Bark Reported in Distress Off Shelter Cove.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18 .- Southeast gales and immensely high and rough sea, made the trip of the United States Survey steamer Gedney from Puget Sound an arduous undertaking. The vessel ar-rived in port today, six days from Port Angeles, and Captain Dickins reported that at times the engines of the Gedney were barely able to hold her head to the terrific gales. After rounding Cape Flattery the brunt of the weather was experi-enced. For four days the little steamer battled against the tremendous seas and was frequently engulfed before reaching Cape Blanco. On November 17, 20 miles southwest of Shelter Cove, the Gedney sighted a large unknown bark standing in shore on the starboard tack. The bark was flying signals of distress, which could not be made out on account of passing squalls, and her wants could not there-fore be ascertained.

The Pacific Coast Steamship Company's City of Puebla arrived today, 63 hours Victoria. She encountered head from winds and heavy seas all the way down the coast. Her decks were awash from the time she rounded Flattery until she reached the Golden Gate. Although some of the crew were bruised and shaken nobody sustained any serious injury.

Young Corbett showed intimate acquaintance with the family affairs of the elder Corbett. Corbett told the Spo-kane police he was a high liver, and his money went fast; hence it was necessary to do a little rough gambling. After his departure from Kendrick a lack sateen shirt was found in his root with the back cut out. It was then remembered that Saturday night, October 31, a house of ill-fame in the lower part of Kendrick had been robbed of a small sum of money, two masked men holding up the inmates of the place with drawn revolvers.
