WILL HAVE TO PAY A LICENSE.—Whole-sale merchants, sawmill men and others who keep teams to deliver their goods and charge carriage for doing so, are now to be added to the list of those required to pay vehicle license. Truckmen and expressmen complain that this style of doing business interferes with their legitimate business and the matter will have to be attended to. The present city ordinance providing for taxing express wagons, etc., appears to cover the case as it provides that "the owner of every vehicle used for conveying goods from place to place within the city and receiving pay for doing the same, shall pay a quarterly license of $2 for each one-horse vehicle, and $2 quarterly for each additional horse used." The delivery wagons of retail dealers and department stores, which make no charge for delivering goods, are not required to pay a license, and the delivery wagons of other dealers have heretofore been considered as being in the same class. As millmen, who deliver lumber add $1 per thousand feet to their bill for cartage, and wholesalers also add cartage to their bills for goods delivered, they will hereafter have to pay a license. It is not expected that the matter will be any objection to this, and it will materially increase the revenue from vehicle licenses.

SMELT IN THE SANDY.—Residents along the Sandy are now preparing to enjoy a season of smelt fishing. The little fish are beginning to run up that river after having been in the Columbia for nearly five months. They have been caught by tons and tons in the Corvallis and shipped to this market, and all around the Northwest. Of late years they have not often visited the Sandy in large numbers, but the prospect is that they will be plentiful there this season, as a man who has been fishing over on the Columbia, above Vancouver, on Sunday, says they were running up the river in millions. He caught a lot by scooping them out to increase the hands and kicking them out with his feet. A farmer from the Sandy, who was in the city yesterday, hearing of this said he must hurry home and catch a lot of smelt to smoke. He says smoked smelt are delicious. All that is needed is to sprinkle a little salt over them one night and then hang them up and smoke them. They are tender and sweet. If they are salted any longer they become brittle when dry. The people of this city consume vast quantities of smelt when fresh, but do not care much for smoked ones, which are, however, to be found in the markets and on the lunch tables in beer saloons.

BROKE HER ARM SKYLARKING.—With a hatchet in his hand and fire in his eye, John F. Obrock, a contractor for concrete work, was met yesterday afternoon sailing down Alder street. On being asked where he was going, he said he was bound for Dr. Harry Lane's office to have the setting of two bones in the left arm of one of his daughters. Just what part the hatchet was to cut in the matter he did not explain. He, however, stated that the daughter, who weighs 150 pounds, was married Friday evening to one of his employees, and that yesterday morning after he left home she got skylarking with her sister, and in playfully kicking at her slipped and fell, and putting out her left arm to save herself, broke both bones at the wrist. This, he said, necessitated her husband leaving his work to go to the doctor's with her. "If I had been at home," said Mr. Obrock, "there would have been none of this skylarking and all this trouble would have been saved."

WHOLE COUNTRY IS IN BLOOM.—Orchards in Portland and the low lands surrounding, are now in full bloom, the apple trees having put forth their blossoms. The showery weather has been very beneficial to the fruit, and the blossoms of all kinds are beginning to look green. Lilacs are in bloom in many places. Marigold trees are loaded with blossoms, and the larkspur locust is putting forth tiny leaves. The peach and apricot trees have shed their blossoms and the ground under some varieties of early cherries is white with the petals they are showering down. On the hills the cherries are a week later, and Royal Anne cherries are only just beginning to bloom, while the apple trees have not opened their blossoms. The season is a little late, but a few fine warm days will make the country look like one great flower garden, and orchardists are hopeful of occupying any damage from late frosts.

FRONT STREET CROWDED.—Front street, in the commercial district, was crowded yesterday with the display of fresh vegetables, and the vehicles of dealers buying them. Apples continue to be over-abundant, and piles of half-decayed ones are seen in the rear of many warehouses. Oranges are nearly as plentiful, of about as many varieties, and of all sizes and shapes. Some of the largest and finest looking ones are the least desirable, and those who buy them complain. Large rows of crates of cabbage and cauliflower line the edge of the sidewalk, while artichokes, asparagus, barrels of chlorey, bales of celery, occupy the inner side of the walk, and a struggling crowd of dealers and buyers block the center. People who have no special business on this part of Front street prefer to avoid it.

