Stovall Drops Fly With Three Men on Bases, Allowing Two Runs-Perfect Support for Engle-Dugdale Signs Hulen.

SEATTLE, Sept. 8.—(Special.)—Engle was steady today, and he was given great support in the field. Tom Kelly, on the other hand, was so wild that he had the bases loaded all the time up to the fifth inning, and errors at critical moments by simself and the men behind him enabled Portland to chase four unearned runs over the plate. Engle did not issue a single pass, and Seattle had to earn the three runs they made. Portland scored a pair of runs in the fourth on a base on balls to Harris, a sacrifice by Delsel. En-gle tried to bunt, and Klopf allowed the ball to roll out a hit to left, scoring Harris, and on Dalrymple's wild throw En-gle came home. Portland got two more in the fifth, which proved enough to win the game, after two men were out. An-derson led off with a hit, and when Weed tried to sucrifice Kelly threw away over Campbell's head, trying to catch Ander-son. Vigneux popped up a foul to Klopf, Babbitt fumbled Muller's grounder, and the bases were full. The situation was too much for Harris, so he struck out. Delsel hit a little fly back of first base that Stovall dropped, allowing two runs to score. Mulier tried to come all the way home on the error from first, but Campbell got the ball, and by a perfect throw to Stanley nailed Muller at the Seattle got a run in the fourth on double by Stovall, and singles by Klopf and Hurley. They annexed another pair in the fifth on a single by Stanley, a double by Kelly and Babbitt's single over second that Anderson got one hand on but could not stop. A sensational one-handed catch by Anderson and the catch of a line-drive by Harris were the fielding features. Seattle has signed Kid Hulen to play second base for the balance of the senson, and he will report to Dugdale at Portland Tuesday or Wednesday.

LA GRANDE NINE DISBANDS. Because It Thought Walla Walla

Had Thrown Up the Sponge. WALLA WALLA, Sept. 8 .- A telephon message to the Union from La Grande an-nounces that the Inland Empire baseball team in that city was disbanded tonight. The reason given is that the La Grande management thought Walla Walla would quit and that it did not desire to lose money attempting to finish the season with only three clubs in the organization. The story that Walla Walla was even thinking of giving up is without foundation. The management would have gladly finished out the season and may do so in an interview over the telephone, In an interview over the telephone, Manager Ray, of La Grande, said: "I heard that Walla Walla had thrown up the sponge and so disbanded my team, I did not even take time to call them up and see if it was true. I just quit."

Other managers in the league have not been heard from. There were twelve more games to be played in the league series and La Grande was to have opened here Thursday. What will be the outcome is not known. By disbanding before the end of the season the La Grande team forfeited $250, which sum had been posted by each team that it would complete the beat him on his merits, trotting the most | Merry Acrobat second, Love Note third; remarkable race of any mare that has been seen for years. A contender in the first two heats, she wore out The Monk and won by virtue of her tremendous gameness and rare staying powers. Had the been reserved in the first two heats, her victory would not have been so meritorious, but as she contested every inch of her ground from the time the word was given in the first heat until the race was over, she fairly earned her laurels.

"When one stops to consider that this race compares favorably as regards the time of the first four heats with those of the race in which Cresceus defeated of the race in which Cresceus deteated Charley Herr and others at Readville in the stallion race, some idea of the capacity of the horses can be had. Such time as was made requires a great effort on the part of the contenders; it is the pace that kills, and to live through such a pace and continue their best speed stamps both The Monk and Anzella as extremely high class trotters. Lord Derby in all his career has not trotted such by in all his career has not trotted such a race, although he doubtless could have done so on at least one occasion, namely, the race at the Empire City track, in which he founded his reputation; nor has Borhima ever duplicated this contest, although he has been a participant in many brilliant races. It was not alone the fact that the time was very fast, but gather because nearly every foot of the journey was a contest that makes these two trotit has been possible for other trotters to work miles correspondingly fast, the facthat there was a game trotter at the throat-tatch of each contender makes the task a more difficult one, and nothing short of the highest class can endure such a strain. While The Monk was defeated, he was glorious in his defeat, as it is unquestionably true that he has suffered during his career hardships and misfortunes that the mare bas escaped. Monk has been in his life a cripple; he has been raced continuously, and may now feel the effects of his work. His owner has been free in his assertions that the horse has not recovered entirely from a slight cold. Yet with all that can be said by way of apology for the gelding, nothing must be said to detract one whit from the stunning performance of the Her victory was clean-cut and entirely free from even a semblance of sharp practice. She raced with The Monk, contesting every inch of the ground, and finally won by reason of her superiority. She out-lasted him and out-stayed him, and at the finish, out-trotted him, and consequently she deserves the greatest credit for her superb perform-"This race, both from a spectacular standpoint and as an exhibition of speed and gameness, outranks any other of this year. It came as a refreshing change from the series of irregular races that have been seen through the Grand Circuit. In it no heats were laid up by the winners, the best horse won, and thus far in the season's racing this is a bright example of fair and clean-cut racing between two horses very evenly matched, the victory of each not being apparent until the race was at an end. Anzella comes rightly by her gameness. Her grandsire, Aberdeen, was himself out of one of the most wonderfully enduring mares ever seen, and his get were uniformly game, and Anzelia, having such an inheritance, as well as possessing such a tremendous flight of speed, should have before her a very bright future, if, indeed, she does become a champion.

