MARQUAM GRAND THEATER - Tonight at 8:15 o'clock Daniel Sully will present "The Old Mill Stream." CORDRAY'S THEATER-This evening at 8:15. Knute Erickson, in "The Man From Sweden," THE BAKER THEATER—This evening 8:15, "The Great Diamond Robbery."

GATHERS GREENS IN PARK BLOCKS.-An old and crippled man was seen yesterday searching over one of the park blocks and gathering some kind of a plant by run ring a thin knife into the ground in such a manner as to cut off the root of the plant just below the crown, so that all the leaves came away in a bunch. He had a basket nearly filled with the plants, and several stopped to see what he was doing. One said probably he was clear-ing the blocks of some kind of noxious weed. Another, who came from New England, stooped over and took a look at the plants, and said, "Why, he is just gathering dandelions for a mess of greens and at the same time is ridding the block of a noxious weed." A native-born Oregonian asked what greens were, and what they were used for. "Well," said the New Englander, "when I was a boy I used to be sent out early in the Spring, as soon vegetables began to grow, to gather ndellons and leaves of the yellow dock, which were boiled and called greens. The supply of cabbage stored for Winter would be exhausted before Spring, and every-body would hanker for some fresh green stuff. There was no California to send us spinach and new cabbage and cauli-flower, and hothouse lettuce was not known in those days. You can imagine that a dish of greens was a treat early in the Spring." The old man, when asked what he was going to do with the dande-ions, said, "They make a very fine sai-id." They are probably a little bitter, but GOOD BEEF AT REASONABLE PRICE.

Several caterers who met at one of the principal markets yesterday were asked how the price of meats at present com pares with the price in former years. They agreed that it was fairly reasonable for this time of the year, especially when the quality is taken into considera-tion. The market is now well supplied with meats of a superior class, especially in the line of beef. "In years past prices of beef have been higher at this season and the meat not nearly so good," said one. "Often we used to have to put up with dark, tough, lean beef at this time of year, when there had been a hard Wissenson and learn the learn that the contraction of the season and th Winter, and stall feeding was practically unknown on Oregon ranges. The beef now supplied is fattened on alfalfa and chopped barley, principally, and as can be seen by looking at it, there can be none better." "A rump or chuck roast or steak from a first-class stall-fed steer is much superior to the choicest cuts from steer run in from a range half starved to be done," said another. From what these men, who have to buy meats every day all the year round, say, it is evident that there is but little to complain of in the price of beef at present, and the qual-ity is all that could be desired.

OLD POPLAR TREES CUT DOWN.—Some half-dozen big old poplar trees are being removed from in front of the property at the southeast corner of Everett and Pourth street. "The cement sidewalks are getting away with the shade trees," said the man in charge of the work. "It is no trifling job to root out such large trees and fell them without doing damage trees and fell them without doing damage to the surrounding property. "From this corner can be had a glimpse of some of the many dilapidated and decapitated old poplar trees on the park blocks. Many citizens say these should be got rid of as soon as possible, and the Park Commissioners will have a chance to prepare plans for "reforesting" the blocks, so that they may really beautify the city in years to come. There is nothing beautiful about

-Herbert C. Smith, chief deputy County Clerk in the State Circuit Court depart-ment, is reliably reported to be an applicant for the position of assistant post-master under Postmaster F. A. Bancroft. Mr. Smith has taken an active part in Republican politics in Multnomah Coun-ty for about 15 years. He served two terms as County Clerk, and one term of terms as County Clerk, and one term of two years as County Commissioner. He also served as deputy County Clerk under T. C. Powell and has been a member of the Republican State Central Committee, and a delegate to various Republican con-ventions. Mr. Smith has worked with Mr. Bancroft in the Southern Pacific office, and their relations with each other are of a very friendly nature.

