IMPROVEMENTS AT FOOT OF ANKENY BRIDGE.

The foot of Ankeny bridge is not an agreeable place for a promenade these days, as there is no end nor bottom to the mud there. The heretofore open space between Ankeny and Burnside streets on the river bank, 200 feet in length, has been leased for a term of ten years by Smith & Howard, who have built a wharf along the harbor line from Ankeny to Burnside 200 feet long, 50 feet wide, where barges are discharging sand, gravel, rock screenings and stone pavement blocks from their quarry at St. Helens. The barge boats are being used to dump sand, gravel, crushed rock, screenings, etc., into them from scows, thus saving the rehandling of the material. The fill will act as a fire wall to prevent the spread of fire along under the docks, and it will be a good thing when the open space at the rear of other wharves which now lie in spreading fire is also filled. The wharves and the buildings facing on Front street are left in the fill for the talked-of railroad which Smith & Howard say is bound to be built to run in the rear of the docks parallel with Front street, to bring goods to the warehouses there. The improvements planned will cost a large sum of money.

WHAT ONE HEN DID—An enthusiastic amateur poultry fancier on the East Side imagines he has developed a new and valuable breed of hens, which will largely increase the poultry product of the country. He has a black hen of a mixed or mongrel breed, containing blood of several good varieties. She was utilized to incubate a batch of eggs from blue-blooded stock, and she charged this duty in good style, bringing out a chicken for every egg entrusted to her. She marched out with her litter of chicks on April 16, and commenced laying on April 17, and has laid an egg every day since, besides scratching for her family. This hen's proud owner says is a feat unheard of in poultry circles, and he considers the best hen he has. He is only fearful that she will fall in discharging her double duties and "wean" her chickens sooner than desirable in order to begin incubating a new brood. He will watch her carefully and render any assistance possible, and if she succeeds in rearing one brood, and producing another at the same time, he will consider it a fortune in hen. As a hen has no teeth, she is not likely to bite off more than she can chew, and all poultry-growers will await results with interest. People having hens which have laid extra large eggs will now please take a back seat for a time.

SEWER WILL BE BUILT—Isiah Buckman, who owns a tract of land containing two double blocks on the line of East Ankeny street, between East Twenty-fourth and East Twenty-eighth, called at the City Hall yesterday to state that he was surprised to learn that a contract had been let for the construction of a sewer through the tract. He said that no street had been opened on the tract, but that the City & Suburban Railway Company had been granted an easement by him to construct their line through it. He was confident that the street had never been opened, and that the city should get itself into trouble by building a sewer where it had no right to do so, and for which it would have to pay. The recorder was overhauled, and it was found that a street had been opened and paid for and opened through the tract in 1896. In some way the proceeding had been overlooked, and the city had been misled. A reporter asked him, but the records attested him, and the construction of the sewer will be proceeded with.

ONE CUSTOMER HARD TO PLEASE—A grocer who some time ago took in his display of fruits and vegetables from the sidewalk and arranged them conspicuously inside, and who had become very much pleased with the result and had no desire to make a display on the sidewalk any more, was badly rattled yesterday by a housekeeper who came in after spinach and found he had none. She said, "I don't like this style of displaying vegetables. When you had them outside I could see what you had and could select what I wanted. Now I have to come inside and find you haven't got what I want. I wish you would put your display out on the sidewalk." The grocer told her he would like to accommodate her, but the city authorities would allow it, and he said he was always pleased to have his customers come inside, as he often sold them things which could not be displayed outside.