From a Friendly Source.

New York Evening Post. Another of the leaders in the little group of men who control the mining of coul in Pennsylvania has been talking in a tone which shows a Bourbon blindness to the fundamental principles involved. President Truesdale, of the Lackawanna Railroad, is quoted by the Tribune as condemning the Civic Federation, but for the interference of which he holds that there would never have been any strike, and then as adding: "Just funcy such men as Senter Hanna and Bishop Potter, who know nothing about mining, trying to settle differences which concern us and our employes, and nobody else." Here is that same idea that a controversy which nvolves the regular production of fuel needed throughout the country is as pure-ly a private matter between employer and employed as a dispute in a single cotton mill or iron foundry. Mr. Trues-dale had better "take a day off" and read the comments of a few hundred news papers upon the situation in Pennsylva-nia. He would discover before he was through that the people consider that these differences concern them in a very vital way.

Clackamas County-Repealing or amending coyote boun-

EUGENE, Sept. 7.—(Special.)—Being asked what measures he had to introduce and would support at the coming session of the State Legislature, Dr. W. Kuykendall, Senator from this county, replied as follows:

"I have as yet no specific plans for the next session of the Legislature. I am convinced that the state does not need much new legislation, anyhow. If the Governor, instead of calling an extra session, had the power to and would pre-vent the assembling of the Legislature at the regular session next January, the state at large would not suffer for want of general legislation.

"As a rule, it is only the inexperiences member or the legislative quack who goes to Salem with a pocket full of bills designed to cure all the fils to which the state is heir. The duties of a legislator do not consist wholly or largely in introducing bills. If more time were spent by the members in posting them-selves on the business of the state, and on the details of the management of its institutions, and in efforts to stop the petty leaks, as can be done under exist-ing laws, and lose time were spent in attempts to amend the constitution and statutes, the state would be a great

"Unfortunately, this quiet, unestentatious work is tiresome and uninteresting, and does not make much of an impression on the minds of the 'dear people' at So the average legislator to get in as many clerks as he can from among his friends to 'investigate' the various institutions of the state, and introduce as many bills for 'reform' as possible, because those things are easier done and sound better when read in the Long Tom Clarion.' But you asked me what bills I intend to introduce, not for my opinion on the duty of legislators.
"I have no bills formulated yet, and nothing very important in mind. I think some amendments may be made law regulating Legislative clerkships, making it more satisfactory and effective. I shall probably try my hand at that "I am convinced that all necessary reforms in the State Printer's office may be effected without change in the constitution, or in the general plan of conducting that office. I think we shall find that laws passed at the last session of the Legislature have cut off most of the ex-cessive emoluments of that office. The present Secretary of State has established certain rules as to measurement of the printer's work and as to purchase and delivery of stock to that official that effect a good saving to the state. To prevent future officers from lapsing into the old methods, these 'rules' ought to be enacted into laws. If some one else does not introduce a bill covering this point I

"This reminds me of the proposition for flat salaries for state officers. I suppose a flood of bills will be introduced on that subject. I do not expect to have any bills to that effect. No saving to the state will be effected by such legislation. The pre-election talk in favor of this proposition was largely by those net familia: with the facts, or by those who wished to make political capital of it.

