

WHERE THE HOGS GO

Status of Industry in Columbia Basin.

PORTLAND DOESN'T GET ALL

Larger Price Paid by Seattle Packers

More hogs from the Upper Columbia Basin are marketed at Puget Sound than come to Portland. The demand to the northward is so brisk that the producers receive a quarter of a cent more a pound, live weight, from Seattle packers than from Portland buyers, and the Seattle men send agents to the farmers and pay for the hogs on the ground, while in the case of Portland the hogs are bought on delivery at the stockyards or abattoir. In nearly all cases there is admitted to be great profit in hograising. Notwithstanding the home production, large quantities of cured hog products are shipped in from the Eastern packing centers and sold in the local field.

Live hogs are sold for less than the Eastern price and sent away, and hams, bacon and lard are imported for home consumption. Adequate packing-houses in the Pacific Northwest would do away with this waste, and build up a very large industry here.

ALL COME TO PORTLAND.

Hog Industry of Grand Ronde and Wallowa Valleys.

LA GRANDE, Or., Nov. 11.—(Special.)—Kiddie Bros. handle virtually all the hogs shipped out of here. For the last year they have shipped 15 carloads a month to the Union Meat Company at Troutdale. There are about 50 head in a car, hence the aggregate is in the neighborhood of 1,500 head. All this number does not come from the Grand Ronde Valley alone, but about half comes from Wallowa. Recently, Kiddie Bros. are buying 1500 pigs out from Wallowa, driving some of them a distance of 70 miles, and Ed Willard brought out 150 head.

There have been no packing hogs shipped East from La Grande since 1901. Every year since that time the hogs have been shipped at Portland, and at Omaha, until this year, when Omaha prices are a little above Portland. The top price at Omaha being 8.1 and at Portland 7.5 cents a pound. The hogs shipped from here are almost all intended for packing, and the contracts usually call for hogs weighing 150 pounds and upward.

The local market requires the packing of local butchers of perhaps 400 to 500 head of hogs each season, and the other towns of this valley as many more. Some of the local packers say they find it hard to compete with Eastern packed meat. It seems strange that this should be so, when hogs are higher in the East than here, and, of course, freight rates are added to the price of the cured meat brought here. Some excuse may be found in the fact that the by-products in the Eastern establishments serve to lessen the cost of packing, and these products are wasted by small packers here. Much Eastern cured meat is shipped into Wallowa Valley, whence come so many hogs each year.

There is little prospect for increase of production of hogs in this region, and indeed next year will probably see a slight decrease. High-priced wheat makes the cost of wintering too great, and when wheat reaches a price of 200 cents a bushel a pound, the farmers commence to sell their stock hogs. Kiddie Bros., who have 2000 head of stock hogs, are negotiating for the sale of about 2000 head. These stock hogs will probably go East, possibly to T. B. Hard, of Central City, Neb., who has bought many hogs from this section.

HOGS BROUGHT FARMERS $131,482.

Few From Whitman County Came to Portland—The Prospect.

COLFAX, Wash., Nov. 11.—(Special.)—Large shipments of hogs are being made from Whitman County points, and the demand is brisk, while the price remains at a good figure, although there has been a decline of nearly 1 cent per pound from the high prices prevailing during the harvest. Shippers are paying $5 to $6 per 100 pounds for hogs now, and the supply does not equal the demand. Stock hogs are in high demand at high prices, but there are few offered for sale.

This has been a good year for farmers who have hogs for sale. The price has been high ever since the first of the year, and there has been no prospect of raising hogs. Since January 1 shippers at Colfax have shipped from this and neighboring towns 130 carloads of hogs. Each car contains an average of 200 hogs, making the total number shipped by Colfax firms 10,400 hogs. For this number the shippers paid the farmers $131,482.40.

Of these shipments about 50 per cent went to Seattle, which is the principal market for this country. The remainder were divided between Spokane and the Coeur d'Alene and British Columbia mining districts. Spokane gets about 10 per cent of the total shipments. Portland got but three carloads of the entire lot. About one-half of the hogs shipped here were for packing, and the remainder were "block" hogs and animals packed about 200 hogs since January 1.