WHY WORK IS DELAYED.—The opening of the Scottish Rite Cathedral will not of the Scottish Rite Cathedral will not take place as early as was expected, probably not till some time in April. The delay is due to the amount of "white work" in the auditorium. There is white and gold all about, but the cornices, etc., are finished in what is known as white work, which requires time, and moreover there are only two men in the city who do this kind of work, which it will be seen cannot be hurried up for two reasons. The dome of stained or art glass is practically finished, and is a wonderfully grand and bezutiful piece of work—the finest by far of the kind in the city.

PAINTER RAISES WAGES.—The employes of Henry Berger, a contract painter of Portland, wish to express their appreciation at the action he has taken with regard to increasing their wages. A short time ago the employes of Mr. Berger asked for a 50-cent increase, and for a time it was doubtful whether they would receive their advance. Mr. Berger has decided to raise the wage of the men to E.50 after April 1.

WHY HE KEEPS UGLY DOGS .- Mention was made a few days ago of a lot of towsy tykes and ragged terriers—an ugly looking lot of dogs—being in a fight on Fifth street and trying to pull down a big dog uglier than themselves. The owner of the dogs, a butcher, takes exception to the remarks about their looks. He says they are very useful, and he has to keep them to drive rats away from the place. He says the very ugliest and raggedest of the lot is the best, and he has refused $50 for him. If he kept handsome dogs, they would all be stolen, he says. When asked why he did not keep cats, he said that cats, as long as they say that the most they want to set will get all the meat they want to eat, will not kill rats. When told that the basements of butcher shops and every place about them where rats might find cover should be finished with concrete, in which no rat can gnaw holes, he admitted this, but said butchers could not find shops built that way; so they have to keep dogs to scare off the rats. The gang of dogs in question had been sitting about listening to what was said about them, but at this moment a boy came loping down the street on a cayuse, and away went each and every dog chasing pellmell after the pony and leaping up to nip the boy's feet, "Why don't you train the beasts to behave?" the owner was asked. "They do, generally," was the reply, "but that is the boy who brings up our horses in the morning, and he hit the dogs with a whip and threw something at them, and ever since they chase after him and try to bite him, and I cannot break them of it. They are just poison on him, and I rather like to see them get even."

Is THIS A NECESSARY EVIL!-Residents of Washington street, from Fourth to the Exposition building, are not pleased with the horrible condition in which that section of the street is kept by the earth spilled from the wagons hauling it from various excavations to dump in the gulch near the Exposition building. They are pleased to see the excavating going on, and pleased to see the gulch being filled, but think this could be done without their street being kept in a perfect muck all the time. They say that it is cleaned every evening by the street cleaning de-partment, and that by 10 o'clock the next morning the mud is ankle deep; and they cannot cross the street or get to or from a street-car without wading in the mud. Contractors have never been so particular as they should be in regard to spilling earth from their wagons, but there is an ordinance for their special control, and if things are unbearable on the piece of street mentioned the Civic rovement Association and their spe cial officer will probably attend to the matter if their attention is called to it. matter it their attention is called to it. The remedy for the trouble proposed by the residents on the street is for the wagons to carry the earth up Alder street, but probably people on Alder street have some ideas in the case.

DIFFERENT KIND OF A "MUNK."—A son of sunny Italy, who has a little place of business down town frequented princibusiness down town, frequented principally by his thirsty countrymen, was ap-proached a day or two ago by a boy, who asked if he wanted to buy a "chipmunk."

He did not know what a chip or a chipmunk was, but understood that the boy wanted to sell him a "cheap munk," which meant to him a low-priced monkey. He asked the price and was told $1. Many Italians have an inherited fancy for hand organs and monkeys. Many Americans can remember when they did not see an Italian in a year except in company with an organ and a monkey. The price was considered very "cheap," and the boy was told to bring down the "munk." When he arrived and the purchaser found out what a chipmunk was, idiated the contract, and the boy now calls him a Dago.