BEST TIMES IN CITY ENGINEER'S OFFICE.—Citizens who visit the City Engineer's office early in the morning and find nearly 60 deputies and employees in various departments overhauling order books to see what work for the day has been mapped out for them, are able to form an idea of the large amount of work going on in the way of street, sewer, sidewalk and other improvements. Probably many will be surprised to find so many men at work in the Engineer's department. There are five surveyors, each with crews of three men, making 20 in all. One of these, in looking over the order book, keeps a record of the work done by each man, and to assist in looking after them. There are seven men attending to street repairs, seven who are looking after bridge repairs and six who attend to sewers. The steam roller has two men to operate it, and there are two sidewalk inspectors. Five draughtsmen and assistant draughtsmen and a computer are employed in the draughting room, and to assist in looking after all these, there is besides the chief deputy, four regular deputies and a stenographer in the department. As soon as the outside men have noted what they have to do, they scatter out and are seen no more till evening, but are to be found in every part of the city all day long. The city is larger than it used to be and is growing faster than ever before.

SALMON RUN A HARD RACE.—The school of salmon which entered the Columbia a month ago and on which fishermen along the river have been preying ever since, has now passed up above Vancouver and to Oregon City, and but few are being taken in the lower river. A great many salmon are now being received here from about Washington, and also from Oregon City, and several tons per day are being shipped to a cannery on the lower river. All the time before the season opened these caught down the river went to cold storage and none could be obtained for the markets here. Now the market men are getting even by shipping three to four tons a day down the river after supplying the local demand. The fishermen down the river are lying on their oars, awaiting the arrival of another big school of salmon in the river, and will try to let a few of them get far up during the June run many will manage to get past the traps and seines, and some will reach the spawning grounds in the Clackamas and elsewhere.

MORE RIVER IMPROVEMENT.—There is considerable work being done at present in the way of river improvement in this region. The snagboat Mathloma is busy pulling snags on the north fork of Lewis River. She has pulled several hundred, and there still remains a large number to be pulled. The Mathloma has struck a bountiful harvest, and is now digging about 300 feet a day. She has, however, been in operation when high water comes. The Port of Portland dredge Columbia is digging a channel 300 feet wide and 25 feet deep at Slauters, and is making good progress. The dredge Laid is cutting a channel 300 feet wide and 22 feet deep across Pillar Rock bar, and will probably have it completed by the end of this month. She will then be put at work near the bell buoy below Harrington Point, and will remain there a month or two.

PLENTY OF SCHOOL CHILDREN.—A number of contracts were given at the office of the School Board yesterday looking over plans prepared by Architect Jones for additions to several school buildings, bids for the erection of which will be received Thursday. One of the proposed additions is for the Stephens School, to front on East Eighth street. It will be a very neat structure, 50x75 feet over all, three stories in height, and will cost about $10,000. There is also an addition for the North Central School, 50x75 feet, two stories in height, to contain eight rooms and a basement. An addition to Highland School to contain ten rooms, an assembly hall, office and library, is now under course of construction, and there is a demand for more, as the number of children is constantly increasing. The School Board is of opinion that there will be no necessity for President Roosevelt to lecture the citizens of Portland on the desirability of raising large families, as it puts them to their trumps to keep the supply of school buildings up to the demand now.

WAS HUNGRY FOR SALMON.—A Portland girl, who is attending a ladies' seminar at Washington, D. C., has written to her father that she is hungry for a feast of chinook salmon, and that the markets of the National capital do not supply the same. The father was looking around the markets yesterday in search of the largest chinook obtainable, which he proposes to have packed in ice and sent to his daughter. He found a whopper which will make a feast for all the pupils and everybody else connected with the seminar, and will see to it that hereafter his daughter is supplied with all the fish she needs to develop her brain to the fullest capacity.

SHAD MAY BE SCARCER.—Now that Columbia River shad have established a reputation for excellence with Portland people, there is a prospect that the supply will not be as large as usual this season. A great many used to come from the fishing grounds near Pillar Rock, as some of the seines caught three tons per day last year. Now a shad can be seen to be operated in Astoria, and the shad from the Pillar Rock seines will be sent there. There will, however, be enough caught along the river to supply the market, as, if necessary, fishermen will go out drifting for them with proper shad seines.