Shippers say the prospects for an increase in the number of hogs for next year is not very bright, and some expect to exceed 25 per cent, while many say it will not exceed 10 or 15 per cent. This, they say, is due to the fact that the price has been so high farmers have fattened their young hogs and animals that otherwise be saved for breeding purposes and rushed them onto the market. This leaves a shortage for breeding stock for next year. This will also prevent the usual number of large hogs being marketed this Fall and Winter. Shippers say there are few large hogs in the country, and light hogs, which would usually be used for block purposes, will be packed, because there are no heavy hogs to be had.

WALLA WALLA SHIPS 1000.

Seattle the Best Market From That Section.

WALLA WALLA, Nov. 11.—(Special.)—The industry of raising and shipping hogs from this point is growing steadily, and the market is supplied with choice animals. Poland China hogs taking the lead, a few Berkshire and Chester Whites being raised to good advantage. The number of hogs shipped during the last year exceeded 1000 head. The best market is Seattle, prices averaging a quarter of a cent a pound higher than the Portland or Tacoma market, the freight rate being the same. Five hundred hogs a month are used for the local market, in both block and packing hogs, the weight running from 155 to 225 pounds. The State Penitentiary uses about 200 head a year. The rest will in all probability use about as many. The majority of those shipped were block hogs, but many were fine enough for packing. There are but few individual raisers on a large scale, besides the Blalock Fruit Company, which has on hand more than 600 head all the time. The general outlook is good. Many hog-tight fences are being erected and many acres of alfalfa planted.

HOGS IN UMATILLA COUNTY.

Business Small but Profitable, and Increasing—5000 Sold This Year. PENDLETON, Nov. 11.—(Special.)—Raising hogs in Umatilla County has hardly risen to the dignity of an industry, at least when compared with wheat, sheep, cattle and horse production. An average crop of 4000,000 bushels of wheat, and an annual production of 100,000 sheep, 5000 hogs, which is about the number sold this year by Umatilla stock raisers, seems rather insignificant. The last assessment list shows 10,000 horses and mules and 18,000 cattle in the county, having an aggregate value of $750,000, the sheep, not counting any of the horses, mules and cattle, the hogs are assessed at only $1700. Swine-raising is not general among the farmers. Many of them raise a few for family use and occasionally they market a wagon load. There are also a number of persons who make a special business of growing hogs.

One of the chief discouragements to the raising of the hogs in the county. Most of the land is in wheat, having cattle-proof, but not hog-proof, fences. A great deal of the wheat land is without water, or so remote from that that it is turned out upon the stubble do not thrive. Hence an enormous quantity of valuable feed goes to waste yearly. But along the Umatilla River and its tributaries, Birch, Butter, McKay, Wild Horse and other creeks, on the Walla Walla River, in the east end of the county, and about Pilot Rock, and in Camas Prairie, in the southern part of the county, many hogs are raised partly upon alfalfa, partly on wheat and corn, and a very great increase in production is not only possible, but probable, in the future. Several enterprising men, stimulated by the present high prices for hogs, have recently embarked in hograising on an extensive scale, and with the finest breeds of Poland China seem to give the best results in this county.

During this year there have been shipped from this county about 1200 hogs. All of them, except about 200, went to Puget Sound, for the reason that Puget Sound buyers paid 1/4 of a cent more per pound than Portland, while freight rates were about equal. The rest went to the county almost all went from Pendleton and were suited for packing and the local market. Pendleton, however, has no money in the market, and its trade is not ascertained, about 2500 hogs, the product being used at Pendleton and within a radius of about 50 miles from this city. Besides this 12 carloads of pork were shipped to the coast, and a shipment from Omaha and Kansas City this year.

