

OUTLAW'S SIXTH CITY MARSHAL PACKARD, OF BAKERSFIELD, IS DEAD.

Feeling Over the Tragedy is Intense, and Hulse, the Desperado's Accomplice, May Be Lynched.

BAKERSFIELD, CAL., April 20.—City Marshal J. T. Packard died this morning at 4:30 from the effect of wounds inflicted by outlaw McKinney and his companion, Al Hulse, making the sixth victim of the former's murderous career.

McKinney was president of the local series of Eagles, a prominent member of the Elks and other societies. The feeling in Bakersfield today over the death of Officers Packard and Tibbets is intense, and there is the strongest kind of feeling against Hulse, who is thought to have been implicated in the killing. Hulse is secure in the County Jail. It is reported that the man who was found in McKinney's room and the ammunition which McKinney was using was purchased by Hulse.

Additional particulars of the battle were learned through Tibbets, who entered through the alley, crossed a small yard and went up a small flight of stairs in the rear of the building. Then they entered the door and commenced their search. They had been looking for McKinney and Al Hulse, a former policeman, Hulse and McKinney were the first to fire, and the officers retreated, their steps on the floor, answering the leaden challenge of the outlaw and his associate in crime. The firing became furious. After a few shots had been exchanged, Tibbets fell to the ground, a gaping wound in his side. In the next instant Packard received a charge of buckshot in the arm and a bullet in his neck.

With Ernest Ester, Tibbets was attracted by the sound of the shots. They rushed to the alleyway entrance and pushed through the yard just as the other two officers were being fired upon. An oath of vengeance Bert Tibbets fired at McKinney, who from the doorway was turning his attention to the newcomers. The first shot was a fair one, striking the neck, and was answered by both Hulse and the wounded man. Then the latter appeared in the doorway again, and Bert Tibbets fired a second shot. It went true, a bullet striking the outlaw's face and filling his skull with lead. McKinney dropped his gun and fell to the ground. He disappeared as though by magic, but was soon caught. Will Tibbets died a few hours later, and Packard expired today.

MISSING LETTER FOUND. Had Armstrong Received It, Murder Might Not Have Been Committed.

BAKERSFIELD, CAL., April 20.—After long search, the letter written by Miss Armstrong to Pleasant Armstrong, a few hours preceding her death at his hands, has been unearthed. Just where it was, and how long it was hidden, is unknown. The letter is appended.

"Rock Creek, Dec. 24.—Dear Friend, I did not get your letter until last night, so will answer it this morning. I will be at your home tonight, and will see you there. MINNIE."

Armstrong says this was sent in answer to his communication in which he told her "that she was not to be killed." He says he was inquired twice during December 24 at the Rock Creek Postoffice for the letter, but both times Postmaster Caster said there was no mail for him. He says that if he had got the letter, the crime would in all probability not have been committed. The murderer is incensed over what will be deemed unfair treatment at the hands of the Postmaster, but that officer declared to Deputy Snow that he forwarded the letter to Baker City to be delivered to the Sheriff. Deputy Snow affirms the communication was never in the office before.

The question at issue was not so much the money, but the location of the new building which the School Board had selected. This location did not suit the taxpayers, and the School Board would not agree to select a more acceptable one, so the bond issue was defeated.

EIGHT BURNED TO DEATH

Disastrous Result of a Boy's Freight and Passenger Train Wrecked on Erie Road—Bodies Burned Beyond Recognition.

Many Lives in Peril.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., April 20.—Eight persons are dead and ten injured, three of them seriously, as the result of a collision between a passenger train and a freight train on the Erie Railroad early today near Red House, N. Y. Of the dead, only one—Robert N. Hotchkiss, of Meadville, a brakeman—has been identified. Seven bodies, apparently those of the most prominent women and a child, were burned beyond recognition in the fire which followed the wreck. The women are said to have boarded the train at Youngstown, and to have come from Pittsburgh.

R. S. McCready, a mail weigher, of Meadville, Pa., and Frank Barrett, of Jamestown, traveling salesman, are missing, and it is likely two of the unidentified bodies are those of the two men. The seriously injured are H. Pulster, New York City, badly bruised; C. W. Meck, Chicago, back injured; Anna Stenzel, Brooklyn, shocked and very sick; H. F. Cimper, mail clerk, Gerry, N. Y., ribs fractured, and hand crushed; John Doughan, bruised and badly cut; Mrs. Foote, 80 years old, St. Paul, bruised and shocked; H. C. Gabler, express messenger, Marion, Ohio, leg cut off, probably fatally hurt.