CITY PARK ANIMALS NEED A PHYSICIAN.
 J. D. Meyer, of the Park Board, has been long endeavoring to have his friend Dr. Wheeler appointed physician to the City Park free of salary, for the benefit of the monkeys and other animals in the menagerie. The doctor has been very enthusiastic over the appointment, but since one of the bears in the menagerie has died for want of medical attention, Mr. Meyer says he shall insist on the appointment being made.

His subject was to have been "Royalty, Ideals," and many of his local admirers will be sorry to learn that the engagement has been canceled.

"The Jew in Music."—The programme of the Woman's Club for next Friday afternoon promises to be one of the most interesting of the kind yet. Mrs. S. M. Blumauer is chairman of the afternoon. Mrs. Samuel Harris will read an original paper on "The Jew in Music." Two vocal selections will be rendered by Miss Edna R. Gates.

The fourth of the series of popular concerts which are being given under the direction of Elmore Rice was given last night at the First Baptist Church before a large audience, among whom were noted many people prominent in local musical circles.

If one were a total stranger in the city and attended one of the concerts at the Baptist Church he would be at once struck by the absence of the whispering and general inattention usually so much in evidence at places of amusement, and be convinced that the audience were thoroughly appreciative of good music.

Miss Ella M. Connell, a brilliant young pianist, made an excellent impression with her playing of the "Moonlight Sonata" and two Chopin numbers, "Scherzo" in B flat minor and "Berceuse," a delicious composition, in which the left hand plays a soft, lullaby accompaniment to the right hand's more stirring melody. Mrs. Rose Elsie Bauer's numbers were sung with dramatic power and expression, and in Gregor's "Ich Liebe Dich" the passionate tenderness of the song was especially well interpreted. As an encore selection Mrs. Bauer sang the popular "Japanese Love Song."

Mrs. Sherman D. Brown, violinist, played "Legende" (Wienawski), and to an insistent encore responded with "Madrigal," by Simonetti, a composition of exquisite melody, full of the freshness and the morning. Mrs. Brown was presented with a huge bouquet of red carnations and lilies of the valley.

Dudley Buck's "Creole Lover's Song" and "The Invocation" of D'Harclo were Mr. Zan's selections, and both songs are well adapted to his resonant baritone voice. Mr. Zan's encore was "Violeta" (Albert Milon-Benard). The closing number of the programme was "Ave Maria" (Bach-Gounod), sung by Mrs. Bauer, with a violin obligato by Mrs. Brown.

BENEFIT WAS SUCCESSFUL.
 An interested matinee crowd attended the benefit performance given at the Marquam Theater yesterday afternoon in aid of the Robert E. Bell fund to establish a sanitarium for consumptive actors and actresses in Colorado and Arizona.

The exact amount realized by the performance is not known yet, as the accounts are not balanced, but the proceeds will probably amount to $200. Similar performances have been given all over the United States, and at other cities of like population each raise $300, the sanitarium will speedily be built.

Yesterday's performance at the Marquam was one of the most unique theatrical events ever held in this city. Tragedy, comedy and vaudeville each held the stage in turn. By the time the matinee girl had got to her feet and given a fine bit of emotional acting, she was ready to laugh at a ludicrous topical song. The musical programme was furnished by the musicians from the three theater orchestras in Portland, by permission of the board of directors of the American Federation of Musicians, local No. 39. It was a treat to hear such excellent music, particularly the overture to Rossini's overture, "William Tell." The stage setting was the work of stage employees furnished by the board of directors of the International Association of Theatrical Stage Employees of the United States and Canada.

Mrs. Brune in "Urania," Harry Corson Clark in "What Happened to Jones" and Hattie Bernard in "The Resurrection" were the three chief attractions, and they were liberally applauded, especially by members of the theatrical profession who were present as spectators. Errol Dunbar as Dr. Keyorke in "Urania" came in for his special share of applause by his fine acting. He is a fine actor, and his performance was a masterpiece.