A curious divergence of opinion as to the profit of hograising in Umatilla County exists. Those engaged in the business at Pendleton, and who feed their hogs largely on swill gathered in the city at no expense, except hauling, say that there is no money in it. This opinion may be somewhat prejudiced because of the bad luck some of them have had within a year or two, hundreds of their hogs, as well as many on McKay Creek, near here, having died of some disease like cholera. This loss may account for the deficiency in profits. As this disease has been stamped out by quarantining, the coming year may tell a different story as to profit and loss.

Hograisers in other parts of the county say that at present prices the business is extremely profitable, and that they attain large proportions in a short time. A. L. Swaggart, of Athena, kept a careful record during the past year of the cost of maintenance of his herd of swine. Starting with 70 hogs last Fall, he fed them wheat of the value of $17, sold $1800 worth this season, and still has 100 hogs left. Besides the wheat fed to these hogs he raised 100 bushels of alfalfa. Thomas J. Kirk, also of Athena, raises many hogs, using corn, which he raises, in addition to wheat and stubble for his hogs. He says the business is profitable. W. Adams, agent of the W. & C. R. R. at Pendleton, has a band of blooded stock near Pilot Rock. He says he bought six hogs for $45 each last year and sold them for $100 each. He says the sum sufficient to pay for the keep of 60 others during the year. He uses wheat and runs the hogs on alfalfa. He considers the business very profitable. John L. Crowe, a wheat farmer six miles east of Pendleton, maintains a large herd on wheat stubble and wheat, and says there is money in it. Ex-Judge James A. Fee, of this city, had a herd of 200 hogs in 1897 and 1898. "What was then worth about 20 cents a bushel. He fed his hogs chiefly on corn brought from Nebraska, and in spite of the high price of wheat and the cost of freight on corn he realized a handsome profit from the business. He considers hograising one of the best-paying occupations in this section.

It is noticeable that outside of the immediate vicinity of Pendleton the hogs in this county have been absolutely free from disease. From all reports from various parts of the county it is safe to say that with the price of pork at anywhere near the present figures, 6 to 8 cents a pound on the hoof, hog production in this county will increase materially. Many persons who now raise hogs or cattle exclusively can grow large bands of hogs without interfering with their other stock business.

Makes Wheat Bring $1 a Bushel.

WESTON, Nov. 11.—(Special.)—Hograising has not as yet assumed the proportions of an industry in this locality, where wheat absorbs the attention of farmers, but more hogs are being grown, and better breeds are being introduced. A marked increase is expected each year by those in a position to know, as hog-raising has been proved very profitable by the few who have tried it. The prominent breeder, A. L. Swaggart, who turns out 200 head of Poland China hogs annually, says that he realizes 10 per bushel net for the hogs he raises.

Shipments from the Weston and Athena neighborhoods are expected to aggregate 12 carloads this Fall. All former shipments were made to Seattle and Tacoma. Growers explain that the Puget Sound dealers will send their agents to examine and receive small lots, while Portland dealers decline to adopt this method, quoting prices on hogs delivered at Portland. The growers prefer to complete the transaction on the spot, and give this as their reason for shipping over the Washington & Columbia River Railroad out of Athena.

Weston has no packing facilities, and block hogs are consumed locally. A few farmers cure their own meat, but a large amount of ham and bacon is shipped to this locality.

Must Deal With Blalock Farm.

WALLA WALLA, Nov. 11.—City Attorney H. S. Blalock has decided that the residents of College Place must bear their grievances with the Blalock fruit farm, and not with the City of Walla Walla. In regard to the closing of the sewer ditch which empties on the Blalock farm, the City of Walla Walla Council placed the matter in the hands of the health of the citizens of College Place.

New Postoffice at Simcoe.

NORTH YAKIMA, Wash., Nov. 11.—(Special.)—A new postoffice has just been established at Simcoe, on the Northern Pacific, 11 miles below here. The name given is Wapato, the Indian name for potato. The postmaster is Mrs. Alexander McCredy, the wife of the post trader. The place is on the Yakima reservation, but many whites live in the vicinity.

NO CAPOT THIS YEAR

OLYMPIA STATEHOUSE CAN NOT BE COMPLETED.

