HIS MANY WORKS OF CHARITY.

With a Pres Hand Mr. Corbett Aided

Every Deserving Institution. Mr. Cornett devoted a large part of his come to works of charity. There is probsbly no object or institution of charity in the city which has not received benefits from Mr. Corbett. When any public or charitable enterorise has been etarted he has generally headed the list of donators. Undoubtedly Mr. Corbett was the most generous man with his money who ever lived in Portiand. As the possessor of a large fortune he understood fully his duty to the community in using his fortune for the public interest.

Among the most prominent institutions which are beneficiaries of his bounty are: Portland Academy, the site of which, valued at $40.000, was donated by him; Pacific University, Portland Library, Portland Art Association, First Presbyterian ably no object or institution of charity in land Art Association, First Presbyterian Church, Y. M. C. A., Boys' and Girls' Ald Society, City Board of Charities, Homeopathic Hospital and many other institutions. He made it a practice to give money to every newly established Presby-terian church in the Northwest.

Much money has undobtedly been be-queathed to public institutions in Mr. Cor-bett's will.

TO PAY THEIR LAST RESPECTS. Lewis and Clark Directors and State

Commission to Attend Funeral. The directors and the state commission ers of the Lewis and Clark Pair will atyesterday afternoon and agreed upon this procedure. A committee was named by H. W. Scott, vice-president of the Exposition, to draw up suitable resolutions in memory of Mr. Corbett. The committee is composed of Mr. Scott W. D. Fenton, W. D. Wheelwright, P. L. Willis, W. E. Thomas and J. C. Flanders. Any member of the board or the commission is at the disposal of the family of Mr. Corbett for any service required.

for any service required. Mr. Scott, in calling to order the joint meeting of the board and commission, spoke as follows:

"It is a sad occasion that calls us to gether. You know the occasion, an oc-casion of sorrow and regret. Our loss is great. It is fit that we, the board of directors of the Lewis and Clark Centennial, should meet here and express our sense of the great loss we have suffered in the death of President Corbett-a loss that not only greatly affects this particu-lar project that we have in view, to which we are devoted, and which we must pursue, but a loss that will be felt by all classes of our business and other inter-ests in this city and state.

This board of directors naturally must take some part in the obsequies, adding our part towards testifying our apprecia-tion of the place that Mr. Corbett has held among us, of the place that he has

"I am not advised when the funeral services will be held or when the burial will take place. It is proper, however, that we should make such preparations as befits the occasion; that we should appoint a committee of our number to make inquiry as to what the family and the nearest friends desire or may desire of us in the funeral services. I think that it would be proper to assume that some of our number may be chosen among the pallbearers for the occasion. Also that a committee be designated to formulate recolutions covering Mr. Corbett, but his public life has been familiar to me for several years. He was a great man in the world of high-grade politics and sound finance: too great and too honest to be successful in the practical politics of the time; so strong in his personal integrity that he was easily deceived; so faithful in his friendships and his confidences that he was an easy victim for designing men. His liberality, his progressive and aggressive apprit will be saily missed for several year in the work of advancing the subservices will be held or when the burial bett's life and services and our sense of the loss the City of Portland, the State of Oregon and the whole Northwest has suffered in his passing from us.

"Any member of this hourd of directors who may wish to make any suggestion on this subject I shall be giad to hear. The natter should be the subject of some conference among us, so that what we do may be done decently and in order. "I need say no more. All I would say

