The address of Rabbi Stephen S. Wise was one that deeply impressed every hearer in the large audience, and was full of sound counsel and wisdom to the graduating class. The lines of his address were vision and character. He urged the class that sound vision and sound character were highly essential. His earnestness in delivery, and his sincerity, backed by an evident enthusiasm, were elements which added were asm, were elements which added much to the force and elequence of the address, as well as to inspire the class with seal to follow the lines laid down by the speaker. The matter has been before week. The matter has been before the Council for several months and was the subject for much discussion in the city. A part of the Council wanted to raise it to $60 and a part to $400. It is more than likely that a number of saloons will go out of business when their licenses expire. There are now 20 in the city, and the Council has passed a resolution that no more licenses will be issued until January. more licenses will be issued until January, 1904, as the number now running is deemed sufficient. BODY FOUND BY PROSPECTORS IS THAT OF H. W. IBBINGS.

Clothing of Young Medical Student Was Strewn About Ground-Bullet in His Skull,

MEDFORD, Or., June 11.—(Special.)—
The body of the man found by prospectors on Wagner Butte, this county, and reported to be that of C. H. McCortney, is now proven beyond a doubt to be H. W.
Ibbings, of Madison, Wis., a young medical student from Rush College. Deputy Coroner Dr. R. G. Gale and Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Reames left early Tuesday morning for the scene of the discovery and returned to Medford late last night and brought with them the gruesome particulars of the horrible find.

From all indications the man had been dead about two months. The legs had been dismembered and were found about twenty feet from the body: the skull was healthy, free from scab and in good condition.

In addition to the large transfer of sheep the stock-raisers and farmers in this section have made large sales of range horses during the last few weeks, fully 2000 having been sold. Carey & McCreary, of Nebruska, are the heaviest buyers, having sent out 700 in one bunch. These horses were unbroken but above the average grade of range horses, weighing from $60 to $150 pounds. The price ranged from $15.50 to $17.00 per head.

These unusual large stock sales and the $2,000,000 pounds of wool from the late shearing is bringing a great deal of money into the country that will be employed in improving the grade of stock and building better form-houses.

Near the body was a fever thermometer and about six feet distant was a 44-calibre Colf's revolver with all the chambers empty. Mr. Winstanley says that while the hops did not need the rain, they were not injured by it. The vines have made a good growth and are about as far advanced as usual at this season. One fa-vorable circumstance he has noticed is that the arms grow farther apart on the This will make the foliage less dense, letting the sunlight in and tending to improve the quality of the hop. The lighter the foliage the less danger from lice. Mr. Winstanley thinks there might be a slightly smaller yield because of the greater distance between the arms, but if there is any loss in quantity it will be made up in quality. The laterals have just begun growing. and in about ten days the hops will put

"I am receiving letters every day from growers who have pooled their hops," says Mr. Winstanley, "and I find them all firmly holding for 25 cents. "One thing is certain, that no amount of good weather can make up for the loss in yield caused by the large number of missing hills. The vines are not there and that much of the crop is cut off. Bad weather might cut the crop down still more, but good weather can not make up the loss. I see no reason to change my opinion that the outlook is good for better prices than are now being offered for hops."
