending Narragansett Bay, General MacArthur will leave for New Bedford, probably tomorrow afternoon. A large number of signal stations, reaching from Fort Adams, along the southern end of Rhode Island, which is practically the City of Newport, are being established by the Army. The stations are all in telephonic communication with headquarters at Fort Adams. A wireless telegraph system has also been established between Fort Adams and the mainland, and also with the forts on Conanicut Island and Dutch Island. Fort Wetherill on the former and Fort Greble on the latter. The stations are being established in this vicinity in the searchlight station at Prince's Neck, very close to the life-saving station. It is hoped that the station at Newport will be established by means of its powerful light, any vessels of the enemy. It is also a very desirable point, and may be the scene of an attack with the object of cutting the wires. The mines at the entrance of Narragansett Bay are practically in position, and the umpires have charge of the same. The umpires and observers all left for their different positions early this afternoon, and today are expected to be ready for duty. The date for the commencement of hostilities is at midnight tonight, but the actual warfare will not begin until after midnight Sunday. In 24 hours are allowed Admiral Higginson to obtain some advantageous position off shore.

It is learned that Wednesday night Colonel Hasbrouck gave the following notice that he would try to run their searchlights, just as a test. Going out to sea, he lay in under the Narragansett shore and in the shadow of the fort. The searchlights were turned on, and he was picked up at a point where the guns at the fort could have done great damage to an enemy. On the morrow arrangements at Fort Adams camp has been established for the use of detachments, so that in case of alarm the guards may be manned instantly.

ACTIVITY IN THE FLEET

Higginson's Squadron Ready for Its Part in the Game

ON BOARD U. S. S. ALABAMA, off Narragansett Bay, Monday, August 29.—As the first day of the war maneuvers in which the white squadron is to contend against the Army is arranged to begin at midnight tonight, there was much activity today on the battleship, and other boats will leave this anchorage is not known, except possibly by Rear Admiral Higginson and his staff, the officers in command.

Although the period, which starts at midnight, is known as the period of preparation, it is believed that very soon after the opening hour arrives the squadron or some part of it, will get under way and proceed to an investigation of the situation in the "enemy's" country. It is understood that during the period of preparation there may be actual bombardment or feints for the purpose of testing the efficiency of each part of the line of forts.

The squadron was augmented last night by the arrival of the converted yacht Mayflower, the Gloucester, and the Leyden. The 250 or more marines who have been camping on the Mayflower returned to their ships today. Tents were pitched on Monday, and the shore service had but the men in excellent condition. The Army observers who are to co-operate with the Navy in making decisions as to the results of the various maneuvers also joined the fleet today. About 15 observers in all reported, and during the coming concentration of troops they were distributed among the various ships.

Actual Field Operations

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Carrying out the plan to have the combined Army and Navy maneuvers duplicate the conditions of actual war as far as training of the personnel is concerned, orders have been issued that the maneuvers are to be regarded as actual field operations. Therefore, every Army officer connected with the maneuvers will be required to submit detailed reports of his operations and special functions, just as he would in case of actual war. This was with view of deriving the greatest benefit from the operations. The officers are especially enjoined to comment freely upon any phases of the maneuvers outside of their own line of work. With a view to preventing accidents which might result from the presence in a soldier's belt of a ball cartridge, General MacArthur has directed all company officers to take away all such ammunition. The same rule is to apply to the ammunition chest of machine guns. No personal salutes will be fired during the period of the maneuvers.

Planning Kansas Maneuvers

OMAHA, Aug. 29.—A special board of Army officers will meet at Army headquarters, Department of the Missouri, Monday, to determine on the details of the maneuvers to be held at Fort Riley, Kan., during the coming concentration of troops there. The board will be in session several days, and at the conclusion of its sessions the entire programme for the maneuvers will have been completed.
