"Mass Houts."

CHEAP FRED FOR CHICKERS.—A man furnished with several small sacks of samples of the grain damaged in the fire at Victoria dock was seeking customers among the city officials yesterday, having learned that some of them maintain small chicken ranches. He was offering the soaked and smoked wheat and barley for from 30 to 50 cents per cental sacked. One official said he had been paying $2.30 per sack for wheat for his chickens, which he considered an excessive price; but he was a little afraid that the damaged grain might not suit them, although the price suited him. The seller said some had bought a ton of the stuff for feeding chickens, as it cost them only about it cents per bushel, sacks and all. The grain bought a ton of the stuff for feeding chickens, as it cost them only about 15 cents per bushel, sacks and all. The grain has been recovered from the wreck of the dock, and run through a dryer and cleaned up at the rate of about 200 tons per day, and several persons have been making good wages by taking loads of it out into the suburbs and selling it to people having chicken ranches. Some have found it entirely satisfactory, while other ple having chicken ranches. Some have found it entirely satisfactory, while others imagine that the wheat smells of creosote from the smoke it went through, and so is not wholesome for chickens. The person who was seiling it by sample raid there was not likely to be any more saved, as the water was now so deep over it. There has, however, been enough taken out to feed all the chickens in the country for a long time.

Pools MAY FROLIC TODAT.—The ist day of April has arrived, and March storms will give piace to April showers. The day is always noted in the almanacs as "All Fools" Day," from the fact that it is a custom with many to perpetrate practical jokes and deceptions on that day. Just how this custom arrows has probably been low this custom arose has probably been forgotten, if any one ever knew, but it has been perpetuated by force of habit. It is a question in the minds of many whether the name of the day refers to the number of persons who perpetrate practical jokes and deceptions or to those who are fooled by them. This will, however, have no effect on doing away with the custom as long as the almanacs give the day as "All Fools' Day." Almanacs with weather forecasts for the whole year in advance are going out of use, since the Government has employed forecast officals, authorized to make fresh forecasts daily. Portland once boasted an almanac, published by Stephen J. McCormick, a pioneer bookseller and stationer, and old-timers insist that he furnished better weather than the Government officials

SPIKES MUST BE PULLED OUT OF TIM BERS.—Contractors who undertake the re-patring of bridges and elevated roadways have been in the habit of tearing off wormout or decayed planks, and the long spikes bent in this process have then been besten down flat into the timbers. An inspector who has been looking into this matter has concluded that the timbers into which the spikes are thus flattened soon decay, and he intends to insist on the splites being pulled out in the future, unless they can be driven straight in. There is an opportunity for him to try his theory on the Union-avenue bridge, between East Oak and East Morrison streets, and he proposes to have a test made. Contractors say it will be much more work to draw out the spikes, espe-cially crooked ones, than to mash them into the timbers out of the way of the new flooring. It may be that the timbers would last longer if the spikes were driv-en straight in or pulled out, but the chances are that when a bridge has more warrants during the past month than were ever taken up in a month before, but the money all came in in a lump, and is going out the same way. He has paid out about $140,000 on general war-rants that have been outstanding for a year or more, and has also taken up to date about $49,000 of road warrants. There was a large indebtedness to start in with, and, although so many warrants have been called in, there are still a good many outstanding. The county is less than II months behind in general fund warrants. Mr. Lewis thinks the county will be able to reduce its indebtedness this year by keeping within the levy, which can be done unless some extraordinary expense comes up, as the burning of bridges or something of that kind.

SWALLOWS TRY TO MAKE A SUMMER.—A member of the John Burroughs Society, who has been watching for the arrival of birds, says quall were piping and grouse pooling in the timber on the hills west of the city Sunday. He heard several fine old "hooters" in the Macleay Park, and was surry to see several boys out in the brush with toy guns quite capable of kill-lag any birds they might come across. He has been watching particularly for the arrival of swallows, but saw none until yesterday morning, when he discovered some half-dozen darting about with an energy which seemed to indicate that the insects on which they feed were not plentiful. He is aware that "one swallow does not make Summer," but thinks half a dozen is a fair start in that direction. He has about given up looking for the grosbeaks which usually visit the city at this season, and thinks they will not

House Blew Over .- J. E. Kelly, who as injured by the falling of a house conday afternoon, is in a very critical endition at the Good Samaritan Hospital. The doctors stated last night that his chances of recovery were not good. Kelly lives at 558 Pettygrove street. He and William Clark were working on the roof of his house on Monday afternoon when a sudden gust of wind toppled it over. Kelly was thrown a distance of about 20 feet to the ground, and struck on his face. He was taken to the hospital in an insensible condition, and has not yet recovered consciousness. There is every indication that he sustained a bad concus-

Surveying East Sipe Teact.—Work on the topographical survey of a tract in the southern part of East Portland, east of Milwaukie street, taking in Woodstock, Crystal Springs farm and the Southern Pacific car shops, and comprising about four acres, preparatory to establishing a system of sewers for that section, is progressing favorably, though interrupted occasionally by unfavorable weather. As the whole section has to be cross-section whose section has to be cross-section. occasionally by unfavorable weather. As the whole section has to be cross-sectioned and the elevations and contour lines platted, the survey involves a large amount of fieldwork, as well as computation, which is rendered more difficult in places by a growth of young timber. It will require some time to complete it, but once the plat is finished work can be commenced on the sewer system at any point desired.

Mr. Hidden's violin solo, "Morceaux de Salon, No. 4" (Viouxtemps), was beautiful in mei-ody and execution, and won great ap-plause. As an encore Mr. Hidden played "Arioso" (Rode). 'Arioso" (Rode).

"Arioso" (Rode).
Mrs. Sheldon's numbers were admirably selected, and were sung charmingly. The plnk gown she wore, of apple-blossom daintiness, seemed in harmony with the fresh beauty of her tones, and each of her songs was enthusiastically received. One of the most attractive of Mrs. Shel-don's numbers was "You and I." a simple little song sung to a child, but very satisfying in its arch sweetness. Mrs. Sheldon's encore selection was "Violets" (Ellen Wright).

The Haydn numbers, with their grave, hymn-like beauty, and the Schubert numbers, of grave and tender beauty, we rendered in the masterly manner chara-teristic of the Hidden-Coursen quartet.

"Fareweil" is a word one hates to hear spoken when one becomes attached to a person or a number of persons. This time the entire theater-going public of Portland will regret to say farewell to the popular Baker Theater Company, which will begin the last week of their engagement at the Baker Theater next Sunday afternoon, April 5. "A Night Off," the play beleeted for the closing week, is from the pen of Augustin Daly. It was produced at his theater in New York, and had a run of two years. #### Symphony Concert Thursday.

At the Symphony Concert Thursday evening, April 2, at the Marquam, interest will naturally center in the "Scotch" symphony of Mendelssohn. It was while Mendelssohn was traveling through Scotland that he caught the inspiration for both this symphony and the "Hebrides" overture. In the chapel of the Holyrood Palace, he said he found the beginning of the symphony, and right then he wrote down the first 16 bars of the introduction. This passage recurs at the end of the first movement, and really forms the motto of the work. It was dedicated to Queen Vic toria and first performed in March, 1842, at Leipzig, under the baton of the com-poser, amid great enthusiasm. Although written in strict symphony form, it will be played without separating the move-ments. This is as Mendelssohn wished and thus he tells the continuous story of