The boy said he did not know, but that he was told, if any one asked him this, to say it was one of the speeches made at Salem while the Legislature was in session. No more questions were asked, but the address of the druggist who had filled the order for gas was taken for future

SPECIMEN OF FINE GRANITE.-The Board of Trade is in receipt of a very fine speci-men of highly polished granite from one of the large quarries of Baker County, and has placed it in a conspicuous place in the exhibit. The quarry from which the stone was taken covers several acres of ground, and its granite is said to be unexcelled on the Pacific Coast and superfor to that of the State of Maine. ### MR. NAU'S PLANS.

What He Is Doing With His Dyspepsia Cure.

Mr. Frank Nau, the well-known Portland pharmacist is looking after his business in Portland preparatory to his early re-turn to New York. There is not a little in Portland preparatory to his early return to New York. There is not a little interest in this city as to the special mature of the business that has caused Mr. Nau to devote almost his entire time to his Eastern interests. It is nothing more nor less than the development to large proportions of a proprietary medicine business that had its start in a modest way in Portland. It is Nau's Dyspepsia Cure, which was first sold over the counter of the Portland Hotel Pharmacy two and a half years ago, and is now one of the recognized standard remedies of the world. When Mr. Nau started in to place his remedy on the market he had no idea that its merit would find such instantaneous recognition. But he knew it was a good thing, and would accomplish all it was recommended to accomplish; so when his friends and customers told him to seek a wider market for Nau's Dyspepsia Cure he finally decided to take their advice. The chief advertisers of the remedy have been the people who have used it and have been cured by it. "Cured" is the proper word, for it goes to the seat of the trouble and does not, like other medicines, simply relieve temporarily.

Nau's Dyspepsia Cure is now sold throughout the United States, in Britien Columbia, Canada, England, Australia and Hawaii. The sales are increasing so repidly that Mr. Nau contemplates the formation of a stock company to facilitate his extensive plans.

AT THE THEATERS.

"The Old Mill Stream." Robert Ryan ...... Daniel Sully Dick Flood ...........John T. Powers Abe Shultus ..........Robt. Blaylock Dr. Rufus Winnie ...... C. O. Wallace Margaret Ryan ...... Augusta True Lydia Winnie .........Leslie Lyle Gill Cooper ...... Helen Young

Real family life in the heart of the Catskill Mountains, New York, was pret-tily pictured at the Marquam Theater last night by Daniel Sully and his company in "The Old Mill Stream." For the first night of Lent the attendance was good. Various members of Florence Roberts' company occupied private boxes. It is pleasant to see a play not made up of risque French situations, where the sanctity of true love and married life is made ridiculous. "The Old Mill Stream" was first presented by Daniel Sully at New York on Christmas day, 1902, and paid its first visit to Portland last night. There are three acts and no change of scenery, the scene being a representation of Rob-ert Ryan's general store, where sugar, tea, shoe laces, stove blacking, etc., are sold, and where the citizens of Mink Hol-low, N. T., receive the United States mail. Sully takes care of the part of Robert Ryan, and is as quietly humorous as ever The bone of contention in the play is the stream of water which turns Ryan's griststream of water which turns Ryan gran-mill, and when Gus Shultus, an elderly German settler, a part played by W. F. Kokman, falls out with Ryan, he cuts the milldam for revenge, thinking he will stop the power driving Ryan's mill, but the water flows over the Shultus farm and rulns it. In the meantime Ryan has been secretly erecting a steam plant in the mill, and is therefore independent of the mil, and is therefore independent of the water power. Sully makes a hit when he defends Gill Cooper (Helen Young), a young wife whose husband has temporar-ily left her, against the fury of the mob, who wish her turned adrift. He is impressive when he says, "He that is without sin among you cast the first stone," and funny when he utters the truisms, "A man who marries for money earns it," and "A woman will tell every secret—except her age.'

Harold La Costa made a fine, manly young farmer, with an impetuous temper, and afterwards a veteran soldier from the Philippines. The lovemaking between him and Margaret Ryan (Augusta True) was refreshing in its pathos and sincerity. Once, when La Costa returns in his uniform as a United States soldier, some one pointed to him. saying, "You are a coward." Quick as a flash Sully said, "Cowards do not wear that uniform." The sentiment was applauded to the echo. "The Old Mill Stream" will be the attraction at the Marquam this evening.

