CHANGES AT THE CITY PARK.—The City Park has lately been presented with a tame wild goose, of the small white varicty, known as the "snow" goose. One of the pair of budgers which have been in the menagerie at the park for two years has dug his last burrow, and his skin is to be mounted for the City Museum. He had lived in harmony with the rie had lived in harmony with the in the park for some time, but at ell out with one of them, and was so bitten on the head that he sucd. The pretty little red fox which ame from Nome and which went astray came from Nome and which went seems and was presented by the finder to the park, but which was claimed by Mr. Stuhr, is now the property of the city, Mr. Stuhr having relinquished his claim and presented all his title in the animal end presented all his little in the annual to the city. Parkkeeper Lowitz has had a new tree trunk about 10 feet in height set in the bear pit for the bears to climb, the old one having been almost worn out. There is but little being done in the way mprovement in the park at present, there has been no increase in the East Wind Continues.—Many people were made happy by seeing the clouds and smoke from elimneys blowing from southerly direction when they first oked out of doors yesterday morning-ney thought the wind had got round to the south, and evidence of a slight winkle of rain on the sidewalks con-med this supposition. It was soon. firmed this supposition. It was soon found, however, that the wind was still found, however, that the wind was still hanging in a point, not the south, and had no smell of the balmy south in it, but was practically the same disagreeable east wind which has been blowing discomfort to every one for the past week.

As one remarked, "It is the coldest and nastiest 'south wind' I ever saw," and the clouds of dust it raised were something dreadful. It rained a little out along the pipeline to Bull Bun, but several attempts at a shower have proved abortive, and satisfied every one that though the rain was coming, it was not here yet. Taken all in all yesterday was about one of the most unpleasant days about one of the most unpleasant days and though the rain was coming. It was not been proved the most unpleasant days about one of the most unpleasant days and Emily MacEiroy spoke for the negative made and Emily MacEiroy spoke for the negative made and Emily MacEiroy spoke for the negative was sawarded the decision of the judges. After the debate, Miss Leona Larrabee gave a very interesting talk on birds.

Devlin was hard at work yesterday pre-paring specifications on which to ask for bids for supplying forms of blanks for the various departments. There are more of these departments than most people would imagine, and the number of difwould imagine, and the number of dif-ferent blanks used in them is very large. In the Auditor's office alone there are $5. The City Engineer's office requires about as many. Then there are the City Attor-ney and City Treasurer, and City Physi-cian to be supplied, the Waterworks of-fice, the Fire and Police Departments, Municipal Court, Plumbing Inspector, Health Commissioner, Fire Commissioner, Park Commissioner, Fund Department Park Commissioner, Proceedings ones, Park Commissioner, Pound Department, Street Cleaning Department, and the other departments. A supply of the blanks needed is filed by each department or official, the whole of which makes quite a library. The new city charter makes changes in a good many of these blank forms, but does not increase the number oly of Christopher Walker, who died in ew York City a few days ago, will reach ordand today, accompanied by Mrs. Faiker. The funeral will be held Sunday fternoon from St. Stephen's Episcopal Mr. Walker was for five years manager of the lace and ribbon de-tment of Lipman, Wolfe & Co., and Portland two years ago to take charge same department in a large store in New York. The family of Mrs. Walker GLASS BY THE CARLOAD .- A railroad official states that a shipment of 90 carloads of window glass of American manufacture cently came across the continent to this cast. Of the lot 60 carloads came to from which he says a comparison of the amount of glass used in the three towns may be formed. Glass of foreign manu-

Boos for Dawson.—A large order for eggs to be shipped in to Dawson over the ice has been filled by a Front-street firm. The expense of packing eggs for such a trip at this season will prevent the price from going very low at Dawson. The eggs are first candled, then wrapped separately in paper and placed in the usual packers. The cases are lined with pasteboard, and a cushion of excelsior put at the top and bottom. Then the cases are wrapped in asbestos paper and finally in a wrapper of stout ducking carefully tacked on, and they are ready to go through temperature 40 degrees below zero, and will cost customers at Dawson about $1.50 per dozen. Apples are $10 per box there, so there is need of gold mines in the vicinity. Eggs were selling yesterday in places at $175 cents per dozen, and at wholesale for 16 cents, and in large lots for a shade lower. They will soon be down to 15 cents at retail, which is about as low as they ever get, though very rarely they go at two dozen for $5 cents.

"Elizabeth." Lord Howard .. Marquis di Mendona....McKee Rankin

of the Armada, the stout heart who made the expansion movement possible which resulted in the modern British Empire.

Miss O'Neil has to sacrifice much of her alluring personality, which sweeps her audience into pleasure when she portrays "Magda." For instance, her protty fair hair is hidden by a red wig, part of her make-up. Then she has to adopt such mascullnity in portraying such a nearly masculing type as England's desuch masculinity in portraying such a nearly masculine type as England's de-termined Queen, that much of her charm-ing femininity is missing. But for all that she looked the picture of stern-visaged, disappointed, pessimistic Elizabeth to the life. She was great in the scene where she and Essex quarrel, where she plays with him much as a cat plays with a with him much as a cat plays with a mouse—the perfect embodiment of cruelty. Her anguish at his death was finely worked out, and as the broken-down, miserable Queen on her deathbed, looking fearfully around for the ghosts of people whom she had indirectly murdered, Miss O'Neil showed a wonderful mastery of her art. McKee Rankin as the Marquis de Mendoza had a part entirely unsuited to his undoubted ability. Humor in the author plays is almost absent. Only in the entire play is almost absent. Only the genius of Miss O'Neil last night saved it from being duil.

This afternoon at the matinee "Camille" will be presented, and this evening the engagement will close with "The Jewess."

"Beenuse She Loved Him So."

A traveler passing through Portland some time ago remarked on the large number of unmarried young people he met, and stated as the possible reason that people are scared at the number of do-mestic brawls. If he had seen "Because She Loved Him So," he would have noticed how a jealous wife, who delights in brawis, is tamed at last and made into a model wife. It is a comedy for married folks. It will be given at Baker's Theater at the matinee this afternoon, with the last performance tonight.

Concert by De Moss Company. With instruments of many kinds as well as vocal music the DeMoss lyric bards gave a concert last evening in the Taylor-Street Methodist Church. The DeMoss family of Southern Oregon is on its list annual tour and all those who have heard them on their previous visits at-tended the concert last evening.

The company is composed of Henry DeMoss. George DeMoss. Lizzie DeMoss Davis, Waldo Davis, Mrs. Aurelia DeMoss and Mrs. Julia DeMoss.

Forfeits Debate to Albany. ALBANY, Or., March 6 .- (Special.)-The debate which was to have taken place to-night between the debating teams of Al-bany College and the Oregon State Normal School at Monmouth falled to materialize. On account of some misunderstanding the achool teachers forfeited the debate to Albany. The try-out between McMinn-ville College and Pacific College tonight will determine who will meet Albany Col-lego's debating team in the final contest for the championship of the College De-bating League. When a team forfeits or is defeated it is out of the race.