SORROW AT SALEM. Prominent Men Give Expression of

Grief. SALEM. Or., March 21 .- (Special.)-News of the death of H. W. Corbett this morning came as a great shock to the people of Salem. Expressions of sorrow and deep regret were heard on every hand and all who have known of the life and work of Mr. Corbett were warm in their praise of his public-spirited acts. He was recognized here as a man whose great business capacity did not consist of an ability to build his own fortunes upon the wrecks of others, but rather a man who was always ready to aid others in their enterprises and who achieved his own success while so doing His generosity is everywhere a subject of commentation of her foremost and most useful citi-He was recognized here as a man whose more than 50 years his life has been an years he has seen with almost prophetic open book, and has proven to the men vision a still grander future for his state and women of his own time as well as and the Northwest, and has bent his to the younger generation what is pos-sible of accomplishment where there is energy, perseverance and thrift combined larger enterprises and prosperity to fol. with prudence, intelligence and rugged honesty. In his earlier years he bravely faced the dangers and difficulties of pio-neer life. Commencing with comparaneer life. Commencing with compara-tively nothing, he not only accumulated a magnificent fortune, but forged to the forefront in affairs of state, and attained the highest place in the gift of our people by election to the Senate of the United States, nearly winning the same prize on a second occasion. As a shrewd, far-sighted business man, it is question-able if he had an equal in the State of His judgment was appealed in times of financial depression which tried men's souls, and whatever enterprise or institution his name was con-nected with at once won the confidence of the people. His loss to Portland cannot be estimated, particularly at a time when an a leading spirit in the Lewis and Clark Exposition all eyes were turned to him for counsel and advice. I have talked with him upon this subject, and speak from personal knowledge when I say that his whole soul seemed wrapped up in the successful prosecution of this Exposition for he felt, as he assured me. Exposition, for he felt, as he assured me, that if the people of the whole state would give it their united support the enterprise would be successful, and if successful would add greatly to the material wealth and prosperity of the people of Oregon and the Oregon country. gion whose sorrow for his departure is heartfelt.

Supreme Judge C. E. Wolverton—in the death of Mr. Corbett the state and the entire Northwest have sustained a great loss. From his early settlement in Fortland he has taken an active and leading part in business affairs, and has been prominent in the political field. It is in later years, however, that his influence has been most feit. His wonderful activity and enterprise and his sound, excellent judgment have placed him in the front rank of the ablest financiers of the country. Possessed of these sterling qualities, his sanction of the Lewis and Clark Centennial has been accepted as a potent guaranty of its success, and it is much to be regretted that the management of such an enterprise will be bereft of his solvice and counsel.

Supreme Judge R. S. Bean—The death of H. W. Corbett is a great loss to the state, for the reason that he was a public-spirited man and a leader in every great movement of interest in the state and the city in which he lived.

A. Bush, the pioneer banker, who has been closely associated with H. W. Corbett in many business transactions, was so overcome by the news of the death of his friend that he could not give ex-

Corbett walked down the gangplank, on his first arrival in Portiand, he looked over the crowd on shore and asked: "Is there a man among you named Eush?" Assahel Bush, then a young printer, responded. "I have letters of introduction addressed to you," Mr. Corbett said, and the acquaintance then formed grew into a friendship which has become closer and stronger as the years rolled away. Mr. Bush and Mr. Corbett ed away, Mr. Bush and Mr. Corbet placed the utmost confidence in each other and no opportunity to confer a fa-vor was ever missed by either of them. It was at the earnest solicitation of Mr. Corbett that Mr. Bush consented to be-come a member of the Lewis and Clark Fair board.

Hon. Claud Gatch, cashier in Mr. Bush's bank—As a young man now reaching middle age and in the employ of a large banking concern, I have had occasion frequently to meet Senator Corbett. He was always kindly and considerate. His financial ability was greatly to be admired. His business methods were always square.

John H. Albert, president of the Capital National Bank—The death of H. W. Corbett is a public calamity, particularly because of his connection with the Lewis and Clark Fair. His was in many respects a peculiar character, of which Henry B. Thielsen, president of the Greater Salem Commercial Club-The death of Mr. Corbett will be deeply felt, not only by Portland and the State of Oregon, but by the entire Northwest. He felt as few wealthy men do the duties the possession of wealth imposed upon him, and was always ready to do his part take some part in the obseques, adoing our part towards testifying our appreciation of the place that, Mr. Corbett has held among us, of the place that he has held in this great undertaking of ours, of which he, in fact, was the head. L. L. Pierce, a member of the Legis-lature of 1901—in the death of Hon. H. W. Corbett the State of Oregon loses, in my opinion its most public-spirited citizen, and one whose place will not readily be filled. The City of Portland sustains the loss of a man who has devoted a lifetime to the upbuilding of the city of his adop-tion, but the entire state is no less a loser, as Mr. Corbett really belonged to the commonwealth. He was a broad man, one of the grandest men of the Nation.

