The feature of the November shipping business was the enormous shipments of wheat and flour to South Africa. During the month Fortland dispatched for the Dark Continent four cargoes, while a fifth vessel, the British ship Glenesslin, is in the stream with a full cargo aboard ready to clear today. The four vessels which cleared for Cape of Good Hope ports carried 48,741 barrels of flour and ports carried 48,741 barrels of flour and 189,498 bushels of wheat, or in wheat measure over 400,000 bushels. European grain shipments for the month were cut down quite materially by the nonarrival of a number of ships which had been chartered for November loading. The flour shipments were also cut down by the delayed arrival of the Oriental liner Indravelil, which had space engagements for over 10,000 barrels for November shipment. The shipments to San Francisco were the largest for any month since 1898. This was due to one large catgo of 180,000 bushels that was sent down on the 160,000 bushels that was sent down on the San Mateo for reshipment to Europe from San Francisco. Shipments of oats to San Francisco were also very heavy, over 147,-000 bushels going down by the coasting steamers. Barley shipments to San Francisco were but 7000 bushels, but the G. W. Wolff was cleared for Queenstown or Falmouth for orders with 125,26% bushels of

The month's shipments bring the total from Portland for the season to date since July 1 to 3,864,623 bushels of wheat and 256,628 barrels of flour. The totals for the corresponding period a year ago were; Wheat, 5,169,834 bushels; flour, 366,611 bar-

The arrival of a large fleet of chartered abled Scattle and Tacoma to make a very good showing for the month. The exports of wheat from the two cities were as follows: To Europe, 966,515 bushels; Africa, 195,712 bushels; San Francisco, 1525 bushels; Australia, 93,566 bushels. Flour shipments from Puget Sound broke all former records, over 200,000 barrels going out, of which 162,617 barrels were for the Orient. and the remainder to South Africa, South America and San Francisco, The total shipments from Puget Sound for the season to date amount to 4,045,494 bushels of wheat, compared with 4,294,029 bushels for the same period last year, and 720,913 barreis of flour, compared with $63,683 barrels for the same date last year. The total shipments from Oregon and

Washington for the first five months of the cercal year (flour included) are 12,812.-219 bushels. The comparison with former seasons for the same period is as fol-

These figures show in a striking manner the rapid movement of the 1862 crop. The crop of 1801 was the largest on rec-ord, and was fully 7,000,000 bushels great-er than that of 1802, but the movement of the latter crop for the first five months of the season is within about 500,000 bushels of that of the previous year, when the largest crop on record was to be handled. December shipments will be more than louble those of November, there being 17 ships already in sight for loading at Port-land this month, while some of the disengaged ships here will probably be added number before the end of the The December fleet will be ploand the British ship Glenesslin, both of which are in the stream loaded, and will prob; bry clear today.

FATE OF THE VENTNOR. Further Particulars of the Loss of a Well-Known Pacific Trader.

Further details of the loss of the steam-hip Ventnor, reported in telegraphic advices a few days ago, were received in this city yesterday. The steamer had a cargo of over 6000 tons of coal in addition to the bodies of 500 Chinese that were being taken back to the Orient for burial. Afte striking the rock as reported in the dispatches, the steamer was kept going for more than 24 hours, but at 9 P. M., October 28, became unmanageable and began sinking so fast that all hands were ordered into the boats. There was barely time to get clear before the ship sank. Hokianga Heads light was seen at a distance of 16 miles. Two boats, containing the chief officer, second and third engineers, and 14 of the crew, landed at Oma pere Beach at daylight this morning. Another boat is also reported to be safe, but the other boat, in which was Captain Ferry, her master, the third mate and 11 sea-men, was lost with all in it. The bont was the last to leave the sinking steamer, and picked up the captain and mate, who jumped from the steamer into the sea as she was foundering. The boat was unable to get clear of the vortex of the sinkin sel, and was drawn down with her. On essel, and was drawn down with her one out's crew was rescued by the steamer Energia, which like the Ventnor was for merly in North Pacific water, being chartered by the Dodwell line for their Oriental service. They are first of all packed in airtight zinc cases for their long journey, then put in strong wooden sheathes, and afterwards covered with layers of sawdust and tar.

