They Will Now Consider Decision on Coal Strike.

LAST WORDS FOR THE MINERS

Darrow Closes His Argument by Appeal From Written to Moral Law—Severely Castigates Nonunion Men and New Jersey Laws.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13.—The Anthracite Coal Strike Commission, after being in continuous session for more than three months, closed its deliberations today with an all-day argument by Clarence S. Darrow in behalf of the miners.

The crowd that heard Mr. Darrow speak today was fully as great as that which listened to Mr. Baer and Mr. Darrow yesterday. He took up the entire time of both sessions, 2 1/2 hours.

Operators Would Be Masters. Mr. Darrow first discussed the cause of the strike. The responsibility for the coal famine, he said, rested with those who were responsible for the strike.

As to Nonunion Men. He then spoke of the nonunion men, whom he termed "scabs." These men, he said, have always been hated.

With the assistance of the miners' expert statistician, Mr. Darrow said, the 1929 cent rise on 5 cents advance suggested by Mr. Baer would give the operators an increase of 2 1/2 per cent in profits and the miners only 1 1/2 on the $1.50 basis.

Reverting to the cause of the strike, Mr. Darrow quoted from the replies of the operators last Spring, when they refused to treat with the union.

Counsel followed this by reading the communications from Mr. Mitchell before the strike, asking for arbitration.

Mr. Baer, Mr. Darrow continued, feared his own combination of the Pole in the miners' union, because Mr. Baer's combination was rich and the miners were poor.

So long as the laws of the country do not prevent industrial wars, he said, and so long as the masters of capital want to fight, so long will the workmen of the country fight.

He reverted to the violent phase of the strike, and said, if the commission did not discuss the question broadly, then it was not fitted to grapple with it at all.

At the afternoon session Mr. Darrow again took up the question of violence.

ators had insolently and cruelly rejected the requests of the men, that there was no more violence among the population, reduced to a condition bordering on starvation.

Mr. Darrow then took up the 13 evictions on the Markle property, and with language that was extremely strong he pictured the eviction of a sick wife and a mother of five children.

Brigadier-General Gobin, who commanded one brigade of the state troops in the north during the strike, came in for severe criticism from the miners' counsel.

Turning to the boycott, Mr. Darrow said there was one illustration, at least, in the United States of the boycott, and that was in the American Revolution.
