Homes of Witnesses Are Almos Sure to Be Burned if They Do Not Distort Their Testimony to Favor Alleged Assassins,

JACKSON, Ky., June 15.-Interest in the trial of Curtis Jett and Thomas White for the allegel murder of J. B. Marcum was secondary today to the preliminary hearing of the teamsters of Hargis Bros., arrested by the soldiers on the charge of arrested by the soldiers on the charge of burning the botel yesterday morning of B. L. Ewen, the principal witness of the commonwealth against Jett and White. Many people spent a sleepless night, ex-pecting the torch to be applied to their houses next. Fourteen residences and stores, owned by those known as Card-well-Cockerill sympathizers have been burned in Jackson since 1900, and the number of lives lost greatly exceeds that number of lives lost greatly exceeds that

The Ewen family, including seven children, presented a pitiable spectacle today.

Ewen tried to console his heart-broken wife and daughters, but their distress was great. Kind-hearted citizens, although feeling that in doing so they are risking their lives and property, have sent them clothing and bedding. They were break-Kind-hearted citizens, although clothing and bedding. They were breakfasted by the soldiers.

The jail last night was under a heavy guart. The prisoners suspected of the burning of Ewen's house were kept in the camp guardhouse, manacled so they would have no opportunity to escape. They were greatly frightened during the night, fearing a mob would come to release them and that the soldiers would shoot them. Crawford cried during the night and repeated, "What a fool, what a fool I am!"

It is believed that these men will be released because the grand jurors are residenced.

It is believed that these men will be released because the grand jurors are residents of Breathitt County, and will fear vengeance similar to that wreaked upon Ewen if they indict the men.

Joe Crawford and Ed Tharp were brought before Judge Redwine this morning and testimony heard on the writ of habeas corpus sued out by the Hargis people yesterday. Gray Haddicks and Jerry Lansford identified Crawford as one of the men seen coming from the Ewen Hotel just before the fire was discovered, and A. P. Short said he saw Crawford and Tharp crossing the bridge before the fire. The prisoners told conflicting stories of their whereabouts on their detention yesterday. Judge Hargis and the attorneys he employed to defend Jett and White represented the prisoners. Judge Redwine decided to hold them to the grand jury, which was reconvened this morning.

After the habeas corpus proceedings of Crawford and Tharp was disposed of, the trial of Jett and White was called. The prisoners, who have been greatly alarmed over the arrest and detention of Crawford on the charge of burning the Ewen Hotel, were brought into court by the milita and turned over to Elisor Jones. The mothers of both the alleged assassins were in court, as was Miss Sarah Hargiss, the young daughter of Judge Hargis. There-was much excitement about the Court-bouse and those entering the courtroom were not only searched, but also closely watched.

SUPREME COURT AND NEGRO Bellef That Equal Political Rights

New York Tribune. There is not the slightest question that the 14th and 15th amendments confer civil rights. They are not merely political declarations under which Congress acts at discretion, as in the matter of executing a treaty promise or annexing territory. The former has time and again been suc cessfully invoked to secure citizens of the United States against misuse by state governments of their powers. Nobody attempts to deny that constitutions like that of Alabama are meant to deprive the negroes of their rights as Federal citizens without taking the same rights away from white men. Some Southern politicians say that they have been clever enough to do this indirectly, but it is a fundamental principle of law that what is forbidden directly cannot be done indirectly. Courts are supposed to go to the heart of ques-tions, and not be put off by transparent subterfuge. As the counsel for the appellants in the present case pertinently said in his brief: "To the negro, if the guar-antees of the 14th and 15th amendments antees of the 14th and 15th amendments are stricken from under him, under the pretense of want of jurisdiction in the courts of the United States to enforce them, he has only one other guarantee between him and actual slavery; that is the one contained in the 13th amendment. What reason would he have to hope for protection under that one, should the Southern States by similar methods under-take to deprive him of its guarantee?" If a case cannot in some form be brought to the court so that it will forbid disre-enact the old black codes and indirectly enslave the negroes without any redress left to them but the doubtful mercy of an appeal to the political branch of the Government. , We hope that some case will be brought forward under which the legal and not the political supremacy of the constitutional guarantees of the negro will be tested. And we still have faith that the Suprem Court would firmly uphold those guaran-tees. Any other solution would be most unfortunate. Many of the Southern politicians have doubted the success of the discriminating schemes, and, if they were declared invalid, there would be general acquiescence, and probably suffrage lim-ited by educational and property qualifi-ited by educational and property qualifi-cation operating equally, and that is all the best friends of the negro ask.

We are persuaded that the worst thing that could happen to the negro would be the renewal of political agitation concern-ing his rights. It would stir up fil-feeling and put back the progress of civilization many years. Yet, if the courts offer no protection to his rights as plainly guaran-teed by the Constitution, the almost toteed by the Constitution, the almost in-evitable result will be the turning of the negroes toward Congress and the starting of movements by politicians for partisan ends to enforce the amendments by re-Lewis Hill Brands Stery of His Description as False.
