AMUSEMENTS.

MARQUAM GRAND THEATER—Tonight at 8:15 o'clock, Rose Coghlan in A. W. Pinero's "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray."

THE BAKER THEATER—Tonight at 8:15, the Baker Stock company in "A Night Off."

CORDRAY'S THEATER—No performance tonight—Good Friday.

STILL THE RUIN STANDS.—One of a number of citizens passing the old Mechanics' Pavilion shack, in a street-car yesterday, expressed his disgust that such a disgrace to the city and city officials should be allowed to stand. He said some things more truthful than polite about Councils and officials of past years who had connived at keeping the old ruin standing, and finally asked if the present Council and administration were influenced by the same motives as the ones he had mentioned. He had seen it stated in The Oregonian that a company had been formed to remove the old ruin and to build a modern market, and that they had plans ready to lay before the Council, but had not heard anything further about the matter, and presumed that it was to be smothered or sat down on, in the interests of some one. A reporter who had listened to his talk, on getting off the car at Morrison street, met the legal adviser of the company which is anxious to replace the old pavilion with a modern market, and asked him why the company had not laid its plans before the Council. He said the plans were handed in at a late meeting of the Council, but no notice had been taken of them. A little later the reporter met President Zimmerman, of the Council, and asked him why no action had been taken on the plans for a market. The reply was that the Council had sent the plans up to the Executive Board at once, being desirous of forwarding the matter. Later, Auditor Devlin was asked about the plans. He said he was clerk of the Council, and of the Executive Board, and he had not known of the plans for a market being presented to either. This seems to leave the plans in the air.

SAVED THE CITY HALL.—For several years a patch of dandelions has been flourishing and increasing under one of the gratings near the Fifth-street entrance to the City Hall. A rather crusty taxpayer who visits the hall frequently has often called the attention of the superintendent of janitors to the weeds and the slovenly appearance they presented, and the danger of their roots forcing the foundation stones apart, but was never able to get them attended to till he made his complaint to the present head janitor, Simmons, who took pains to have the weeds exterminated. The complainant yesterday expressed to Simmons his satisfaction with the improvement and the increased neatness of the place, but concluded by calling attention to the fact that a maple seed had sprouted up through another grating near by, and said that unless it was destroyed the roots would work their way between the foundation stones, and might in time throw down the front of the building. Simmons turned out his forces and uprooted and destroyed the young tree, which was already over an inch in height, and feels now that he has performed his whole duty, and is therefore happy.

NEW SEWER DISTRICT.—A plat of the system of sewers, designed for the Southern Portland sewer district, surveyed and mapped some time ago, has been about completed by City Engineer Elliott. This district includes Southern Portland, Fulton and Fulton Park, and includes the region extending from the old Terwilliger place south to the Taylor Ferry road, and from the river to the top of the hills on the west. The great main sewer of the system will run along Macadam street, with an outlet down California street to the river. This will necessitate purchasing right of way for the outlet through a piece of private property at the foot of California street. Laterals coming down Dakota, Nebraska, Idaho, Vermont, Florida, Texas and other streets running east and west will empty into the main sewer in Macadam street, and all will discharge through the outlet in California street. There are petitions in for a number of sewers in this new district, and the work of constructing sewers there will be commenced before long.

WOULD YOU RATHER PAY 50 CENTS?—Persons who have put off paying their water rates till today will do well to get to the water office as early as possible this morning. There will probably be a big jam, almost like a fire sale, and many will have a chance to stand and be crowded in a string for hours, and kick themselves for not calling to pay their rate yesterday. There was no rush yesterday, nor has there been at any time since the first of the month, when the water rate was due; but people who are fond of excitement prefer to wait till the 10th to pay, and so enjoy being in a crowd. If they fail to get up to the desk today, a man will call around and shut off the water tomorrow, and collect the bill with 50 cents added for turning on the water again.