Tilmon Ford-in the passing away of Hon. H. W. Corbett, Oregon has lost one of her most substantial citizens and one whose piace will not soon be filled. dation. Among the expressions heard today were the following:
Governor George E. Chamberlain—Hon.
H. W. Corbett was a magnificent example of sturdy American citizenship, and his death is a great loss to the state. For conserving of the forces making for the larger enterprises and prosperity to fol-low. He sought to crown his life by bringing to a successful issue the holding of a World's Fair in order to invite a Nation and all nations to the study of and participation in the good things to be found here in this vast country in the way chergy than any other one man to the project for holding the 1806 Fair in Portland. He entered into the enterprise with all his resources, and his ripe business training and devoted his time to the promotion of the gigantic undertaking. The great pity is that Mr. Corbett could not live to see the successful issue of his habors. But his spirit will live and run through the whole course of the grand scheme. Mr. Corbett was one of the hest-known men on this Coast in financial circles, He had amassed a great fortune, but through hard work and conservative management. There are large numbers of men throughout the Northwest, in every walk of life, who will feel each for himself that he has lost a personal friend in the death of Henry W. Corbett."

Flags were placed at half-must on the Capitol today, and on several husiness houses, including the Ladd & Bush Bank.

Shock to Oregon City Friends. OREGON CITY, March 21 .- (Special.)-The news of the sudden death of ex-Corbett witnessed the growth of Portland from a small village to a magnificent city and took an active part in every industry that, in his opinion, tended to promote the commercial importance of the metropolis of this state. Though by his economy and business foresight be amassed a fortune, he was ever the friend of the energetic and, in many instances, has kept men from bankruptcy and ruin by unostrontations assistance, thereby winning their gratitude and love.

Attorney Claims Certain Sections Are Unconstitutional.

SAYS IT IS NOT OPERATIVE YET

Comprehensive Attack on Document Under Which City Government Is Being Conducted, in Suit Filed Resisting Tux Assessment.

Attorney Ralph R. Duniway in a com-plaint siled in the State Circuit Court in behalf of himself, A. A. Kadderly and Il other persons resisting a reassessment for the improvement of East Burnelde street from East Eighth to East Twenty-eighth from East Eighth to East Twenty-eighth street, declares that the new city charter does not become a law until Mey 21, 1803. He avers that under section 1, article 4, of the constitution, as amended, the act is not necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety, and that, therefore 80 days must elapse since the passage of the charter before it becomes operative.

The defendants in the suit filed by Mr. Duniway are the City of Portland, the

The defendants in the suit filed by Mr. Duniway are the City of Portland, the members of the Council, Smyth & Howard, contractors; United States Fidelity & Guaranty Company, and John W. Cox.

The Council passed a resolution providing for the improvement of East Burnside street with macadam and crushed rock on December 4, 1801, and on February 10, 1802, the contract was let to Smyth & Howard for 50 282

It is alleged by the plaintiff that neither the City Engineer nor any one else caused to be posted, as provided by the charter, notice of the work, in letters of not less than one inch in length, or any longer than one-half inch in length, nor any notice which set forth the fact of the Smyth & Howard, it is asserted, did not comply with the contract as to materials, but instead used valueless round rock a great deal larger than four inches at the largest diameter, and that a considerable amount of the rock was six, eight, ten and 12 inches in diameter. Numerous ob-jections are also made to the manner of oing the work.

The facts in connection with a previous suit filed by Mr. Duniway and the others objecting against paying for the improve-ment, are set forth, and it is stated that Judge Frazer in that case decided that the notice given of the improvement by the City Engineer was not legal, and accord-ing to the requirements of the charter; also, that the assessment attempted to be made was ineffectual and void and should be set aside, and the city be perpetually enjoined from attempting to enforce it. The court declined to make any further findings in the case, that is as to the character of the work and material used. In the present suit it is alleged that John W. Cook is the holder of all special warrants issued by the city for this work that are unpaid, and that a payment of any of these street warrants to Smyth & Howard, the United States Fidelity & Guaranty Company, or Cook, would be a fraudulent conversion of the money of the taxpayers of the City of Portland. On February 18, 1903, it is averred that the Council passed a resolution for the reassessment of the benefits for the improvement of East Burnside street, and that the City Auditor keued such a notice. It is stated, however, that the Auditor did not mail notices to the owners of property who bonded or paid the former assessment, and that the only notices the Auditor sent to anybody were not signed and did not show at all from whom they

Many constitutional objections are re-cited why the recent action of the Council will not stand. The first is that the new charter is not yet in effect; another is that the Council seeks to deprive persons of a remedy by due course of law for injury done them in person and property. Still another is that an attempt is made to take private property without just com-

Mr. Duniway offers other constitutional points in support of his complaint. An injunction is saked for restraining the city officials from proceeding further until the suit is decided.

