Stricture

EMPLOY NO AMATEURS

no economy in employing an amateur to do an expert's task. Nine times in ten failure follows. In a large percentage of instances the result is harm. The average physician is an amateur in the treatment of men's diseases. He doesn't treat enough cases to learn a great deal about them. His time is so fully occupied in treating a full assortment of human fils that he cannot devote special study to any particular branch of practice. Most diseases are sufficiently simple to require no special training other than that received in the medical colleges and that afforded by experience in general practice. The more complex and perplexing ali-ments the family practitioner seldom cares to treat. He prefers to be relieved of tasks beyond his training, though cannot without fear of injuring a patient's confidence in his ability recommend the services of a specialist instead of his own. The true specialist is a physician who is absolutely expert in the treatment of a few diseases. He knows all about the few diseases the treats and he treats difficult cases with about the rew decates with which the general practitioner treats the most common all-ment. For twenty-one years we have been treating men's diseases. We began our special work after thorough preparation at the best medical colleges and hospitals of the country, and have cured more men than any other institute in the Northwest.
