HOW OREGON WON

Livestock Men No Chance to Organize Opposition.

FORCES EARLY AND CONSTANT

Marvelous Supply of Apples, That Could Not Be Exhausted, Helped Us Win the Convention-All the Papers Were Friendly.

C. J. Millis, the man who got the Na-tional Livestock Association to come to Portland next year, arrived home from Fortiand next year, arrived nome from Kanses City yesterday morning. He was so wearled with the strenueus work of the campaign and the travel that he did not go to his office at all yesterday. But he was feeling good over the success of the Oregonians and the manner in which they won it, and he was willing to tell a reon it, and he was willing to tell a rewon it, and he was whang to ten a reporter how it was done. He deales that he was entitled to so large a share of the credit for bringing the livestock men to the Pacific Northwest. But others, remembering that he had been working a year toward this end and recognizing that he was the organizing and directing force of the whole Oregon campaign, insist that he shall have the honor.

In speaking of the trip and work of the Oregon delegation last evening, Mr. Millis

The story of 'how it was done' should properly be prefaced with a reference to the work accomplished in Chicago a year age, which had a most important bearing on the case and really paved the way to Kansas City results. But this might be ancient history and dry stuff, so we will pick up the thread en route with the Oregon delegation in its own Pullman, per-fecting an organization calculated to fecting an organization eniculated to strike terror to the hearts of the Philistines. We appointed a headquarters com-mittee systematically to work all hotels in the city wherever a delegation could be found; a delegation committee, to labor with our brethren from other states, in their official capacity, with a view to se-curing early and united support; a press committee, to pay special attention to reporters and with power to subsidize; a finance committee etc., etc. In this way the campuign was planned, the work epecialized and every man instructed.

"At Denver the entire delegation called on the newspapers and every paper of importance in the city surrendered to Oregon uncenditionally. We explained the occasion—not failing to enlarge upon the resources, opportunities and generally fav-orable conditions of Oregon. The results were very complimentary to our state. The Times secured a picture of our car and party, which appeared in its next freue. Denver is all right.

'We learned incidentally through the Associated Press of the death of our Congressman. Thomas H. Tongue. We were expecting him to join us and make the nominating speech. The delegation sent minating speech. The delegation sent message of condelence and sympathy

'Arriving at Kansas City Tuesday morning our party proceeded at once to its headquarters at the Coates House and went to work. Everything was ready for us. A large pleasant room on the ground floor had been prepared with banners and signs directing attention to its location. Badges, 'fruit, holly and Oregon grape were soon in evidence. Oregonians swarmed all over the place and the word soon passed that the West had broke loose. We found many old friends and made many new ones, callsting them all on our side,

"Before the close of the second day all opposition was presty well snowed under and it was our business to keep it there-also the badges were all gone and the supply of Oregon applee, which created such a furore and kept our headquarters thronged, were about exhausted. We sent out and hought back all the badges held. out and bought back all the badges beld by susceptible people. We also dispatched J. W. Balley and Richard Scott on a secret mission and on their return the apple boxes were again full of lovely red apples. If any of the delegation enter-tained a suspicion, it was effectually quieted by the smacking lips that still An-sisted. None such ever grew in Missouri. So the fame of the 'land of the hig red apples' was not allowed to diminish-and the run on our fruit continued withou Intermigation. Those ten boxes of Oregon apples fed a multitude of people.

"As eoon as practicable we called upor
the South Omaha delegation at their headquarters, stated our case and requested their support. This was pledged us by resolution and we scored 'tally one.' They were the first to give us official recogn tion and will not be soon forgotten. Utah, Montana. Wyoming. Celorado, Texas, Idabo and others followed, some early, others late, and it was then our business to keep up the interest and prevent stam-

"Our badges, unique and characteristic, were in great demand and very much in evidence. Every one carried or implied a pledge of support.

evening before the last day it looked pretty good to the tired Oregon-ians, but in order to provide against any ssible adverse combination-and efforts in that direction were continuous—we arranged for a number of prominent speakers immediately to support Portland's nomination as seen as it should be made. This list included the Hon. (Sockless) Jerry Simpson, of New Mexico; Hon. Frank P. Bennett, of Boston; Jesse Smith, of Utah; John Davis, of Idaho, and others from nearly every state in the Union. The idea was to smother any attempt to advance other claims. "Because of the untimely death of Hon. Thomas H. Tongue, who was to make the nominating speech for Portland, that duty devolved upon a member of the delega-tion, but before time for the final struggle Portland's strength was too great to con-test, and only half a dozen of these supporting voices were heard, when all op-position faded away, and amid great ap-plause and enthusiusm the convention de-clared for 'Portland next.'