BREAK ENSLAVING CHAINS Dr. Sperry Gives Interesting Advice to Y. M. C. A. Audience.

The lecture by Lyman Beecher Sperry at the Young Men's Christian Association at the Young Men's Christian Association last evening on "Somethin's Done Broke," was introduced by the story of a colored boy who at 17 years of age was regarded as an idiot. He insisted on attending school, though apparently incapable of school, though apparently incapable of learning anything from books. Some months after he surprises his teacher by reciting intelligently not only what was in the book he had used, but also much that had been said and done in the school-room. In reply to the astonished teacher's questions as to what had caused the sudden awakening Sam put his hands to his head exclaiming, "Somethin' here has just done broke." This boy afterward became Minister to Liberia under President just done broke." This boy afterward be-came Minister to Liberia under President Hayes. The lecturer took this case as a striking illustration of a general fact. The business of life is the breaking of various enslaving chains. Most people at the start have the advantage of the poor colored boy, but all of us must gain our freedom, and the enjoyment of life through the breaking of enslaving chains. The first chain hamed was that of un-fortunate heredity. Various phases of in-The first chain hamed was that of unfortunate heredity. Various phases of inherited defects or bad tendencies were spoken of and illustrated. "We are all to some extent," said Dr. Sperry, "chips off an old block. And some of us think that some of our neighbors are chips off ald blockheads." The next chain spoken of was ignorance. The human infant at birth, while notentially the greatest of all anithe charter are unconstitutional, because while potentialy the greatest of all anihelpiess. But by breaking the bands of ignorance it may become an Edison or a Gladstone. Superstition, akittishness we call it when exhibited by a horse, that is fear and unreasonable excitement in the presence of things we do not understand, was said to be the third chain. The liquor habit and the custom of taking quack remedies was the last enslaving chain spoken of.

The lecturer contended that the force by which these various chains are to be broken is summed up in one word-truth. broken is summed up in one word-trun-Each truth clearly and intelligently ap-prehended and placed in scientific relation to other truth, becomes an expanding force, which like freezing water or the growing roots of vegetation, will lift or pry apart the hardest rock. But truth, to have this liberating influence, must not only be intelligently apprehended, but worked out in the life.

The lecture was original and served as a stimulant and an encouragement to all who heard it.

While serious in his purposes Dr. Sperry is anything but dull and pedantic in his manner. He makes the gravest subjects entertaining and humor abounds in all his talks.

The subject of the lecture tonight will be "Human Conditions and Possibilities." The admission is free to men only.

STRANGE GAME OF BLUFF How a German Bank Cashier Worked Directors for Pension.

BERLIN, March 31.—While the directors of the Mayence People's Bank were in session a few days ago, the cashier, Herrmann, who had been with the bank 37 years, told them he had taken $79,000 of the bank's funds. The amazed directors, when they were really convinced that this when they were really convinced that this was true, and that the old employe had not suddenly gone mad, asked him why he had robbed the bank; he replied:

"This is my revenge for not having been elected a director in 1800, as I was promised. I had been preparing this stroke for three years."

The cashier added that he was willing o go to the penitentiary for life, as he sad "got even by inflicting lifepangs on

The bank officers, dropping the high tone which they had at first assumed toward Herrmann, begged him to restore the money and retain their esteem. Herrmann slowly yielded so far as to say that, if they would give $5250 down and a life pension of $390 a year, he would return the stolen money. It was daylight when the directors promised to give the cashier $2250 and a pension.

herrman then went to the outer office, brought in $70,000, counted out $83,750 and put $8350 in his pocket. The directors said this was not fair; that he must return all the money, and then he would receive the $6350 promised to him. He, however, refused, and the bank has now brought legal proceedings to recover the $6350.