"Service for three sessions as chairman or member of the committee on ways and means compelled me to familiarize myseli with all the details of expenditures in the state offices. I must say that the business of these offices is conducted in a careful and economical manner. The cost to the state of the offices of Governor, Sec. retary of State, Treasurer and School Superintendent cannot be materially reduced. No useless clerks are employed, no unnecessary office expenses curred and the compensation paid to these officers by the state is not out of proportion to the service rendered. A compari on of our expenses for this purpose with that of other states of like population will place Oregon in a very favorable light.
"School legislation, which has taken much of the time of the past three sessions, will not need much attention next Winter. The new school code, the textbook law and the high school laws seem to have met the expectation of their friends, and will need but little if any

"I have not given much attention to assessment, and taxation legislation, but there will doubtless be a strong demand for a change in our present assessment law. The premium and penalty on payment of texes are both too high. But as this class of legislation is supposed to originate in the House, I shall propose no Wickerlieve," said he, "the state is in need of any great amount of general legislation, and I think I shall have few bills to introduce. When I went down to the last session I had no bills prepared, and may not have this time."

There are two laws, however, which I hope to see amended so as to meet the demar's of the people. The first of these is the new law relative to the collection of taxes, bounty for prompt payment and penalty for delinquency. I think the present penalty for delinquency is excessive and should be reduced."

Mr. Harris is deeply interested in the matter of good roads, and, while he has no bill of his own for the betterment no bill of his own for the betterment of the Oregon road laws, he hopes to see bills introduced, and that a law will be passed which will work for interests of public highways. Mr. Harris is not only a road enthusiast, but the county which he represents is also one of the foremost in the state in the matter of road improvement.

J. M. Shelley states that his most im portant measure will be one requiring warehouse men to protect their patrons from loss. He will see that such a bill is introduced, and will support it with all his might. Mr. Shelley is one of the owners of the Eugene flouring mills, and does a warehouse business. In this line he has had occasion to observe how great a risk has been taken by farmers when they have, as has been proven repeatedly, deposited their wheat in a warehous without any safeguard, financially or oth-erwise. A number of warehouse men in when it came to delivering the wheat for which they were responsible they have not been able to do it, and the farmer has been the loser. Mr. Shelley wants a law requiring any person doing a warehouse business in the state to deposit this state have gotten into difficulty, and

This was especially true during the season which ended on August 15, and to guard against a similar occurrence next year agreements are being signed by many of the gillnetters, appointing a committee, the names of whom are not yet made public, authority to ack for and obtain bids from the cannerymen and others for the chase of all the salmon that shall b caught by the signers during the Spring and Summer fishing season of 1903. Professional Couple-Beggars.

London Leader. Some interesting details from the registers of certain irregular marriages which were celebrated in Dublin by unlicensed clergymen, professionally known "couple-beggars," in the 18th and 19th centuries, are published in the recently issued report of the deputy-keeper of the Public Records. Such clandestine mar-riages were at one time common enough in London, and the mere mention of them recalls memories of the Fleet and King's Bench Prisons, May Fair, the Mint, and other centers, where these mock-cere monies were wont to take place. Some of the entries in the Dublin registers afford a curious insight into the efforts which were made to insure secrecy, as to the condition of the persons who resorted to these notorious "couple-beggars." astunce, in several cases the identity of female is veiled beneath the words, another," whilst in others asterisks take the place of letters. There is also consent," whilst as to the character of the curties the following notes in the regisers are not without interest: "Is 6d due the bride absconded without paying." "This party stole a ring," "Stole my boots," "half-crown had," and "Behaved in a very unsuitable manner, and were not married by me."

J. HENRI KESSLER, M.D. MANAGER THE OLD ST. LOUIS DISPENSART Cor. Seeand and Yamhill Sts., Portland, Or

Look here, young man, if you suffer from any of the weakening effects of disease caused by your boyish pranks and contagion or you may have been swindled by quack doctors, but don't forget the fact that you must be cured, it never gers well itself, the drain and losses continue and unless stopped will land you with thousands of others in the asylum or the grave. A great number of divorce cases if the underlying cause could be investigated would be found to be the incompatibility of physical conditions. The time is coming when it will be necessary for a medical and physical examination before a marriage certificate is granted. The weakness and diseased condition of people will make such a course indispensable for protection to the children of future generations. Already the physical condition of every domestic animal is carefully graded up except cats and human beings. Many young men have consulted old Dr. Kessler before getting married. Good health insures happiness in this world.