New Light on an Old Story.

Do you love your husband? Are you jealous of him? Are you engaged? These are rather personal questions, yet they represent a kindly interest in your welfare. Married women who love their husbands, married women who love their husbands and are jealous of them, and young married when your person the content the second of the content of the content who have not not rectain the content of the cont women who have not yet entered the blessed state of matrimony, should not fall to see "Because She Loved Him So." This production deals with the domestic life of a newly married couple, who are very much in love with each other, the only rift in the valley of happiness being the young wife's jealousy of her artist husband. This play is truly "a just image of human nature." This comedy is natural, laughable, simple, new, wholesome and pretty, with a happy, good-na-tured ending. This production will be on the boards at Baker's Theater all next cing with Sunday matin

Sale for "Lovers' Lane."

The advance sale of seats will open to-norrow (Friday) morning for "Lovers" Lane," which will be the attraction at the Marquam Grand Theater next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, with a matinee Wednesday. We are to have the much-discussed Clyde Fitch comedy, "Lovers' Lane," which comes with the prestige of five months' acceptance in New York. It is one of the productions of William A. Brady, who has found a fortune in it, as he did in "Way Down East." Its prosperity seems to be ground-ed upon its moral tone, its rustic charm and its blending of comedy with deft touches of pathos. Its scenes are laid in a small town in Massachusetts, and its quaint characters are typical. The orig-inal company is to be seen here.

Sam Morris Coming to Cordray's. David Warfield's great success in "The Auctioneer" has set most of the theater-going public talking. This style of char-acter is somewhat new to the stage. The public is not well acquainted with the East Side Hebrew. As a rule the Hebrew that one meets in every day life is more of the happy, jolly, good-natured fellow. It is this latter character that Mr. Sam Morris presents in his new play, "The Peddler's Claim." Mr. Morris opens at Cordray's Sunday matinee, March 1, for a four nights' engagement.

Anna Held in "The Little Duchess." Anna Held, in "The Little Duchess," will be the attraction at the Marquam Grand Theater tomorrow (Friday) and Saturday nights, with a matinee Saturday. This is without a doubt one of the most gorgeous productions we have had this season. The advance sale of scats opened yesterday morning. The curtain will rise promptly at 8:05 o'clock both evenings of Miss Held's engagement and

TEACHERS ASK MORE PAY Board of Education Receives Peti.

The Board of Education last evening was confronted with a petition from all of the grammar school teachers, asking for an increase in pay. A delegation from South Portland put in a tearful plea for an addition to the Homestead Schoo building. A new schedule of janitors wages was adopted, giving some relief to these school employes, whom the members consider poorly paid. City Superintendent Rigier recommended additions to the North, Central and Stephens Schools. And on top of all these troubles, the board decided to seek the ex-religion of schools. decided to seek the ear of some charitable banker in which to whisper a gentle re-quest for a loan of $5,000.

It was a matter of conjecture for some little time whether there would be a meet-ing, but one by one three of the five mem-bers of the board made their appearance, and at $30 Chairman Richard Williams called Messrs. Warren and Beach to or-

Mr. William W. Gregory was the first to address the chair. He said: "Mr. Middleton and myself constitute a committee of two, appointed by the South Portland Improvement Association, for the purpose of making a petition to the gentlemen of this board to make a provision for an addition to the Portland Homestead Schoolhouse. This school is very crowded at dition to the Portland Homestead School-house. This school is very crowded at the present time, and the portable annex, also in use, is really unfit for school pur-poses. It is so small that a fire in the stove either makes it too hot, or no fire has the opposite effect. The additional rooms we now ask for are needed far more than the school building was at the time it was built. What we should have is an addition of four rooms, and these is an addition of four rooms, and these could be easily filled with the present at-tendance."

John H. Middleton then took the floor and addressed the board. "Mr. Gregory and I some two days ago had occa-sion to go through the building in ques-tion, in order that we might size up the