"All the members of the delegation are equally deserving of mention in this work. All did their part and all contributed to the result. The patriarch was Richard Scott, of Multnomah, who steadied "the boys" and captured the ladles, while his holly and Oregon grape lasted. When these were gone F. B. Beach assumed the role of ladles, man and after the first day, the of ladies' man and after the first day the fair sex were his special charge. In this as in all other matters, Mr. Beach proved himself the right man in the right place and was constantly in demand. J. W. Halley looked after the moral welfare of the delegation and stood in the breach when others fell by the way. He was the delegation's 'war horse,' always reliable, his winning ways always effective. George Chandier and Douglas Belts di-vided the honors as to the handsome men With these to lead in their various specialties the rest of us jus

"At the press banquet a visiting speaker complimented Oregon on the clean feature of her fight. And Oregon has no occasion to blush for any act, word or condition of her representatives at Kansas City."

Most of the other members of the Oregon delegation will not return until next week or later. The badge which was so popular at Kansas City was a gold-colored ribbon with the main line, "Oregon," in plain silver let-ters, and below that "Portland next." This depended from a pin adorned with a pro-cess wrought of copper in verisimilitude of a vaquero subduing a bucking broncho. The rantankerous beast is in the air and the rider has his quirt raised over his head preparatory to "fetching" the animal a lick that will otherwise occupy his thoughts. Underneath in relief is this legend: "If he don't go to Oregon he don't

NOT ALL PLEASED.

With Anything Unfavorable to Catholic Men or Mensures.

PORTLAND, Jan. 20 - (To the Editor.) A very large number of Catholics read your valuable paper. For many acts of courtesy extended to us in the past we are grateful to you. But why is it that every now and then you administer to us in your editorial columns a nauseating journalistic emetic? That is just what you did in last Sunday's issue of The Oresonian. You gave us a foul smelling sick. gonian. You gave us a foul-smelling, sick-ening dose, and the label it bore was: "A Roman Catholic Republic." Not only have we absorbed the label, but we have also swallowed the whole miserable concoction, and, as a result, we have an acute case of intellectual cholera morbus. Yes, sir, we are genuinely sick, and since you have made us so, without any justifiable reason, we respectfully demand Mingled with some truth you have given to all your readers in that editorial a nasty admixture of error and slander. We are particularly surprised at your resurrection of one venerable falsehood. The Oregonian, the great, progressive Ore gonian, assumed the appearance of Rip Van Winkle when it presented to the pub-lic last Sunday that foul old calumny against the Jesuits embodied in these words: "The end jumifies the means." Truly we hoped that this ancient falsehood had been so deeply buried in the quagmires or fossil beds of exploded mis-representations that it could never again be found by any one who possessed any desire to be veracious. How often must we aver, declare and swear that the immoral teaching contained in the formula the end, instifics the means," is not, ever has been, and never will be a tenet of the Jesuita, nor of the Catholic church, of which they form an integral part? Again, the writer knows on the best of authority that The Oregonian has grossly misrepresented Archbishop Ireland when it stated, by implication at least, that he is not friendly towards our Catholic schools, if you will take the pains to send him a marked copy of the aforesaid editorial you will doubtless learn from himself just where he stands.

You present the Premier of Prance to your readers as a patriot, as a student of the Jesuits, as the possessor of orders received from the church. Why did you not add that he is a miserable old apostate, a traiter to that church to which owes so much? The truth is that he is the executor of one of the most in-fernal sacrileges that France has ever been guilty of-the expulsion of thousands of her best, her most innocent citizens in the persons of her exiled religious men and women.

Again you misrepresent when you say that these draw their religious authority from their own executives and not from Rome. It would take a small volume to answer properly all the misstate. ments and sinister implications contained in your offensive editorial.

We are puzzied to know whether we should attribute such articles to malice or to a lack of proper information. If prompted by the former there is no remedy in sight, and if they proceed from the latter cause, would it not be well to sult some well-posted living Catholic authority before giving us any more journalistic emetics like the one under

WANT RAILROAD CHANGED

M'MINNVILLE PEOPLE ASK FOR THE YAMBILL DIVISION.

Involves a Cut-Off Between La Payette and St. Joe-Matter Submitted to San Francisco.