SANTA PAULA IN PORT.

with steam from the tug was attached, and the work of transferring the cargo from the barge to a tank on the dock was soon under way. This is apparently a very economical method for handling fuel, for the big force of men that are required to discharge a coal ship were missing, one man apparently doing about all the work that was necessary to keep the stream flowing.

The Rescue was one of the first ocean tugs to be fitted with off-burning appar-atus, and on her present trip found it quite a convenience in more ways than one. While coming into the river, the waves ran so high that she made use of waves ran so high that she made use of some of her fuel to break their force, the operation being highly successful. The agents of the Santa Paula expect to establish a permanent oil depot here and when a few more boats are fitted with machinery for using the new fuel, a barge will be kept constantly in service between this city and the oil ports. city and the oil ports.

MARSEILLES, Nov. 30.—The strike at this port, which was started last week by the strikers' efforts to obtain an in crease in wages, is now practically com plete as regards the steamers here. Discharging Sugar at That Port. The Austrian steamship Klek, under charter to T. M. Stevens & Co., to load in this city for Africa, arrived at Vancouver, B. C., last Briday. She has aboard 5000 tons of sugar from Pekalongan and Sourabaya, and made a long passage across the Pacific. After securing her cargo, she went to Moif for coal, and got away from the Japanese port November 5. She had a very stormy passage across, and her speed was retarded more by tremendous seas than by unfavorable winds. A full outward cargo for the Klek is awaiting her in this city, and she will get here in ample time to help swell the December ship-ments from Portland to South Africa. The Klek will be the third big steamer dispatched by Stevens & Co. for South Africa this season, the first one, the Elba, goling from Portland about two months ago, and the Java, now bound out from Puget Sound. The Klek will take a mixed cargo, flour and wheat predominating, al-though she will also carry several hundred thousand feet of lumber.

MACRIHANISH THE SCORCHER.

Well-Known Columbia River Trader Sails a Tie Race With Steamer.

The British ship Macrihanish which, with the single exception of the Caithloch, has to her credit the fastest passage ever made by a sailing vessel between the Co-lumbia River and Europe, has again dis-tinguished herself by sailing an even race with a steamer in a 25-day run. The Mac-rihanish sailed from Aigoa Bay the same day as the steamer Tongariro sailed from Cape Town; and arrived at Wellington, N. Z., the same day that the steamer arrived at Auckland, both vessels making the run in 25 days. The wonderful run of the Macrihanish from the Columbia River was made about 12 years ago, and she covered the distance from Astoria to Queenstown in 91 days, or but two days slower than the Caithloch's record, which has re-mained unchallenged for nearly 30 years. The Macribanish has not been in Portland Harbor for five years, but loaded salmon on the Fraser two years ago, and caused great excitement by fettisoning salmon, which were picked up on

NEW SEALING GROUNDS.

Japanese Senler Strikes a Rich Preserve and Secures Over 600 Skins,

In the annual report of the British Con In the annual report of the British Con-sul at Hokadate, which is published in Japanese papers received by the Steamer Indravelli, the following particulars are given regarding the sealing industry in Japanese waters. The report says: "The scaling season off the Japanese Coast during the year 1901 was marked by a slight decrease in the average number of skins taken per ship, owing to an increase in the number of the sealing fleet, but the in the number of the scaling fleet, but the total catch for the year was larger than in 1900. The feature of the year's hunting was the catch of the schooner Kaiwo Maru, of Tokyo. This vessel found seals off the coast of Korea and Siberia, and in the short space of 15 days succeeded in taking 642 skins of superior quality. Scals have been seen at various times in the Japan Sen, but this is the first time they have been hunted there. The new grounds are supposed to hold mere seals, and practically the whole scaling fleet for this year (1962) has sailed for the purpose o hunting there."

