PRESIDENT'S RESTFUL DAY AT HO TEL DEL MONTE.

Would Not Review the Troops Fort Monterey on Sunday-Today at San Jose,

HOTEL DEL MONTE, Cal., May 14-President Roosevelt today spent one of the most restful Sundays he has encou tered since his trip began. In one of the most beautiful spots in California, two miles from the nearest city, unhampered by curious crowds, he has had a chance to rest thoroughly and prepare for the coming week, which promises to be one of the busiest of his journey.

His train arrived here at midnight, but he did not leave it until about 9 o'clock this morning. At that time Colonel Ward and a detachment of the Fifteenth Infantry, who are stationed at Fort Monterey, headed by the regimental band, arrived at his car. After the President had greeted the Colonel and his staff he was driven to the hotel, where he and his party had breakfast.

At the conclusion of that meal the Pres ident and a small party rode horseback over the famous 17-mile drive along the sea, wante Governor Pardee and some of the members of the President's party drove over the route in carriages. The weather was all that could be desired and the trip was greatly enjoyed by the President, who was enthusiastic over the beau tiful scenery.

In the afternoon he attended St. John's Chapel, on the hotel grounds. The servces were conducted by Rev. Hobart Chetwood, the chaplain. At the conclusion of the services the President, Secretary of the Navy Moody, President Butler, of Columbia College, and President Wheeler, of the University of California, spent a couple of hours strolling about the hotel

After dinner President Roosevelt held an informal reception in one of the pariors of the hotel. He shook hands with the guests of the house and with the officers who are stationed at Fort Monterey. The uniforms of the latter and the handsome dresses of the ladies made the scene a brilliant one.

One of the incidents scheduled for today failed to materialize. When word was received at Monterey that the President would ride over the sea road. Mayor John son appointed a committee of citizens of that town to accompany him as a bodyguard. The President did not learn of this plan until he arrived here, when he promptly vetoed it, saying he did not desire to have an escort on the ride. While the committee did not go with him on the ride, they met him on his return through Monterey and escorted him to the hotel. Secretary Loeb late this afternoon made ome slight changes in the programme to be observed at San Francisco. He declined to make them public here, preferring that the committee in that city shall give them out, The President will board his train at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning and make his first stop at Pajaro, he is scheduled to arrive at 8:50 o'clock. Tomorrow night he will spend at San Jose, San Francisco will be reached Tuesday afternoon. It was the intention to have the President review the troops statloned at Fort Monterey, today, but he declined to do so on account of its being Sunday. He requested Colonel Ward to do away with all formality, as he desired to spend the day quietly and not participate in any official functions. His wishes were respected, and the only evidences of the soldiers were the guards about the hotel and detachments stationed along the line of the ride to keep the road clear.

BROKEN EMBRELLA HANDLE FOR GAVEL AT FAIR OPENING DAY.

> Governor Odell Sits at Hanna's Feet and Roosevelt Chaffs Cleveland -One Great Crush.

St. Louis Special.

The scene on the little lexis platform from which the President and the rest spoke in the dedication of the Exposition buildings was one that must long remain in the memories of those who were continuous. fortunate enough to be there.

The hurly-burly rush, like a football push through the center, with which the secret service men, President Nicholas Murray Butler and a number of other distinguished gentlemen in their ranks pushed the President through the masses rowd of tens and tens of thousands was In itself excitement enough for one day.

It landed him on the little platform out over the great floor, five times as large as that of Madison Square Garden. There were following rushes headed by police officers. One of them brought ex-President Grover Cleveland, smiling, philosophically, in on its crest; another landed Senator Hanna. Commissioner Thomas H. Carter and President Francis came in President Roosevelt and Mr. Cleveland got into a corner and were seated. A new wave of humanity broke and Secretary Root stepped out of it. Secretary Hitch-cock climbed in from somewhere over a railing. A great cry went out for a gavel.

There was no gavel. A detective broke the handle from his umbrella and handed it up. Mr. Francis pounded with it vigor-ously upon the rail. Nobody on the stand, even, could hear a sound. "Gratifying exercise for Mr. Francis," observed the President to Mr. Cleveland, but not impressive."

Mr. Cleveland shook his head and aughed stiently.

There's a man out here," announced a St. Louis detective, "says his name is Potter, and has a right to come in. Does "The Bishop, by George?" exclaimed the President, roaring with laughter.

Bishop Potter was brought in, lugging his own black suit case, in which was his Cambridge University robe, which he

Mr. Francis pounded some more with the umbrella handle.

"Make way for the Governor of New York State," howled a volunteer master of ceremonies. Nobody made way. If a deliberate effort had been made to belittle the chief executive of the State of New York more to that end could not have been accomplished than has been done in St. Louis since he got hera There was nothing left for the Governor except to butt in. He did. He squeezed in between the secret service men, and discovered, somewhat to his surprise, ap-parently, that no seat was there for him. "Governor, sit on the floor," announced in anonymous voice.