VISIT OF A '49ER.—Mr. F. S. Crosby, a pioneer of 1849, now a resident of Albany, visited Portland in connection with the recent Oddfellows' celebration, for the first time in ten years. After his arrival Mr. Crosby spent a short time at Oregon City, and was present, in the Summer of 1850, at the hanging of the five Indians who were convicted of the murder of Dr. Marcus Whitman, his wife, and 12 others, on November 29-30, 1847. After a year or so there he came to Portland and made this place practically his home until 1870, when he removed permanently to Albany. Conditions have so changed since his last visit in 1893 that he felt the services of a pilot indispensable, and so availed himself of the services of his daughter, a resident of the city, Mrs. C. M. Strauss.

WELL-KNOWN NURSE DIES.—Mrs. Katherine Edris died at the residence of her mother, 253 Twelfth street, yesterday morning. She had been in poor health for several months, but had been improving during the past few weeks, and her unexpected death comes as a shock to her many friends. She was a graduate nurse, and a granddaughter of "Grandma" Munra, who is so well known to the traveling public. Funeral services will be held at the residence, 253 Twelfth street, Saturday, at 1:30 P. M.

NOTICE.—The note in yesterday's paper reading, "'The Story of Christ Sold,' in pictures," etc., was an error, and should have read, "The story of Christ told in pictures, in the window of the Little Art Shop, Fourth and Yamhill."

THERE will be services at the Church of the Good Shepard, Upper Albina, today (Good Friday), from 11 M. until 1 P. M. All who desire to observe the day are invited to attend some time during the three hours.

CAR BREAKS AN AXLE.—Irvington car, No. 70, City & Suburban Railway, broke an axle while coming down the west end approach of the steel bridge at 10:30 last evening.

WHY APPLES SHOULD BE CHEAP.—A paragraph published yesterday in regard to the high prices asked for apples by retailers, notwithstanding that the market was flooded with apples, called forth a statement from a commission man, on "apples from a jobber's standpoint." He took a reporter through his store and warehouse and exhibited between 3000 and 4000 boxes of apples, of many good varieties, but a majority "Ben Davis," all from Hood River. He said he was trying to sell these apples at 50 cents to 75 cents per box for five-tier and at 75 cents to $1 for four-tiers, and found it impossible to find purchasers. He said: "We wish very much to sell them for the growers, but the market is so full of apples we cannot get rid of them. The apples are of good quality, sound and clean, and are there to speak for themselves. Retailers can have all they want at from 50 cents to $1 a box, according to size, so if they charge their customers $1.50 or $2 a box for any kind of apples they must be desirous of making enormous profits. There are no apples in the country worth such prices. The Newtown Pippins and Spitzenbergs were about all shipped out of the state last Fall to the great cities East. This market does not take such high-priced apples. This goes to show that the statement published yesterday, that apples were plentiful and ought to be cheap, but that retailers kept up the price, was correct. There are many thousands of boxes of apples, good, sound ones, waiting market in this city at reasonable prices, and no one should pay $2 a box, or even $1.50 a box for any of them. The value of such sums is not in a box of apples.

PASSION WEEK MEETINGS.—A growing audience of men and women gathers each noon in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium to listen to the Passion week sermons by the leading ministers of the city. Yesterday Dr. E. L. House, pastor of the First Congregational Church, gave an eloquent address on "The Tragedy of Sin." President W. H. Lee, of Albany College, presided. The speaker in his introductory remarks showed how familiarity with sin has covered up its real hideousness, though it is everywhere ruining nations, homes and individuals. "Sin, which is at first a tendency, becomes in time a permanent condition," said Dr. House. "Only as we fight against sin do we realize its mighty power, and he who ceases to fight finds sin permanently fixed upon him. Then becomes true the saying, 'He which is filthy, let him be filthy still.' And finally comes the last part of the tragedy of sin—its result, which is death. 'Sin, when it is finished, brings forth death.'" Dr. House closed his discourse by calling attention to the great remedy for sin, which is possible to all, namely, the love of Christ which led him to bear the sins of the world. The address today will be by Dr. Alexander Blackburn, on "The Atonement."