McMinnville people want the Southern acific to abandon eight miles of the Yamhill division between La Fayette and Whiteson Junction, to build a mile and a half of new track to connect the Yambill division with the West Side division a St. Joe, and then to run all trains of both divisions through McMinnville. The matter has been discussed here and referred to the San Francisco officials of the South ern Pacific for action.

These two divisions of the Southern Paeific run almost parallel with each other for a long distance in Yamhill and Polk Counties. The company would never have built the two lines so close together, But the line that is now called the Yamhill the basis of the greatly reduced rat division of the Southern Pacific was built which led to the present investigation.

verton, up Silver Creek to the Mount Jef-ferson Pass, thence on by Prineville and up Crooked River out by Burns to the southeastern boundary line if necessary to transcontinental connections at Ogden A feeder from near Deschutes to its headwaters and on south to Klamath Falls. Another from near Crane, in Harney, to Weiner down the Malheur River, etc. The possibilities for an independent line having Portland for its terminus, with all its interest concentrated here, is thus feasible and the most desirable if it could be accomplished. Comment is unnecessary as to the possible development along this proposed route and its greater advantages as compared to others. Having given this matter thorough investigation and much attention in the past I there fore call attention to it at this time. W. T. BURNEY.

STICKNEY DEFENDS HIS CONTRACT. Gives a Vicious Jab at the Chicago Livestock Exchange.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.-At today's meeting of the Interstate Commerce Commission, A. B. Stickney, president of the Great Western road, appeared for the purpose of defending his action in making a ceven year contract with the big packers on the basis of the greatly reduced rates,

DOG OWNERS WILL MEET TONIGHT.

The bob white and California valley quail are considered the best birds for easful field trials, and it is with the object of obtaining about 200 dozen of these birds for Oregon that the dog owners of Portland will meet in the hall of the Oregon Mining Stock Exchange, in the Chamber of Commerce building, this evening. Plans will be discussed for the best method of securing and turning these birds loose in various parts of the state, and the general subject of field trials will be gone over.

Mr. Stickney's defense was coupled with was part of the system constructed by an attack upon the Chicago Livestock Ex-change and upon his competitors, classing the former as barnacles and the latter as dee" Reid. Subsequently the property fell into possession of the Oregon & California, and it is now under lease to the Southern Pacific, in which interest its the Chicago Livestock Exchange, he declared that company, whose assets were Yamhili division, and St. Joe, on the West clared that company, whose assets were a few chairs and an office desk, collected during 1800 commissions amounting to $3,-500,600, against an income of $2,401,506 re-ceived by the Union Stockyards Company, Side division, are on opposite sides of the Yamhili River, and the distance between them is less than two miles. erated in one interest it is thought by the McMinnville people that there can be no such importance that it does not fall un-der the jurisdiction of the local authori-ties. The effect on the charter of the railroad is the first thing to be deter-mined; whether the abandonment of eight miles of track of the old Oregonian Railroad would work injury to the franchise for other parts of the line. If that shall be found to be clear a survey will probably be ordered to ascertain just what the expense of making the connection between La Fayette and St. Joe would be and where the line would lie. Then the matter of the right of way would come in for consideration. If the McMinnville people can secure a right of way for the connection it will materially aid to bring about the change. It may be that the eight miles of track between La Fayette and Whiteson will not be abandoned, even if the connection be made at St. Joe and main trains run that way.

All those details are to be taken up in order if the authorities of the company decide to undertake the change. The ques-tion of more yard room in McMinnville will also be involved. There is no doubt

It is perhaps not too much to say that 'Charley's Aunt." which will be given an excellent production at the Baker Theater next week, starting with the usual matinee, is one of the funniest modern plays Its author is Brandon Thomas, and the its author is Brandon Fromus, and the play was performed 200 nights in New York, 150 nights in Boston, 100 nights in Philadelphia, and 150 nights in Chicago. The public does not seem to tire of the comedy. There are six complete love narratives, all charmingly told. Two young of pretty girls. One of the young fellows is expecting a visit from his millionaire aunt, whose home is in Brazil, and to a luncheon he has arranged for her reception the sweethearts are invited. They arrive on time, but the aunt does not, and a elegram from her explains that she has been delayed. The young men do not relish the idea of losing the companionship of the girls, so they induce a college chun to impersonate the aunt. He accordingly appears in the guise of the old lady from Brazil, and from that moment the fun waxes fast and furious. He kisses the girls in the presence of their beaux, and e is made love to and proposed to by a pair of elderly male rivals. But every-thing comes out straight in the end.
