ANOTHER RISE IN BEANS

MARKET CLOSED EXCITED AND HIGHER.

Hops Are Active and Firm With Dealers Offering Twenty-two Cents for Choice.

The past week saw a good volume of trade in the jobbing district. Business was not quite so rushing in fruits as it had been, but in othor produce and in merchandise very satisfactrading took place.

The wheat market, after a steady week closed firmer Saturday, though prices were not appreciably higher. Shippers quoted club at 68c and bluestem at 65c as export values, though considerable grain was bought at 14c above these figures. Farmers, as a rufe, are holding for higher prices. Other cereals are firm at unchanged prices.

The hop market was active during the week, especially on the closing day. Many sales of 50 and 100-bale lots were reported Saturday, prices ranging from 2002ic. Twenty-two cents is being offered for very choice hops. Receipts

A telegram to a Portland dealer, dated New York, Saturday, said: "Exporters are buying largely in Germany. The London market is dull, and prices are nominally unchanged, but to effect sales concessions must be made. The New York market is dull, but not quotably

There is no general business in the California nia or Washington markets yet. Of the situa-Won in New York, the Journal of Commerce

A firm but quiet market was reported locally, and there were no changes reported from either the Coast or up the state. Nothing new was reported from London nor the Continent. Adwices received from Washington reported that the number of barrels of beer on which tax was paid during the month of August amount-ed to 4.553,061 barrels, against 4.753.207 barrels for the same month last year. The total for the calendar year to September 1 is 30,746,-191 barrels, against 29,172,1924 barrels for the same period last year, or an increase of 1,572,-The Waterville Times of September 26 says of hope:

Though there does not appear to be any great anxiety on the part of growers to sell at the present offerings, still there are a few sales all-the time at 28930c. It has developed that while there were many lice in most of the yards, there was almost an entire absence of mold. This is not the usual result, but it was very fortunate that it was so, for it has made it possible for our growers to bring forward a

Pacific Coast hops were quotable in New York on that date as follows: 1902, 24@29c per pound; 1901, choice, 25@264c; do medium to prime, 236:24c; 1900, 19621c; olds, 86124c.

The interest in the grocery market centered in beans, three distinct advances being made in the week. Closing quotations were: Large and small white, 4c; Limas, 5c; Bayous, 8%c; pinks, 3%c. Dried peaches advanced, as did sardines. Canned corn and tomatoes are strong at former quotations, and prunes are very firm. In the fruit and vegetable market, Fall goods are beginning to take the place of Summer varieties. Receipts of peaches, pears and mel-ons are gradually decreasing. A carload of Cape Cod cranberries was received. Grapes are plentiful, and sweet pointoes are in bette supply.

the last half of the week, with big receipts and a poor demand. A large number of coops were carried over, and unless the inquiry improves today and tomorrow, prices will continue weak and demoralized. Ranch eggs remain firm at 25c, but do not go higher because of the plentiful supply of Eastern and storage eggs, which are quoted at 22%@28c. Butter is firm on fanor grades. Cheese was firm and advanced to Saturday, and will probably go higher.

Later, on Favorable Weather in the Northwest and Unresponsive Cables, Market Declined.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Heavy rains in the Southwest, and strength in corn were buil factors in wheat at the opening. With favorable weather reported in the Northwest and the break in corn, there was a corresponding decline in wheat early in the session. Local traders and outsiders were active sellers. Unresponsive cables, small cash business and moderate receipts had a steadying influence on the market. December opened 46% to 36% to higher at 70%. Heavy realizing carried the price down to 60%. Heavy realizing carried the price down to 60%. The close was 46% to lower at 70.

The weather map was again the main factor in the opening advance in corn. The heaviest general rainfall of the season was reported during the past 24 hours, and predictions were for a continuance of the unfavorable condition. A large volume of business was transacted, and although a decline was experienced later in the session on heavy realizing, the market in general was firm. December closed 36% lower at 40% 1949.

Oats were fairly active and followed corn. December closed 46% lower at 2246 32% c. Frovisions were irregular and weak. January pork closed 5c lower, lard a shade lower and ribs 5c lower.

JADE OF THE ANCIENTS. Specimens of the Prehistoric Mineral From the Orient.

New York Mall and Express.

Should Heber B. Bishop, of this city, carry out his reported intention of giving his collection of prehistoric Oriental and New Zealand Jades to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, that institution would acquire a unique assortment of treasures.

Mr. Bishop's collection not only is the best and most comprehensive of its kind but is likely to remain so, since the golden time of the gatherer of Chinese Jades is past. The treasures of the Summer palace were brought to the West by the French and English in the sixtles; the march on Pekin two years ago brought march on Pekin two years ago brought forth little in the way of new art works in the curious old mineral, which some 30 years ago gave rise to one of the most interesting prehistoric discussions the world of science has ever carried on, Jade is a mineral—a stone, the materia used by the neolithic man for his implements, as distinct from the flint of the still earlier pelcolithic map. Flint was chipped into shape; jade was cut and polished with sand and water. Often the water of streams, rolling the pebbles of the mineral along sandy, rubbly river beds, performed part of the laborious task for our early ancestors. The shape of the find determined its use; but as often the block had to be ground into hatchets and scrapers, awis and needles, into ornamental beads, hammers and

This mineral has the useful quality of being exceedingly hard without being brittle. Mineralogists know three kinds, to which they have given the names of nephrite, jadeite and chloromelanite, the last of the three being the most interesting, as it has never been found in the crude state as part of the rock formation of any of the continents. Where it came from none knows to this day. We have it only in the form of implements or of rough pieces of varying size. being exceedingly hard without being brittle. Mineralogists know three kinds.

or of rough pieces of varying size.

The Kuen-lun Mountains of China contain the chief mines of jade today. Sitain the chief mines of jade today. Si-beria, too, yields an excellent quality of the mineral, which has at present some vogue in the form of fob seals and seal ring stones. A peculiar kind is found in Polynesia, and a few years ago a European scientist succeeded at last in discovering it in the rock in Europe— "In situ," as the mineralogists say, thus settling forever the great "peophytic ques-settling forever the great "peophytic quessettling forever the great "nephrite ques

It was late in the '70s, when the dis covery of thousands of small and large jade implements in the remains of the prehistoric lake dwellings of Switzerland had drawn attention to this mineral, that Professor Fischer, of Freiburg, published his famous book on the "Nephrite Ques-tion." In this he reasoned as follows: The builders of the lake dwellings, the men of the later stone age, used by preference jade in the making of their mplements. Now, jade is a mineral that a not found in Europe in its natural state, whence it follows that there must have been in these prehistoric days an intercontinental trade between Central Europe and China, which points to a ligher state of civilization than we hav Up rose another Teutonic pundit, in the person of Dr. Meyer, the curator of a museum in Dreaden, who asserted that Professor Fischer's major premise had not been proven. The Iberian peninsula and the mountains of Norway, he said, had not yet been thoroughly explored. Rather than accept this theory of an intercontinental prehistoric trade route, le us wait until the mineralogists chance upon the local mines whence the paleo-lithic inhabitants of Europe drew their British Baron Dead.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Castel Sherard, tenth Baron Sherard, is dead, aged 53 years.

Coal is widely distributed in India, but many of the coal fields have not been fully explored.
