CINNABAR, Mont., April M .- President CINNABAR, Mont., April 28.—President Rooseveit's vacation is at an end. He greeted the members of his party and a large number of people at the Mammoth Hot Springs in Yellowstone Park today, and tomorrow he will resume his tour, which is to end in Washington June 5. The President, who arrived at Yellowstone yesterday, is the picture of health, and it can be seen at a clarge that the stone yesterday, is the picture of bealth, and it can be seen at a glance that the time he has spent in the park has been greatly beneficial to him. His eye is bright and his face is bronzed. He speaked nenthusiastic terms of the park and of the good time he had white touring it.

Word had gone forth several days ago that he would meet the people living in the park and vicinity this morning, and when he arrived at the Mammoth Hot Springs Hotel where the reception was when he arrived at the Mammoth Hot Springs Hotel, where the reception was held, he found a couple of hundred men and women there to greet him. The President addressed them briefly, speaking of the good time he had had during the past two weeks, and then shook hands with each one. He spent the rest of the day in inspecting the post and riding horsoback with Major Pitcher. Before starting temogrow, he will participate in the laying of the corner-stope of the new gate at the entrance to the park. gate at the entrance to the park.

The President and all those who ac-companied him on his tour of the park are delighted with the trip. No accident are delighted with the trip. No accessive occurred, and the weather was most of the time delightful. John Burroughs, who accompanied the Fresident most of the time, was also greatly benefited by his outdoor life, and his face is also bronzed.

The President spent most of his time in studying the habits of the different species of game which abound in the park. He would lie for hours near Hours Among the Elk. He would lie for hours near a herd of elk or mountain goats and frequently walk for eight or ten miles to observe them. He also studied bird life with Mr. Burroughs, and showed himself particularly well posted on this subject. Burroughs was able to show him but one bird with which he was not acquainted, namely, the soltaire. The President's camp was composed of two Sibley tents and one wall tept, without board floore and one wall tent, without beard floors, and, white everything was very simple, yet it was quite comfortable. The party that accompanied him was a small one, consisting of Major Pitcher, Mr. Burroughs, a couple of orderlies and two cooks. There was also a small force of men to man the pack wagons.

While fortunately there were no accidents, a number of amusing incidents occurred. One of them havened during the curred. One of them happened during the President's visit to Geyser Land a few days ago. The President and Mr. Bur-roughs were on skees and started to race down hill. The snow was soft, and Mr. Burroughs, who had never used a skee before, soon found himself with his head in the snow and his feet in the air. He had hardly struggled to his feet when the President repeated the performance. Neither one was hurt, but Major Pitcher secured excellent photographs of the cat-astrophe, which he has promised to have

The party was fortunate in running across game. Thousands of elk and deer and a number of mountain sheep and goats were encountered, and their habits were closely studied. The President and Mr. Burroughs also saw many strange birds, and the latter is quite enthusiastic over some of the feathered tribe that in-habit the park.

One Narrow Escape

While no accident occurred, the President had a number of narrow escapes.
One day, in company with Major Pitcher, he fired a new revolver at a tree. The weapon was defective and the empty shell flew back and gruck the President on the cheek, drawing blood. If it had struck a little higher up it would have injured, if not blinded, an eye. This bit of target practice was the only time the President used a firearm during his tour of the park.

The President rode a big gray horse named Bonaparte during the whole of his tour. The horse belongs to Troop R, Third Cavalry, and is one of the surestfooted animals in the park. He showed what he could do in the first day out. To reach the first camp, which was named by the soldiers Camp Roosevelt, it was necessary to traverse for about two miles narrow mountainous trail which was overed with ice. Some of the party dis-counted and led their horses down the trail, for a misstep meant death or serious but the President stuck to the and guided Bonaparte safely down

The longest walk enjoyed by the President was taken on Easter Sunday. He etarted out alone in the morning, declining the offer of other members of the party to accompany him. He spent the day in climbing mountains and walking slone the test. along the trail. He covered fully 20 miles. and did not return to camp until 7 o'clock in the evening. When Major Pitcher found the President was determined to go by himself, he induced him to take a revolver, so that he could signal in case of accident.

The first three d ays in camp the weather was extremely cold and the President was compelled to break the ice in his bucket before performing his morn.

He did not care to ven ture any prediction as to the outcome. Mr. Tyner, at the time the papers were taken, was still technically Assistant Attorney-General, and this fact will figure in the consideration of the question by the Department of Justice. It is pointed out, however, that, although Mr. Tyner still held the office, his resignation not having yet become operative, the accept ance of the resignation was with the strict understanding, specifically stated in the letter of acceptance, that he would not attempt to administer the duties of his office. It is fully realised by the Postmaster-General that the case presents a delicate situation, and for that reason he declined today to enter into a discussion of the facts.

Mr. Sherman spoke on the status of the House. He said the 97 members present constituted a quorum and that the House was not destroyed by the withdrawal of the Speaker.

The Lindley bill was then recalled from third reading. Mr. Tice offered the several sections of the Mueller bill as substitutes and they were adopted, the first roll call being 89 to 2. A new section limiting all grants to 20 years was adopted. In order to prevent reconsideration of this action this afternoon a motion was made to reconsider after each amendment was adopted, and then the motion was laid on the table.

At 2:25 o'clock Speaker Miller, with the members of the Republican steering committee, emerged from the Speaker's room in the rear of the House. He smillingly ascended to the rostrum, and as he did so Mr. Allen, who was still occupying the chair, extended his band in a triendity way. The House applauded. There was laughter as the Speaker brought down his gavel and said:

"The House will be in order."

Mr. Allen, still standing beside the Speaker, informed him of the proceedings in his absence and of the passage of the Rinaker resolution. A roll call was begun on a motion to adjourn to 10 A.