RUSHING THE INDRAVELLA. Stormy Day on Water Front Did Not

Delay Work on Oriental Liner. It was a wild day on the river front yesterday, but neither wind or rain stayed the progress of Brown & McCabe's steve-dores who were loading the big Oriental liner Indravelli. An occasional heavy gust would split a tarpaulin used to cover the deck, but four gangs of men were kept busy all day sending freight into her paclous hold. The work of loading will be rushed and an effort made to get her away tonight or Tuesday morning, which would enable her to get out only a few days behind her schedule. She will carry out a full cargo, of which flour, as usual, will constitute the larger portion. The Indrapura, which is following her, is expected to reach Portland in time to get before the first of the year, and if she does Oriental flour shipments, for the last month of the year will be the largest People's Christian Union Spreads Its Doctrines.

Now It Has Branches in Other States "Love, Righteonsness, Truth," Is the Entire Creed of This Religious Movement.

"Love, righteousness, truth"-such is "Love, righteousness, truth"—such is the entire creed of the People's Christian Union, a religious movement of distinct-ly novel character, started in Portland last April. It is flourishing, and has al-ready several branches in other states. It has drawn into one body persons dis-satisfied with the established churches and those of such peculiar intellectual beliefs that they have never joined any of

The whole idea of making men good by law, threats, punishment or promises has been abandoned, and instead the true idea of life, to be good because it is noble and right to be good, holds full sway. The inception of the movement dates back several years. I and my advisers studied the causes of the failure of many religious movements, and found that these were largely due to the statement of a creed, or the control given by money, both of which have been eliminated in the Union, which is supported entirely by voluntary contribution. Though the Union is largely local as yet, it will not long remain so, for it seems to be directly in line with the tidal wave of spiritual and intellectual liberty which is sweepand intellectual liberty which is sweep-and intellectual liberty which is sweeping over the land.

"The tendency of our modern school system in eliminating religious instruction is to make religious integral units out of men and women, instead of the old-time denominations. Men are learning to think for themselves, instead of according to the ready-made doctrines of the denominations. Though the churches derry the lack of religion in the schools. decry the lack of religion in the schools, the modern system is the best mode of individual religious development."

the regular denominations. The Union is founded upon the principle that every one holds practically the same spiritual beliefs, and that the points of diversity are merely intellectual. By eliminating these questions, the members are drawn together by the common bond expressed in the creed of "love, righteousness, truth." The promoters of the Union believe that such a body may be success fully maintained if the points of doc-trine and church government upon which almost every Christian has individual views are never mentioned in the new organization. In short, the Union seeks unite men on those things upon which to unite men on those things upon which they naturally agree, rather than on those points about which they must eternally disagree.

A Thanksgiving dinner for all who might come was served in the hall of the Union yesterday afternoon, after the reg-ular service. In the interim the children played those time-honored games common to untrammeled children, and they were ournged to play them just as noisily as on a weekday, for the members do no hold to the old-time Puritanical Sabbath and believe that neither men nor children should act in a different manner on Sun day than they do on other days of the week. "This." they say, "avoids the hypocrisy of the other churches, whose mbers, in most cases, pull a long face on the Sabbath day, but go about their business on the other six without a thought of the lessons of the preacher's

The People's Christian Union is prob ably the first religious movement to claim Portland as its birthplace. It has a rapidly growing membership here, beside several branches in other states. The Union was formed last April, after extended correspondence with men all over the United StatesS who had been influthe United Statess who had been inhia-ential in religious movements of similar character. The replies received gave many reasons why various organizations had been forced to disband, and the rocks encountered by the other sects were tak-en into account, that the new organiza-tion might steef clear of those which wrecked so many of its predecessors. The People's Christian Union, Applied Christianity, was formally organized with the following officers: Rev. F. E. Coulter, minister; A. L. Keenan, president; Dr. Flora A. Brown, vice-president; T. G. Robison, secretary; Mrs. A. M. Purrier, treasurer: Stephen Brown and S. W. Parkleften directors. The physics "An-Rethlefsen, directors. The phrase "Applied Christianity" was added to indicate the character of the movement. It was stated in the constitution adopted that "no statement of intellectual religious belief shall ever be promulgated or become the test of any person's membership in this Union," it being held that a man's intellectual beliefs were his own private property, and that he has the inalienable right to be entirely free in this respect.

