

END OF HOP FUTURES

Burnett Decision Will Put a Stop to Contracting.

WILL BENEFIT THE INDUSTRY

Local Market Strong. With Sales Above 25 Cents—German Markets Are Advancing—Salmon in the East.

Nothing has created so much interest in the hop market in ten years as the decision of Judge Burnett at Salem in the Backhaus case, in which he held that the contracts were not enforceable. Steps have already been taken to appeal the case to the State Supreme Court, but it may go to the court of last resort. It is believed that not more than one-tenth of the contracts are yet undelivered, so the effect of the decision will not be great from a monetary point of view. Had the case been decided in favor of the State Supreme Court, the hop market would be a different story to tell. The dealers who will be principally affected are those who hold undelivered contracts and have in turn contracted with consumers or other dealers to deliver hops at prices below the present market value. However, the number of those caught short is probably not large.

The main effect of the decision will be to put a stop to contracting in the future. As far as the majority of the trade is concerned, they are not sorry for it. A large proportion of the business this year has been done in the future, and the hop market is always subject to manipulation.

The Portland market yesterday was not so active as last week, though the feeling was just as strong. A number of sales were made at 25 cents, and one lot of 70 bales at Wood's changed hands at 25 1/2 cents. Thirty bales were sold at Silverton at a high price, but the figures were not divulged. A Portland dealer offered 26 cents for one small lot and 26 1/2 cents for another, both fancy hops, but the offers were not taken, the growers holding firm. Private advices reported German and New York State markets improving. German markets being 1 cent higher. Brewers are not taking hold freely yet.

Receipts at this point hold up to the average. It is estimated that there are today 20,000 bales of hops in Portland in storage. Shipments to date amount to 15,000 bales.

Hops at New York.
NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(Special.)—Hops held firm, with moderate buying on brewers' account. German markets have been active and higher, prices showing a gain of 5 marks. Coast wires report sales of Sacramento at 24 1/2 cents.
