Another heavy fall of snow has occurred and the weather remains bleak and unchangeable. Many deer have been driven from the mountains to the lowlands in search of feed, sheep and cattle during the Summer having eaten everything within reach, where deer and eik, in time past, found grazing good when driven from the high places in Winter. Wire fences are no hidrance to their advance upon an alfalfa stack, but many of them have paid the death penalty for their invasion of private property.

My estimate of the world's production of wheat in 1902 in now fairly complete. The total is considerably in excess of what was expected last Autumn, mainly owing to the big crop in Russia, though I do not by any means accept the official estimate of that crop as final. I am, on the contrary, convinced that the estimate was far too high. However, this may be, I think it tolerably certain that the world's wheat crop of 1902, which, of course, includes the Argentine crop lately reaped, was almost the largest on record. Only on previous upon approached it, viz. that of 1968. The following is the estimate, in quarters, for the last crop, compared with the corrected totals of the four previous years:
