Oct. 21-Miners' convention accepts arbitration plan.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 21.-With a hout that fairly shook the convention building, the representatives of the 147,since last May officially declared off at noon today the greatest contest ever made between capital and labor, and placed all the questions involved in the struggle in the hands of the arbitration commission appointed by the President of the United States. When the news was flashed to the towns and villages down in the valleys and on the mountains of the coal regions. inhabitants heaved a sigh of relief. Many days have gone by since such welcome news was received. Everywhere there was rejoicing, and in many places the end of the strike was the signal for impromptu town celebrations. The anthracite coal region from its largest city. Scranton, down to the lowliest coal patch has suffered by the conflict, and every one now looks for better times.

While the large army of mineworkers and their families, numbering approximately 500,000 persons, are grateful that work is to be resumed on Thursday, the etrikers have still to learn what their reward will be. President Roosevelt, having taken prompt action in calling the arbitrators together for their first meeting on Friday, the miners hope they will know by Thanksgiving day what practical gains they have made.

Vote Is Unnnimous.

The vote to resume coal mining was a manimous one, and was reached only ofter a warm debate. The principal ob jection to accepting the arbitration plan was that no provision was contained in the scheme to take care of those men who would fail to get back their old positions or would be unable to get work at all. The engineers and pumpmen get better pay than other classes of mineworkers, and they did not wish to run the risk of losing altogether their old places and being compelled to dig coal for a living. This question came up yesterday, and was argued right up to the time the vote was taken. No one had a definite plan to offer to overcome the objection, and the report of the committee on resolutions, recommending that the strike be declared off, and that all issues be placed in the hands of the arbitration commission for decision, was adopted without the question being settled. A few moments before adjournment, however, a partial solution was reached when a delegate in the furthermost corner of the hall moved that the problem be placed in the hands of the executive board for solution, and his suggestion was adopted.

Wilson Makes Principal Speech. The principal speech of the day was made by National Secretary-Treasurer Wilson, who practically spoke for President Mitchell and the National organization. In a strong argument he counseled the men to accept arbitration, the very plan the strikers themselves had offered, return to work and trust to the President's tribunal to do them justice. The question of taking care of all men who will fail to get work immediately will be a serious one for the union. There is no doubt that the executive boards will take care of the engineers, firemen and pumpmen, but there will be thousands of other classes of mineworkers who will have to be looked after. In some places men will not be able to get to work for weeks, and in other localities, where the mines are in very bad condition, there will be no employment for many workmen for some months. Now that the strike is over, the volume of relief money will decrease, and the local unions will be compelled to call upon the National organzation for assistance when the money in hand runs out. With the close of the great conflict will also end in a few days, probably with the passing of this week,

Some Men to Begin Work Today. Hundreds of men, needed to repair the mines and otherwise place them in condition for operation, will be at work tomorrow morning the convention having directed that this was imperative in order to get the men at work quickly and satisfy the country's demand for coal. members regarding their application for President Mitchell received many con gratulatory telegrams from all over the country after the news spread that the strike was ended. On his return to head-quarters, he was asked for an expression of his views of the action of the convention, and in reply he said: "I am well pleased with the action of the anthracite mineworkers in directing to submit the issues which culminated in the strike to the commission selected by the President of the United States,

"The strike itself has demonstrated the power and dignity of labor. Conservative, intelligent trade unionism has received an impetus the effect of which cannot be measured. I carnestly hope and firmly believe that both labor and capital have learned lessons from the miners' strike which will enable them to adopt peaceful, humane and business methods of adjust ing wage differences in the future."

OFFICIAL STATEMENT OF THE END. Mitchell Requests Strikers to Report for Work Thursday.

SUGAR FACTORY IS BURNED

Victims Were at Work on the Seventh Floor.

SOME JUMP AND MEET DEATH

Others Go to Windows, Look Out and Then Return to Their Fate-One Man Rushes Through Flames to Escape.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21 .- Five men are known to have lost their lives in a fire which tonight partly destroyed the plant of the Chicago branch of the Glucose Sugar Re-effort toward saving the 14-story buildin of the refinery, but so intense was the fire in the drying-house that this caught fire in several places, and although it was saved, it was badly damaged.

The men employed in the three lower floors of the drying-house ran for the floors of the drying-house ran for the floors and windows as soon as they had knowledge of the fire, and all of them succeeded in reaching the open air. On the third floor one man was at work. He was cut off from the fire escape by dense clouds of smoke, that poured through the bunding, and was compelled to make a run for his life down the stairs. He hurst through a mass of flames when the hurs' through a mass of flames when he reached the lower doorway, and was badly scorched. Two minutes later would have made it usterly impossible for him to make his escape.