"This, indeed," said Rev. Mr. Coulter, yesterday, "is what the Union stands for: The intellectual and spiritual liberty of its members. It is believed that in purely spiritual matters the entire race one, and that in intellectual matters is as great a diversity of belief as there are individuals. Hence, the Union seeks to unite men o nthose things upon which they agree, rather than upon those things on which they cannot possibly agree. It is an attempt to give man liberty in the nonessentials of Christianity and unity in those things which all men recognize. So remarkable has been the result of this basis of action that one cannot but wonder at the absolute unity of all engaged, and the abandonment of all separating ideas, save those of the true inner life.

London Business at Standstill.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The situation on the Stock Exchange last week closed better than it began, which is saying very little. Business was almost at a stand-still in the early part of the week, owing to fears of gold exports to South America, advanced bond rate and serious trouble on settling day. All these fears came to naught, though there is still an expectation that at least $5,000,000 gold will be sent to South America, entailing a stringency in the money market about the end of the year. The general trade outlook is fairly good. Continental conditions have considerably improved, and the critics are inclined to take a more hopeful view of the situation in Wall street. There is no question that the impending payment by the International Mercantile Company has been used by the bear contingent as a threat to de press both the Stock Exchange and the money market. When that event has safely passed there seems no reason why trade should not wake up.

Oregon, Washington and California. "It is a great thing to be able to stand here after all these years spent in the stavice of the Master on the frontier. In 1845 I drove an ox team across the plains to Oregon, when William Roberts was superintendent of Methodist missions on this Coast. In 1846 I gave my heart to God at Salem and received a license to exhort. I did some work in Yamhill County and other places, and in 1848 I received a license to preach. Rev. Mr. Roberts came to me and said: 'You must go to the mines of California and tell the miners of the gospel.' I said I would go. At that time there was a great mining excitement in California, and hundreds were flocking to that state in search of gold. So with a horse I made my way superintendent of Methodist missions on were flocking to that state in search of gold. So with a horse I made my way to that state, and went into the mines. With my companion I worked in the mines during the week, taking out $100 per day, and on Sundays I preached to the miners in the groves. I was the first minister to preach to the miners in Callfornia. For six months I labored in this way when I went to what afterwards beway, when I went to what afterwards became San Francisco in 1849. In October of that year I commenced my work in San Francisco, preaching the first sermon san Francisco, preaching the first sermon ever preached in that place. I also organized the first class in that place. So, my friends, I have been a ploneer in this country for more than half a century. I do a little preaching now across the Columbia River, and recently I was asked to conduct an old-time meeting at New-berg. I consented. When we commenced I asked the choir to take seats in the we had no choirs, no organs, and very few hymn books in the days of this state. I learned the old hymns and the congregation sang as we used to sing when we only had the groves or our church, or some cabin of a pioneer gospel, but it was all powerful.

The old pioneer closed with an earnest appeal for more of the old-time zeal.

Rev. John Flinn, a pioneer of 1850, was ntroduced, and he made an earnest talk full of vigor and interest. Although Mr. Flinn is 35 years old, he enjoys good health and speaks with much of the force which he used when he was pioneering up and down the Willamette Valley and Washington. He said that he had been on the Coast 52 years and had given his heart to God 60 years ago.

"Why, with my great age," he said, "I feel young, strong and gay, for my heart is young and filled with the love of God." "Father" Hamshaw, although not an Oregon piqueer, was a ploneer of another conference, and spoke a few words in low voice, owing to his feeble condition. Rev. Mr. Hollingshead at the close said that such a service conducted by the veterans of the cross was inspiring. It was like the old-time fire and enthusiasm revived, which he said he feared had been lost. He pointed to the honorable serv-ice of the pioneer ministers, and declared that the church needed some of their enthusiasm, such as had been displayed in the classroom in the morning. At th conclusion of the services many from the congregation gathered at the platform to shake the hands of the ploneer veterans.

music by J. B. Herbert. There were about voices in the chorus, led by Mrs. Rose

The re ital was given under the auspices of the Men's Sunday Evening League, an or-ganization formed to increase the interest and effectiveness of the Sunday evening services in the church. Mrs. Drake was rganist and she played the accompani nents with excellent taste and judgment. The cantata is a really meritorious bit of writing, being simple in style and presenting no great difficulties in rendition, being designed to present the life of Jesus
