Institution Well Maintains Its Repu tation for Hospitality-Visit to the Old Home of Jefferson.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., June 16 .-The University of Virginia today entertained the President of the United States, and right royally the students of this historic seat of learning performed their duty as hosts. The occasion of the President's visit was to attend the 79th commencement of the university, which oc curred today. Mr. Roosevelt is the third President to visit the university, of which Thomas Jefferson, whose remains lie uite close to the college he toyed, was the founder. President Hayes and Presint Cleveland have enjoyed the hospitality of this truly Southern institution and the warm welcomes they received re duplicated in the greeting extended

The President's special arrived here from Washington at 11:20 this morning. Monticelio Guards were on duty at the denot and kept back the crowd that had assembled to see the distinguished Visitors have been pouring into the city since yesterday, and hotel rooms and teams were at a premium this morning. The President was cheered as he stepped from his car. He was met by Dr. Paul Barringer, chairman of the day's exercises, and a committee of alumni-The party was driven direct to the university, where the exercises were held in the public hall. Here the students welcomed the President.

The address before the Alumni Associaion, which was the first on the pro gramme, had been prepared by Judge W. Gordon Roberts, of Rosnoke, and was to have been delivered by him. He, however, was detained at home by illness, od his address was read by R. Walton Moore, of Fairfux. Judge Morris then introduced the President, who addressed

BRITISH AND AMERICA

Visitors Whose Views Were Warped by Prejudice.

New York Times. The report of the commission of Brit-ish workmen who were brought to this country by Mr. Alfred Mosely last year is a curious and instructive document. So far as practical results of advantage to British industry are concerned, the ex-cursion seems to have been of little value. The visitors were keenly ob-servant, but their insular prejudice ap-pears to have been so strong that they devoted most of their time to noting things in which they consider the com-parison between England and the United States unfavorable to this country, and of what it was hoped they would see it appears that they saw very little. This is not surprising.

For example, Delegate Cummings, who gave especial attention to iron and steel shipbuilding and boiler-making. concludes his report with the following generalizations as to the general character-istics and tendencies of the American

"Gambling and pleasure-seeking appear to be characteristics of the American's life. These, taken in conjunction with his ordinary restless spirit, seem to shorten life, make men premature; increase insanity. Climatic conditions may be to some extent the cause of the generally unhealthy look of the American people, but the opinion generally expressed, to enjoy life while it lasts, has also some effect. There is, however, less regard for human life in America than in our own country. Life altogether is in our own country. Life altogether is held cheaper, and that may be inherited from earlier times, when firearms were used on the slightest provocation. Al-together I am of the opinion that a hait-ing time will have to take place in the States. The rush for enjoyment, the dis-regard of human life, the corruption of local politics and other immoralities, and the almost Continental Sunday, added to which is the disinclination to walk or make any exertion after business hours if it can be avoided, all tend toward the moral and physical deterioration of the people, and must be arrested if disaster is to be averted.' Another delegate, a blast furnaceman, said, "of the chief public men whom she has sent into public life." He said he had called upon a number of Virginia men to fill public offices, and they had never failed of good citizenship, as applied more particularly to the college man and said every man should be honest to his alma mater and work his hardest to make a place for himself in the world.

At the conclusion of the President's address the various medals were delivered

Mr. Alfred Mosely, who brought the party to this country, says in his intro-luctory chapter: "The American workman drinks but littie. One of the points the delegates were invited to investigate was whether or not the workingman in the United States wears out faster than the Englishman. Personally, I think not."

Personally, I think not."

One of the delegates, who did not find much to instruct him in this country, sums up his observations as follows:

"The workmen who have built up American industries are largely Britishers. Most of the inventions in American workshops come from men hailing from the old country. Let us adopt modern methods, and England will hold her own n the commercial rivalry of the world." Conclusions like this would seem to how that the delegates were not here ong enough to derive much benefit from their visit. It might have thrown a flood their visit. It might have thrown a flood of light upon the British industrial situation had they inquired why it is that the "Britishers" who have done so much for American industry found here a more inviting and profitable field than they left when they emigrated. Why has Americanization developed vast usefulness in mechanics who could not make a satisfactory living at home? Perhaps this is the key to the whole problem. If so is the key to the whole problem. If so, the Mosely delegation does not seem to have discovered it.

MINZERS DECIDE AGAINST STRIKE New Ruler of Servia Is Shorn of All Power.

MILITARY WILL BE IN CONTROL

Ruling Spirits Will Murder Kins Peter as Readily as They Did His Predecessor if He Opposes Their Aims.

BELGRADE, June 18.-The position of Ring Peter promises to be little more than that of a captive. The real government of the country will be a military dictator-ship, under the leaders of the revolution. Colonel Maschin and Colonel Mitschlitch. The deliberations of the members of the Senate and Skupshtina on the republican question were materially hastened by the attendance of one of the leaders of the revolution, Colonel Mitschlitch. Colonel took no part in the proceedings, but his prosence was zignificant enough to induce the members to accept the army's choice. Extremely forcible arguments were found necessary to repress the radical as-pirations of a republic. of the delay in its departure is that the sought the opportunity to become reconciled to him at the expense of the country. Now that the Ministry has cut off their traveling expenses, their desire to make the journey will be greatly diminished, and the delegation will probably

"The national representatives of the kingdom of Servia have unanimously and enthusiastically elected you hereditary king of Servia. We have the honor to convex to you our most cordies and enconvey to you our most cordial and en-thusiastic congratulations."