Steel Trusses Cannot Be Furnished in Time—Legislature Will Probably Meet in Frame Building.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Nov. 11.—(Special.)—Secretary Garrison, of the Capitol Commission, received a letter today from the American Bridge Company, which is making the steel trusses for the Capitol annex, which removes the last hope that the building can be made ready for the coming session of the Legislature. The steel trusses will not be shipped from the mills at Pittsburgh until the last of November, and it is estimated that they will not arrive until about the opening time of the Legislature. Attorney-General Stratton in an opinion delivered to the Capitol Commission today holds that the powers and duties of the commission extend no further than the construction of the new building, and that it devolves upon the Secretary of State to furnish a suitable place for the Legislature to meet in, now that the completion of the new building is found to be impossible. Secretary of State Nichols says the old frame building that has been used by the Legislature since the '50s is in a very bad state of repairs. It will need new underpinning and a one-story addition must be built in order to provide properly for the increased membership in the Legislature. In view of the facts and the out-of-way location of the old Capitol and its unsanitary condition, an attempt will be made to secure another building. A frame building, which is being erected, and which is now used by the Adjutant-General as an arsenal and supply depot, is under consideration. The latter is large enough and it would be possible to use these furniture purchased for the new building. The time is short for consideration, as the Legislature convenes January 1, and repairs and alterations to use there, no matter what building is chosen.

FLOCK OF SHEEP DROWNED.

Rising Waters of Sacramento River Surround the Animals.

COLUSA, Cal., Nov. 11.—J. Frates, a stockraiser of Tehama County, lost his whole flock of sheep, numbering 2000, by drowning this morning, in Pratt Bend, near Princeton, this county. The flock was in the care of herders, who failed to notice the water was raising rapidly until evening, then they got the sheep together, but the sheep refused to drive on account of the darkness, and water had risen so decided to wait for daylight, but had to desert the sheep and flee from the rapidly rising water. When daybreak came the flock was found on the whole flock had been drowned. The flock was valued at $10,000. Another flock of 1500, owned by Mr. Hoke, is surrounded by water on the East Side. There are grave fears that this flock will also be drowned unless the water commences to recede soon. The farmers on the East Side lost $25,000 worth of Egyptian corn by water. The Sacramento River now stands 25 feet above low water and slowly rising.

BOY SEVERELY BITTEN.

Bulldog Is Bitten Insensible With a Hammer.

NORTH YAKIMA, Wash., Nov. 11.—(Special.)—Word has just reached this city of a shocking accident to the 10-year-old son of R. Langevin, a rancher, living in this county. It is reported that the boy had, with another child, was playing with a bulldog belonging to a neighbor, last Friday. The animal became enraged at something and seized the boy by the calf of the leg. The father came to the boy's assistance and tried to pry the jaws of the animal open. Finding this barren of results, with the dog chewing the boy's leg, the father got a hammer and beat the dog's head until it was unconscious. Rude instruments, like scissors, were used to dress the boy's lacerations, and a part of the calf had to be cut away. While this surgical operation was in progress the animal regained consciousness. The hammer was again called into requisition, until the dog was dead. The boy will probably be a cripple for life.

CHANGE OF LIFE.

Some sensible advice to women passing through this trying period. The painful and annoying symptoms experienced by most women at this period of life are easily overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is especially designed to meet the needs of woman's system at the trying time of change of life.

It is no exaggeration to state that Mrs. Pinkham has over 5000 letters like the following proving the great value of her medicine at such times. "I wish to thank Mrs. Pinkham for what her medicine has done for me. My trouble was change of life. Four years ago my health began to fail, my head began to grow dizzy, my eyes pained me, and at times it seemed as if my back would fall me, had terrible pains across the kidneys. Hot flashes were very frequent and trying. A friend advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken 5 bottles of it and am today free from those troubles. I cannot speak in high enough terms of the medicine. I recommend it to all and wish every suffering woman would give it a trial." WARM SCORING FOR SEARS.

CROOK COUNTY UP IN ARMS OVER HIS IRRIGATION ARTICLE.