No Chance for Their Lives.

The men on the seventh floor had no chance whatever for their lives. Several of them left the window and crawied along the sills in an effort to reach a place of safety, but with the exception of two men all those who attempted to reach safety in this way made up their minds that it was certain death, and went back into the burning building. The two men, however, remained to take their chance of a leap, and, climbing upon the window ledge, they sprang out into the air. One of them came straight down the greater part of the way, but just as he was within a short distance of the pavement his body swung around, and he struck the stone walk at full length. The other man turned over and over as he came whirling down. Their bodies were horribly man-gled, and it was impossible for any of the men who saw them directly after their jump to identify them in any way.

Four other men jumped from the windows on the fourth floor. These men were terribly injured, and were taken in police ambulances to the County Hospital. Two of them who were able to give their names to the police are Paul Butkos and Paul Kauris

HIS RAILWAY SCHEME FAILS

Total Obliteration Now Appears Probable.

DUE TO MISUNDERSTANDINGS

Morgan Makes a Bluff That He Is Not Pleased With the Trentment, and is Promptly Taken Up.

LONDON, Oct. 21.-A dramatic development in the fight for the control of London's tube railroads occurred today, when it transpired that Speyer Bros., who are financing Charles T. Yerkes' plan, had bought control of a large company hitherto allied with the Morgan scheme of transportation, thereby not only reducing the scope of the Morgan projected line by many miles, but actually threatening it with legal obliteration

The latest move in this Morgan-Yerkes rivalry was announced at teday's session of the House of Commons "tubes" committee. Sir Edward Clarke, as counsel for the London United Electric Railways, withdrew the bill providing for the construction of that part of the road covering the district westward, between Hammersmith and Piccadilly, and southward, between Clapham and the city. Morgan had originally intended to cover these points, as the London United already had certain powers from the amalgamation effected a year ago, and the Morgan project had passed through Parliament under the tile of the "London United Piceadilly & City Railroad." Balfour Browne, who is counsel for the joint bills, expressed surprise, in behalf of the Morgan interests, at Sir Edward Clarke's announcement, which left him scarcely half the length of the road over which he had an arguing for nearly a year, and raquested time to consuit his principals. Amid a sencution, the committee adjourned.

Morgan Will Still Fight. Mr. Browne then announced that Morgan was ready to go on with such roads as he had left, namely between Piccadilly and the city, and that he would take ctunity to introdu new bill, asking for the powers which he had so unexpectedly been deprived of by the defection of the London United. Counsel representing the Yerkes interests demanded that the Ficadlily & City Road also be withdrawn, as it had no legal status, saving been presented to Farliament as part of the London United scheme, which since this morning was nonexistent, in other words declaring that Morgan now had no legalized tube project at all.

Counsel for Morgan demanded a verdict on this point from the whole House of Commons, saying the committee was not entitled to deal with the new state of affairs. The chairman, Sir Lewis McIver, after a long consultation with the other members of the committee, said he would have to report the circumstances to the House authorities, and postponed his decision until Thursday.

Yerkes' Coup Explained. The Associated Press learns that a curious chapter of misunderstandings led up The promoters of the London United say that, although they were willing to pool their interests with Morgan, they believe they are better fitted to control the traffic management of an English line than the American firm. Sir Clinton Dawkins, a partner in the house of J. P. Morgan & Co., through whom the negotiations were onducted, refused to agree to this, and the United officials then demanded control of the arrangements of their own section of the line, which was also denied in a way, it is hinted, that people took to be slighting, and Sir Clinton went to the United States. It is intimated that the promoters were indignant at what they considered to be their ill treatment, and cabled Mr. Yerkes, effering him the road. Mr. Yerkes thereupon cabled them to go to the Speyers, and shortly after Mr. Yerkes returned the Speyers bought up the road, thus blocking Morgan's scheme.

"J. Pierpont Morgan has met his secend defeat in this country within a month," says the Star. "The first was the subsidy, the second was the smush-up of his great London 'tube' scheme."

England Glad of Morgan's Defeat. LONDON, Oct. 22.-The fight for the control of London's "tube" railroads has caused a very unusual amount of comment and discussion in the London news papers this morning. On the whole, satisfaction seems to be felt at the discomfiture of the Morgan group, whose expenses in pushing their bill through Par-liament are estimated to approach $500,000

The Daily News says: "Under the new conditions the more modest schemes of the British promoters may have better chances of success, On all sides the necessity is some central advisory authority to deal with the transit needs of London, instead of the present chaotic procedure.