HOW THEY ESCAPED A FINE.—The morning of yesterday at 7 o'clock was about the most disagreeable of the season. Teachers on their way to the Chapman School were delayed by a car getting off the track, and were caught in such a violent squall of sleet, snow, rain and wind that they saw it would be useless to attempt to reach the school in time on foot; so they called a hack, and by paying four bits each saved themselves a drenching and avoided being fined $1 for being tardy. Their action was commended as very sensible and businesslike, for women, by School Clerk Allen, who, while on his way to the Chapman School, was caught out in the same manner. The day was not a bad day after all.

HOW'S THIS FOR RAIN?—Oregonians who wander from their native state find no place to equal their old home, in climate or any other way. Ed Dekum, who has for some time been a resident of Hawaii, and is connected with the Hawaiian Gazette Company, sends The Oregonian a meteorological report of that territory for February last, the coldest month on record there. As the weather here in February was delightful, it may be that a cog slipped in the weather machinery, and the weather intended for the Islands was expended here. The record mentions cold waves, heavy and numerous rains, heavy trade-winds, snow storms, electric storms, etc., in detail, and gives the rainfall of Nahiku, Maui, for the year ending February 28, 1903, as 492.48 inches, and Mr. Dekum adds, "And they say it rains in Oregon!"

DISTINGUISHED IRISHMEN MAY NOT SPEAK.—Replying to an invitation to address the people of this city, April 19, on the present state of Irish politics, the Hon. Joseph Devlin, M. P., on behalf of Colonel Finerty and himself, has wired the following from Omaha, Neb. "Engaged every night till May 2. Will communicate later."

GOOD FRIDAY SERVICES.

Catholic and Episcopal Churches to Observe the Day.

The Catholic and Episcopal Churches of the city will hold the customary services in keeping with Good Friday today. This morning the Catholic Churches will begin their services with the unveiling of the cross. The Passions will be chanted during the adoration of the cross after which the Missa Praesanctificata will follow. The Missa Praesanctificata takes the place of the regular mass on Good Friday, the difference being that the host is not consecrated in this service, that duty being performed on Holy Thursday, the day previous. The evening exercises will be the Tenebrae services, which will consist principally of the Lamentations of the Prophets.

At St. Mary's Cathedral in the evening, Rev. R. Quinlan will deliver a sermon on "The Passion of Our Lord."

The Episcopal Churches will have the regular matins in the morning. At St. Mark's Church, matins will begin at 9 o'clock. Promptly at 12 o'clock "The Three Last Hours" will be commemorated. The meditations at the latter service will be read by the Rev. J. P. D. Llwyd, rector of St. Mark's Church at Seattle. The service will continue until 3 o'clock, it being the regular three-hour service, customary on Good Friday.

At St. David's Church, corner East Twelfth and Belmont, there will be a three hours' service from 12 M. to 3 P. M. A service will also be held in the evening beginning at 7:30.

H. E. BOWEN UNDER BAIL.

For Beating a Girl He Is Held to Answer.

H. E. Bowen, proprietor of the Kingston lodging-house, accused of threatening to kill a girl whom he called his wife, was arraigned before Judge Hogue yesterday, and his bail fixed at $1500.

The girl whom he assaulted Wednesday night in a jealous quarrel was in a very critical condition during the day yesterday. Her face was badly bruised and black from the beating, and on her body were bad bruises where her assailant struck or kicked her.

Bowen expressed indignation at being arrested, and said that it was only his own business if he wanted to punish his wife.

H. C. FRICK DUE TODAY

STEEL MAGNATE ON HIS WAY HOME FROM SANTA BARBARA.

From a Clerk He Rose to Be the Guiding Genius of the Carnegie Company.

H. C. Frick, whom the telegraphic advices declare is to be the anti-Carnegie candidate for the presidency of the United States Steel Corporation, will arrive from California in his private car Pilgrim at 7:30 o'clock this morning. He is on his way East from the South, and, though his future movements have not been indicated to local railroad men, it is expected he will return by one of the Northern lines.

For some time Mrs. H. C. Frick has been a member of a colony of well-known millionairer at Santa Barbara, a colony that contained as its members such monied kings as John D. Rockefeller, and it is believed Mrs. Frick has joined her husband. The Eastern millionaires were spending the Winter in California.