It is said tonight that the Skupshtina has decided not to send a delegation to Geneva until the constitution has been revised in readiness to be sworn to by King Peter.

The provisional government is sorely be-set by financial difficulties. All sorts of officials and politicians are making importunate demands for money, which the treasury is unable to satisfy. Altogether the Ministry's position is unenviable. It transpires that Lieutenant Jovanovics, of the Sixth Infantry, who shot and killed himself Sunday, was concerned in the revolutionary plot, but falled to assist in the attack upon the Konak. He was summoned to appear before a court composed of senior officers. A Possibility in Heroic Sculpture 100 Years Hence.

Perhaps the heroic sculpture of, say, the Pernaps the heroic sculpture of, say, the metal century will represent Mr. Andrew Carnegie as Janus, a god of light, illuminating equally the East and the West, the Scepter of Knowledge in his right hand, the Key of Wealth in his left. Mr. Carnegie seems to appreciate or prepare unconsciously for the ascription to himself of the functions of the to himself of the functions of the Italic deity. He has made himself the guardian of the gateways of literature. He has filled the world with librarics. those cities and power-houses of light. He has written luminiferous books and mag-azine articles with his bright and beamy en. And like his predecessor and prototype on the Ausonian shore, he is especially connected with peace and dedicate

There is this farther parallelism be tween these two friends of man, that they seldom shut up. Mark, however, that while the original Janus was usually open for war, his lucent successor is always open for peace.

There is, then, a high significance and fitness in Mr. Carnegie's offer to the government of the Netherlands of $1,500,00 follars for the establishment of an international library and a temple of peace at The Hague, It is as if a god should build and consecrate his own shrine. "Peace, with libraries," is Mr. Carne-gie's watchword. No spot could be more suttable than The Hague as the site of such a fane, and we hope that the gov-ernment of the Netherlands will be able to fulfill Mr. Carnegie's generous design amend a phrase of Sydney Smith's, prefer any weight of ignorance, however, great, to any burden of taxation, how-ever light. In his career of beneficence in the United States, the Scottish Janus has found but too many surly "knockera" at his temple doors. In Holiand the re-sponse should be as quick with gratitude as the plan is fruitful with mighty distant benefit to the well-being of man-kind. We scarcely need add that there is a curious felicity in the endeavor of Mr. Carnegie, who has acquired a modest com-peterce in the iron and steel line, to nduce his fellow men to beat their spears into pruning-hooks.

Those illustrious statesmen and diplomatists, the Hon. Seth Low and the Hon. George Frederick William Holls among the counselors sought by Mr. Carnegie while this temple was rising in his mind. The heart must be dead to all noble aspirations that does not throb-faster at the thought of Mr. Low and Mr. Holls, walking arm in arm among the quiet cloisters of the new Temple of Janus, holding high discourse of munici-pal administration, international comity, universal peace and ever and anon astounding the concourse of foreigners by speaking French, as M. Chartran, that court painter who knows not how to flatter, says of Mr. Roosevelt, "like a bouleclassical fashion. In the library of The Hague Temple of Janus, one reform, one stern, necessary system of excision and expurgation, should be enforced. What skills it to build towers and temples of light and peace, if works of war and carkness are admitted there? Mr. Carnegie has shown a just sense of this difulty by "putting" old Homer "to sleep, borrow a Homeric phrase. All the borands and felons of literature, Homer the song of the Nibelungs, the Cld, the song of Roland, all the sonorous scoundrels, must be kept out of those sacred precincts. Cabinet Officer Knows the President Will Back Him Up, Because He Is Only Carrying Out the Law.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Wash. ngton, June 16.-There was no sign of neasiness on the countenances of Secspecial dispatch from Denver announcing that prominent members of the National Live Stock Association intend to make a great effort to induce President Roosevelt to remove him from the Interior Department, if there is not a change in the forest reserve policy. Secretary Hitchcock had no comment to make or the attack of the stockmen.

The fact is Secretary Hitchcock is not wholly responsible for the administration's forest reserve policy. He is but one factor, but President Roosevelt, Secretary Hitchcock, Chief Forestry Pinchot, Land Commissioner Richards and other promient officials are working in harmony so far as forest administration is con cerned, and are agreed on the essential features of the forest reserve policy Moreover, President Roosevelt has the ighest regard for Secretary Hitchcock believing him to be an exceptional man for his office, and one who will fearlessly, but, justly, administer the laws.

Becretary Hitchcock has always main mined that he is not responsible for the laws under which the present forest polley is being built up. If the stockmen n not like the policy, the recourse is with Congress. It is the laws they object to, nore than the policy, and if they want a change they must go to Congress the present laws exist, Secretary Hitchock says he will carry them out to the letter, for he has no fear of losing his office, in fact, he knows he has the hearty approval of the President, and any ap peal the livestock men of the character indicated will avail nothing