Mrs. Foote and E. C. Gamber are in the hospital at Salamanca. The others were able to proceed to their destination. The wrecked passenger train was known as No. 4, running from Chicago to New York. The engine was in charge of Engineer Samuel Cook and Fireman Fred Bell, who were driving the train. It was one of one combination car, two day coaches, the sleepers and two private cars. The train was derailed by striking a freight train, which was taking a siding at Red House. The wreck took fire, and the combination car, two day coaches and two sleepers, together with several freight cars, were burned to a cinder. There is some dispute as to the cause of the wreck. The passenger train was running east, and the freight, which was bound back, was in the siding. The freight train was taking a siding to the passenger train to go by. The siding is about a mile and a half long, and there is a tower of the block system near the west end of the siding. The freight train was entering the siding, and the foremost engine of the freight was sent in along the siding with the flagman to hold the freight train. It is alleged that the operator in the tower, Lawrence Vale, a boy 17 years old, saw the light engine of the freight which was bringing the flag, and supposed the freight was on the siding behind it. Vale then displayed a white signal toward the passenger train, indicating to the engineer that he had a clear track. The engineer on the passenger train failed to see the flagman sent out from the forward engine of the freight train, and saw only the clearing signal from the tower. The train ran toward the east end of the siding at high speed and collided with the second engine of the freight train just as the freight train was clearing the siding. The passenger engine and some of the coaches crashed into a small wooden structure used as a feed store and schoolhouse. The first half dozen cars of the freight were wrecked. They were loaded with coal. Fire immediately started in the wreckage, creating an intense heat. All but three of the cars of the freight followed the engine, and the mass of wreckage was soon in flames. The tracks were strewn for rods with burning wood and coal and heaps of twisted iron work.

"ALL SAME MELICAN MAN"

Chinese Footpads Pull a Pistol on a Countryman and Get $20. For the first time in the memory of the Portland police a Chinaman has held a pistol to the head of another Chinaman and demanded his money. Tong Tsang, a collector of the Chung Sang Tong Company, of 185 Second street, was robbed of $20 by three of his countrymen, at Second and Alder streets, last evening at 10 o'clock. One of the bold highwaymen held a pistol to Tong's head while the other two went through his pockets, finding about $20, the results of his day's collection. The first thing taken from the victim was his police whistle. Evidently the robbers would not take any chances of Tong's calling the police. The robbery, one of the most daring of the year, occurred on the northeast corner of Second and Alder streets. Tong says that three Chinamen, who were the other side of Second street, and that when they saw the holdup they turned and fled as fast as their legs could carry them. No other persons were in sight at the time, though within an hour after several white people passed the corner. The highwaymen watched their chance so well that the police believe they must have known that Tong carried a quantity of money, and that it was his habit to pass that corner at a certain time each evening.

Done Up by Elkins.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Senator Stephen B. Elkins, of West Virginia, made defendant in a lawsuit for $50,000 filed today in the District Supreme Court by Robert Burton and George A. Dubreuil. The declaration in the case alleges that Senator Elkins employed the plaintiffs in November, 1901, to procure for him certain information, plans, data and legal opinions concerning the Western Maryland Railroad Company, for the purpose of aiding him to acquire a controlling interest in that company. He proposed to pay them for services rendered hereof, but that Senator Elkins, in this matter, provided he obtained a controlling interest in the road. The declaration avers that they accepted the employment on these conditions, and from time to time furnished the defendant certain information at the expense of much time and great labor, and also transmitted him legal information, etc., which assisted him in securing the controlling interest in the company. When, however, they requested compensation for their services, Senator Elkins, it is stated, failed and neglected to pay them. It is declared that after the Goulds had acquired the Western Maryland, Messrs. Burton and Dubreuil demanded their share, but that Senator Elkins refused to pay, although he had made millions out of the deal.

Wrecked by Tornado.

ST. LOUIS, April 20.—A special to the Republic from Fredericktown, Mo., says: A tornado, accompanied by hail and rain, passed over this section yesterday, nearly destroying White Springs, a Summer resort, three miles south of here. Seventeen houses were wrecked, but no fatalities are reported.

Eugene Breivites.

EUGENE, OR., April 20.—(Special.)—J. C. Vels, F. F. Rogers and H. G. Meyer, of the State Board of Barber Examiners, were in Eugene today. They found some slight violations of the state law, but nothing to justify legal procedure. Plans are in operation today to provide for a Fourth of July celebration for Eugene. Nothing definite has been done.