H. C. Frick, Prominent Steel Magnate, who will arrive in Portland Today.

While Mr. Frick is prominently identified with the United States Steel Corporation and has been ever since the formation of the big trust, he has not been the guiding genius as he was in the Carnegie Company. If, as reports indicate, he is to succeed Charles M. Schwab, all this will be changed and the man who began life as a clerk for his grandfather will be one of the most prominent and central figures in American commercial life.

Incidentally the visit of Mr. Frick to the Northwest may have a bearing upon the future of the iron and steel industry of this section of the country. The United States Steel Corporation owns the Everett, Wash., steel plant which has been closed ever since the trust acquired the plant. There has been talk recently of organizing a rival corporation, and Seattle capitalists have formed a big company for the purpose of building a steel plant at or near that city. This corporation has acquired the Irondale, Wash., plant, at which desultory attempts have been made to manufacture iron and steel products.

At different points on Puget Sound and in Washington iron has been found. Some of this product is of very good quality while other ore is of an inferior grade. But steel and ironworkers are confident there is sufficient raw material of the right kind to warrant the establishment of vast steel works somewhere in the Northwest.

In Montana there have been several attempts to build steel plants, and at different times the Hill interests have shown an inclination to support a steel plant in that state. The heavy purchases in the Orient and the big demand in the Northwest is the basis for the speculation relative to the development of the Montana fields.

While Mr. Frick may not pay any attention to the activity of steel and iron men in the Northwest, his presence here at a time when plans are developing the Western fields are being advanced will excite considerable interest among the capitalists interested in the different schemes. The steel trust was anxious enough to shut off competition in the Northwest to acquire the Everett plant, and it might be steps would be taken to prevent further competition.

Mr. Frick first came into National prominence through his efforts to break the famous Homestead strike in 1892. His vigorous management of the Carnegie interests at that time resulted in open warfare between the strikers and their sympathizers and the Pinkerton forces and workmen whom the steel men had employed. During the trouble Mr. Frick was stabbed and shot presumably by either the strikers or their sympathizers. He has also, at different times, been made an object of attack by anarchists.

Carnegie and Mr. Frick had a falling out about six years ago and the two were recognized from that time on as leading rival interests in the Carnegie steel plants. When the organization of the steel trust was perfected both Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Frick assumed minor parts in the direction of affairs, Mr. Carnegie dropping out of active business life entirely. Talk of recalling Mr. Frick to the active management of the steel interests has been revived since President Schwab's frequent European trips have attracted attention.

Mr. Frick is a man of middle age, being 54 years old. He began life as a clerk for his grandfather, a flour merchant and distiller. Later Mr. Frick embarked, in a small way, in the coke business, and within a remarkably short time his trade had grown greater than that of all other interests in the United States, combined. Subsequently he was interested in the steel trade and at one time was president of the Carnegie Steel Company. He was at the same time president of the H. C. Frick Coke Company.

EPIDEMIC IS ABATED.

Smallpox at Shaniko Is Now Under Control.

The smallpox epidemic in Shaniko is well in hand. Seven cases have been reported from there within the last week, but Dr. Homer I. Keeny, who returned from there last night, said that he did not look for the disease to spread beyond its present limitations.

Most of the cases have been mild, and but one death has occurred.

The spread of smallpox in Shaniko, according to the reports that have been received by Dr. Woods Hutchinson, State Health Officer, has been due to the ignorance of a local physician there.

The first case occurred at the Shaniko Hotel. A man from the East came to Shaniko for the purpose of taking up a timber claim. He went into the mountains, but soon returned and was confined to his bed with smallpox. The local physician in charge treated the patient for poison oak, and he died within three days.

No precautions were taken to prevent the disease from spreading and the hotel employes, and employes of the stage company were exposed. Within a few days seven cases had broken out, and there was much excitement.