Governor Odell, who seemed somewhat dazed by the way things were going, promptly sat on the floor between the feet of Secretary Root and Mr. Hanna. General Corbin got in. Governor Yates. of Illinois, got as far as the secret serv-ice row and stopped. So did Governov Balley, of Kansas. Chief of Police Kiely found himself stepping heavily on the fee of a large, pleasant-faced man in the alsle back of the platform. He apologized

"Don't mind. It's all right," said the trampled one, sweetly, "I'm only a poor ittle Governor." It was Wells of Utah. There were 15 other Governors around omiowhere, but nobody know where they

The President discovered Governor Odell sitting at Senator Hanna's feet, "Pleased to see you, at last, sitting at the feet of Gamallel in earnest," he said. Governor Odell forced a smite. Mr. Francis evidently concluded that order was not to be obtained with a broken umbrella handle and called on ex-Sen-ator Carter to preside. Senator Carter made a speech which not a soul heard and in pantomime introduced Cardinal Gibbons. The spiritual dignity of the cardinal, the sight of the red cap on his head, quieted the people a little and a few words of what he said could be heard. When he reached the Lord's Prayer a great volume of voices went up. Those on the platform could hear President Roosevelt's and ex-President Cleveland's voices above that of the car-dinal. While President Francis was speaking, the sun came out and the great barn-like structure became as light as day. Above the continuous, surfike shouting of the crowd rose a tremendous cheer of greeting to the flood of yellow light.

The cheering when Mr. Francis introduced the President lasted fully 20 seconds before the President began to talk. He followed his usual tactics and got upon the rail of the inclosure, a somewhat precarious Presidential perch, but one on which he was fully visible to the whole multitude. This occasioned another 90-sec-

When ex-President Cleveland rose the cheering was every bit as big as it had been for the President, and lasted just as long-60 seconds. Mr. Cleveland, who had agreed with the President earlier that the whole perform-ence was a great farce, as far as oratory was concerned, read doggedly and rapidly through the manuscript, in spite of the fact that his voice was by no means equal to one-hundredth of the task imposed

In the grandstand men in their heavy overcoats shivered, while women, garbed in elegant but inadequate laces, suffered more severely. Mrs. Odell, wife of the Governor of New York; Mrs. James L. Bialr, president of the Exposition Board of Lady Managers, and a number of others found relief in thick Army biankets furnished by Captain Larimore, of the First Missouri. The supply was soon exhausted and the attentive Captain was left disconsolate with a score of unfilled orders for a time. Later a fresh supply was secured. a time. Later a fresh supply was secured, and the brilliant array of gowns which had graced the stand earlier took on the appearance, to quote one of the ladies,

Back of the stand was a tent where, Back of the stand was a tent where, among other things, it was possible to secure hot coffee and chocolate. Men dressed in the height of fashion were kept busy two hours carrying liquid relief to the suffering ones exposed to the weather. Having secured seats, many of the visitors, including ex-President Cleveland, found that they could keep warmer by standing and discarded their chairs. President Roosevelt laughed and shook his head. Taking advantage of a lull, he called: "Now you, my fellow-citizens, give me all the chance you can, for I need it."

The chance was given, and the Prestdent began his address. A burst of ap-plause greeted a statement that the Dutch had done great things for the country in its infancy, and the President laughed in a manner which plainly said, "That means my ancestors."

my ancestors."

During the speeches of President Fran-cis and ex-Senator Carter there were brief intervals of sunshine, and the crowd cheered loudly as the brightness came. Once, while waiting for applause to sub-side during his speech, the President turned to President Francis and ex-Senator Carter, saying, as he alluded to the applause. "That was due to the sun." The same thing happened for the second time in a few minutes, and he remarked. "That's the sun again."

So many people were standing on their chairs and those behind them produced so much outery in consequence that at one time the President was compelled to half to his converted to any "Won" you sit. halt in his remarks to say, "Won't you sit down? If you do, the people behind you will see better," and as they granted his request he added, "Thank you."

Another outburst of applause, which was long continued after he had spoker about 15 minutes, caused him to laugh and remark to President Francis, "Now they think I'm done," and when the ap-plause died away he went on with his Sergeant Roy MacLeay, drum-major of the Sixty-fifth Regiment Band, of New Yora, was one of the most striking individual figures in the parade. He wore a huge white shako and was bothered, evidently, by the attentions of a diminutive negro. Once he lost his dignity completely and cuffed the boy, who fell sprawling into the arms of a police officer, which ended his career as mascot to the giant drum-major.

While the parade was all that the most enthusiastic and patriotic citizen could desire to see, it was when the doors of the Liberal Arts building were thrown open that the trouble began. There was a woeful lack of system in handling the crowd, men, women and children rushing into the mammoth structure and stampeding up and down the sistes like a herd of Texas steers surrounded by a pack ravenous wolves.

The ushers were conspicuous for their incompetency, people having checks hav-ing to find seats as best they could, ofttimes only to be crowded out by person possessed only of general admission tick-ets, women being the worst offenders in this respect. The moment the doors were thrown on to the general public the crowds rushed into every alsie, packing them to suffocation and crowding over on to those who were provided with seats.

Of the thousands of troops which participated in the exercises, not one soldier had been detailed to keep even a semblance of order in the Liberal Arts building which has a continue expective of it. ing, which has a seating capacity of 35,-

Mr. Roosevelt clapped his hands and swayed his body in time with the music. This added to the enthusiasm of the spectators, and was not overlooked by the drum-major, who led the band. That imposing functionary halted in front of President, swinging his baton in the rection of the reviewing stand, and in response his musicians faced the President and played a bar of the music before resuming the onward march.