MRS. REED IN VAUDEVILLE.
 Portland Contralto Will Sing With Weston & Herbert Tonight.
 Mrs. Walter Reed, the famous Portland contralto, will make her first appearance in vaudeville this evening at the Marquam Grand with the Weston & Herbert Vaudeville Company. The many admirers of Mrs. Reed's voice will undoubtedly turn out to hear her and see what success she has in this line of endeavor. Dr. Mrs. Reed has frequently appeared upon the stage in the past in light opera, but this will be her initial plunge into vaudeville.

The Weston & Herbert Vaudeville Company has been doing a tremendous business throughout the country, and simply because of the fact that they give the best shows of the kind that have been for the public in the past ten years. Not since the days of Hopkins' Trans-Atlantic has a vaudeville company made such a hit on the road. This triumph is due to the efforts of the management to present only first-class acts and only such features as have a reputation with such Eastern houses as Keith's and Proctor's.

Ralph Stuart Coming.
 Ralph Stuart, who, with his own New York company, will open a limited season of stock at the Baker Theater next Sunday afternoon, April 26, needs no introduction to Portland patrons of the drama. He played a most successful engagement here last year, and made many friends who will no doubt accord him a hearty welcome.

His present support is said to be even better than he has had heretofore—each member of his organization having been especially selected for the line of parts assigned him or her.

The itinerary of the company embraces but five cities, viz: New York, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Ore., and Seattle. When the season opens and closing the first named city.

In Oregon, and there is a strong probability that one of them will be called "Oregon."

California has always proved an excellent field for the playwright. A score of plays, and some very good ones among them, have ever since been produced in California. "California" that comes to Cordray's Theater tomorrow evening enjoys the distinction of being the only one that is named after the Golden State. The character who has won her greatest and best fame, Dolores, the character, in which Mrs. Rose Elsie Bauer has essayed to star, is that of a Spanish girl, who has been deeply wronged, and some excellent emotional work may be safely looked for. The other members of the company are competent and well-known professional actors, and a good performance of this newest state-named play may be looked for.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell.
 Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the distinguished English actress, will come to the Marquam Grand Theater next Monday, Tuesday matinee and night, April 27 and 28, in a repertoire of her latest successes, supported by her London company, after triumphal engagements in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and other cities. She will appear under the direction of Charles Frohman, during which she will present one or more of the famous characters in which she has won her greatest and best fame. Mrs. Campbell has made a profound impression on the theater-goers of this country, and her first visit here is especially important, not only on account of her greatness as an actress and interesting personality, but especially so as she will give theater-goers an opportunity of seeing her latest successes.

Last Day of "Resurrection."
 "Resurrection" will receive its last presentation at Cordray's Theater tonight. No play presented at a local theater this season has entertained the people who witnessed it better than this production of "Resurrection." The play has met with a measure of success, financially and artistically, at the hands of the company presenting it, and the production of this character presented at Cordray's Theater will give it even more local prestige than this popular family resort has enjoyed in the past.

Harry Corson Clark.
 "What Happened to Jones" is a winner at Baker's Theater, and is attended by laughing crowds. The members of the "Transcontinental" Passenger Service, now in season in this city, have been invited to attend Baker's Theater any evening this week.

Baseball Men to Be There.
 The Seattle and Portland teams of the Pacific Coast League have been invited to occupy boxes at the Marquam tonight as guests of Manager Hellig and Weston and Herbert.

Expert to Report on Parks.
 Park Expert J. C. Olmsted is now at work examining the Portland parks and plans blocks, and will report to a special meeting of the Park Board to be held in a few days. Commissioner L. L. Hawkins has had Mr. Olmsted in charge, and thus far the only plans that have been visited have been the park blocks and some of the East Side pleasure grounds. Several plans have been suggested for improvement, but nothing definite has been decided on by the members of the Board.

Improvements at Hot Lake.
 UNION, Or., April 21.—(Special).—The new brick bathhouse being erected at Hot Lake is nearing completion. The company has decided that the new extensive improvement to be made at the resort will be a first-class hospital building for treating cases requiring surgical attention. With this addition Hot Lake will be a thoroughly equipped health resort for all ailments of the flesh.