Dr. Alfred H. King, of Antelope, was called in and at once took charge of the epidemic. Dr. Hutchinson was communicated with and the cases ordered quarantined. Every one who had been exposed was vaccinated. A sister of Dr. Keeny, of Portland, was among the first to contract the disease, and Dr. Keeny went to Shaniko at once. Dr. Keeny and Dr. King then managed the epidemic, communicating daily with Dr. Hutchinson by telephone.

After talking with Dr. Keeny last night the State Health Officer said that he was well satisfied with the way the cases had been handled, and that he thought there would be no need for him to go to Shaniko.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

Rose Coghlan Tonight.

Tonight at the Marquam Grand Theater Portland theater-goers will have an opportunity of seeing one of the most discussed and successful plays of modern times, A. W. Pinero's "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," a play dealing with the society problem of the day. "The play's the thing," as has truthfully been said, but when presented by such an artist as Rose Coghlan. It is a question whether the player is not entitled to at least one-half the praise, in fact it has proved so in her case; as the press of the entire country have been unanimous in sounding her praises as never before.

"The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" is the story of an innately good woman fighting antagonistic circumstances, and being conquered by them. Rose Coghlan's impersonation of Paula Ray is a fine exposition of this difficult character. Her struggles against the inevitable consequences of sin committed through ignorance, and the after revelation of her real self when she is true to the promptings of her better nature, afford opportunities for the display of Miss Coghlan's superb art in depicting many varying emotions. Miss Coghlan has long been famous as the most expensively dressed woman on the American stage. Her costumes will be a revelation to those who attend. "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" will be the attraction at the matinee tomorrow, closing the engagement with tomorrow night's performance.

Cordray's Dark Tonight.

Cordray's Theater will be dark tonight on account of this being Good Friday. "Reaping the Harvest" will be given tomorrow afternoon and for the last time tomorrow night.

The play is designed to please the ladies and children who so numerously attend the matinee, as well as other theater-goers.

Commencing next Sunday afternoon and for three nights, the great Barlow Minstrels will be the attraction at Cordray's Theater, and lovers of real good old-fashioned minstrelsy will be pleased to learn the announcement. This is one of the oldest organizations of its kind on the road today and bears the proud distinction of being one of the best, but does not lay claim to the greatest number of people carried; nevertheless the minstrels give a performance in many respects superior to many more pretentious organizations.

Mr. John Griffith, the well-known tragedian, opens at Cordray's Theater next Wednesday evening in what is advertised as a sumptuous production of "Macbeth." The newspapers speak in the highest terms of Mr. Griffith and his company.

"When Knighthood Was in Flower."

This morning at 10 o'clock the advance sale of seats will begin at the Marquam Grand Theater for the charming actress, Effie Ellsler, who comes next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, April 13, 14, 15, in Julia Marlowe's famous spectacular scenic production, "When Knighthood Was In Flower." No drama of the present decade has equalled this remarkable chivalric romance of 16th century England in point of artistic and financial success. Since its dramatization by Paul Kester and its production at the Criterion Theater, New York, season before last, the production has netted Mr. Kester in royalties $25,000, Miss Marlowe herself $125,000, and her manager an immense sum. The book has already had a sale of over 300,000 copies and the demand has not diminished.

The present tour under the direction of Frank L. Perley bids fair to equal the preceding ones, artistically and financially, and Miss Ellsler has achieved the success of successes in the difficult role of Mary Tudor.

"His Absent Boy."

Harry Corson Clarke and his merry band of farceurs will be seen at the Baker Theater next Sunday afternoon and the rest of the week, in Sydney Rosenfeld's laughable hit, "His Absent Boy." Mr. Clarke is especially happy in that type of old man commonly styled "gay old boys," and in "His Absent Boy" he has unlimited opportunities for the display of his marked talents as a creator of laughs.

Starting from the idea of an elderly married man (hen-pecked by his strong-minded wife, who invents a son by a former wife in order to secure a more liberal amount of pocket money), such an experienced devisor of comic situations as Mr. Rosenfeld, and such an interpreter for his work as Mr. Clarke, have no trouble in creating a whole lot of good, clean fun, fun of the kind that is always enjoyable, and of the sort that sends an audience from the theater feeling the better for a wholesome entertainment.