Reference to Representative Williamson Termed an Unwarrantable Slander.

PRINEVILLE, Or., Nov. 11.—(Special.)—Crook County is taking a lively interest in the irrigation meeting to be held in Fort Crook, Nov. 18, and will have over 40 delegates in attendance. At a mass meeting of the citizens held in the Courthouse last Saturday evening Judge G. W. Barnes declared his opposition to the proposition, which was unanimously indorsed.

Whereas, a person signing himself Alfred F. Sears, C. E., Soc. C. E., M. Nat. Soc. C. E. of Prineville, Ore., has secured the publication of a letter in The Daily Oregonian of November 8, 1902, wherein he has, without cause, reason or justification, made charges against the honor, integrity, manhood, good intentions and efforts of the Hon. J. N. Williamson, Congressman-elect, and also against the honor and public spirit of the people of Crook County, Oregon, in his and their efforts to secure the reclamation of arid lands by the United States Government in Eastern Oregon:

Now, therefore, we, the people of Crook County, in a mass meeting assembled, denounce said letter as a willfully false, malicious and unwarranted slander, and an attack on both the honor of J. N. Williamson and the people of this county, wholly unsupported by facts. Resolved, further, that the statements of the said Alfred F. Sears as to the intention of his scurrilous tirade comprising bringing these lands under irrigation are absolutely and willfully false, and that the only hold-up of public funds in this county, which hold-up is called for, and without right, and to the detriment of the speedy settlement of this county, is by the said Alfred F. Sears, who is employed by the said Sears, viz.: The Oregon Development Company and the Pilot Butte Development Company.

Resolved further, that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to The Oregonian for publication, and that the citizens of Crook County, in a mass meeting assembled.

DR. TALCOTT & CO. 250 1/2 ALDER STREET.

MRS. MAY WHITTAKER, SAVANNAH, GEORGIA.

President Savannah Woman's Improvement Club.

No. 604 Thirty-ninth Street, West. SAVANNAH, GA., May 14, 1902.

There are but few families that have not from time to time seen out illness in the home. At such times the first question is what is the safest and quickest way to regain the health of the sufferer. In my home and among women relatives and friends we have come to the conclusion that doctors are an expensive luxury. Their prescriptions may sometimes relieve, but for real, permanent cure I know of nothing which I can so surely depend upon as Wine of Cardui. It must be a skillfully prepared medicine for it seems to answer in time to time serious women's complaints peculiar to women. I learned of its value personally three years ago when two bottles cured me of periodical pains, and I was so pleased with the results that I recommended it to a number of friends. I have known of severe cases of inflammation and ulceration which were cured in a few weeks by the faithful use of this remedy. For the general toning up of the system it has no superior; and if tired out, sick women would use one or two bottles of Wine of Cardui instead of dragging wearily through weeks of suffering it would not only be sure to cure them but they would avoid the serious results we daily see around us caused by neglecting nature when she cries out for relief and succor.

The nominal cost of this remedy compared to doctors and prescriptions is another great item worthy to be considered, especially as in my opinion the results with your remedy are far surer and more lasting. Being firmly convinced of its superior medicinal value I heartily recommend it.

May Whittaker.

Mrs. Whittaker is a highly intellectual woman, and as president of a prominent Savannah woman's organization her words are worth consideration. She has made up her mind that doctors are an expensive and often unnecessary luxury, and that Wine of Cardui is a medicine that can be depended on. Besides being surer and more lasting as a remedy the trifling cost of Wine of Cardui commends this great remedy to every suffering woman. If every woman in the land today would study existing conditions as Mrs. Whittaker has studied them she would come to the same conclusion regarding Wine of Cardui. Every woman has friends who have paid doctors bills for years with no particular result. Many families have been dragged down to poverty in this way. At the same time over a million women have secured health by taking Wine of Cardui, purchased from druggists at a nominal cost. Wine of Cardui cures menstrual disorders and drives weakness from the female system. You can get the same good health as Mrs. Whittaker by securing a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui today.
