Carruthera, of New York, repre-senting the executive committee of the Free American Council, called upon President Roosevelt today to ascertain his attitude toward the movement of certain Republicans of the South to exclude the extress from participating in the counclis of the party. They were especially solicitious of accertaining whether the President indorsed the action of the Reblicans in North Carolina and Ala-ma. With this end in view, they were presented to the President by General James Clarkson, Surveyor of the Port of

After the interview, the colored men seed themselves as highly gratified what the President had said to They approunced that the President had stated to them that his actions in all matters affecting the race was his answer as to his attitude toward the colored man; that in appointments the character, intelligence and the esteem in which the applicant was held in the com-munity in which he lived would be the first considerations, and that no man would be excluded or appointed because of his color. That he heartly disapproved of the efforts of certain Republicans in the South to exclude the negroes from participation in politics was known, so they represented the Psesident as having stated to those in authority in the move-ment. Moreover, it also was stated that the President had cited his action in re-moving District Attorney Vaughn, of Al-abama, who was the head of the White Republican movement in the state, as evidence of his attitude. By the terms of the convention the

The northern frontier follows the ridges of the Pnom-Padang range to the Mekong River, giving France the ancient Cam-bodian Province of Melaiproy and Laos in the Province of Bassak.

The King of Slam is given the right to maintain troops at different points on the right bank of the Mekong, which remains Siamese, but he undertakes to employ only Siamese troops officered by Siamese in the whole Mekong basin. If Siam desires to concentrate ports, canals or religendes in the Siamese parties of th or railroads in the Siamese portion of the Mekong basin, it must obtain the consent of the French Government to employ foreign help if she is unable to carry out the works by means of a Slamese staff and Slamese capital. The convention forbids the imposition of differential duties or charges for the use of ports, canals and railroads contrary to the prinicple of commercial quality prom-ired by Slam. As soon at the new frontiers are handed over to France, the French troops will evacuate Chentabun.

Even my mental capacity was giving out, and often I wished to die. It was then I gaw an advertisement of yours in a New York paper, but would not have paid any attention to it, had it not promised a sworn guarantee with every bottle of your medicine, asserting that your Swamp-Root is purely vegetable, and does not contain any harmful drags. WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 .- The annual encampinent of the Sons of Veterans began at Carroll Hall today. The proceedings, which were private, consisted of the sub-mission of the reports of officers, and of other routine work. There was a public reception at noon, at which speeches were made by Chairman McFarland, Com-mander-in-Chief Torrance, of the Grand Army of the Republic; Chaplain-in-Chief Ennis, of the Sons of Veterane; B. H. Warner, chairman of the local committee, and others. General Torrance, in his address, said the members of the Grand Army of the Republic had not been as liberal with their sons as they should have been. It was but natural that the vet-erans should feel that to them especially had been intrusted the ark of the Cov-enant, but they should bear in mind that the time was fast approaching when they must surrender that ark, and surely none could be found more worthy to assume the responsibility than the sons of the men who had saved the Union and preserved its

Warner, chairman of the citizens' com- estimated attendance of 1500 delegates,

"The granaries of the world are being filled until today we are confronted with the fact that in the United States five and two-thirds millions of farms are pro-ducing one and one-half billion dollars worth of agricultural products, a sum said to be much in excess of the total income of the farmers at any other time in their history in this country. This year we are raising in the United States as much corn as was raised in the world last year. "The education that has been going on in the interest of the agriculturist during the last 30 years has produced wonderful results, but all, or nearly so, are upon one side of this two-sided question, viz. upon the side of production, without touching the question of distribution or the question of the relation of the agriculturist to the government or govern-ments under which he lives, and by virtue of which he is protected. We are living in an age of combinations-an age when corporations and corporate inter cets unite for purposes which to them seem wice and just; an age when the labor element is organized for purposes which to it seems just and right; an age in which capital, generally speaking, is organized and combined for reasons which to it seem just and right, so that when any problem arises, from the question of distribution to the question of legislation, they are prepared at short notice to say what action should be taken and then act as a unit. What is true of them is not true of the agricultural population, and yet that population is 10-29ths of the entire number engaged in the industrial pursuits of this country. The scope of our education's work should now be such that it will ex-tend to this class of our population. The theories and fundamental principles of constitutional law should be taught along side the fundamental principles underly ing the production of agricultural products. Those principles are stable, under-going few changes. Every agricultural citizen should understand that the Government of the United States under which he lives is a government of derived pow-ers, that it has no powers except those that have been conferred upon it, and that the conferring was done by the sovereign states of the Union and that the matter conferred is enumerated in that document known as the Constitution of the United States, and that when he derires the National Government to do anything in his interest, he must first know whether the power to do that thing has been given that Government in that instrument, If the power has been conferred, then it is plausible and feasible to petition the Congress of the United States to do the thing desired.

"I believe that no better work can now be taken up along educational lines in addition to the work aiready being done than to put the agricultural population of this country in possession of such knowledge relative to the Government and its workings as will qualify or equip each and everyone to at any time step into the leg-islative halls of any state in the Union or the Congress of the United States and speak with intelligence upon the quitions that will be placed before them.
