Although hundreds of willing hands have worked in the debris incessantly since Sunday, they have handled but a wee percentage of the

The corpses of the drowned were strewn by the flood along the valley for a dis-tance of 5 miles. A thousand men, equipped with tools and alded by horses, could not properly search the wreckage in a month. For the little band of volunteers to do it before the sun has turned the hidden bodies into festering carrion is out of the question. Those corpses which have not been discovered by tonight will never be recognized. Already the bodies of cattle, which lie in the meadows, carry an unsweet announcement of their whereaboute to the passer-by. And human odies are not exempt from nature. Neither will it be possible to identify the od victims who may be found later, by their clothing, except in scattered instances. Very few of the male stead, and none of the women, whom the water carried further than a mile, had a strip of clothing left on them. The strong currents of the torrent almost invariably cast the corpse stark haked into some crevice of the wreckage.

Today searching parties reported a total of 23 bodies found outside of Heppner. A gang of tracklayers found the corpse of man on the roudbed a mile and a half above here. The corpse has not yet en identified, but will reach the Heppner morene early in the morning. 'As the searchers progressed through the valley, they build large bonfires upon the bodies of the drowned cattle encountered, and the nauseous odor of burning fiesh added a minor horror to the scenes of desolation. These imprompts cremations will carried on systematically by a party of men tomorrow.

From all parts of America inquiries are uring in. Former residents of Heppner are asking about the safety of relatives or friends, and today messages from Talla-barece, Fla.; Memphis, Tenn.; Galveston, Tex.; Toronto and Quebec, Canada; Los Angeles New Orleans, New York and Augusta, Me., have been received at the little telegraph office here and forwarded

Lonfers Become Highwaymen

Owing to the rigorous enforcement of an order issued by the citizens' of Heppner that every able-bodied man in the city must work, a horde of the drones who have infested the town are now passing through Lexington, bound for other and more idle districts.

Possbily as another result of this order, the son of M. J. White, a Lexington liveryman, was held up on the road from Heppner last night. Young White was confronted by three men, who attempted to climb into his buggy after he had stopped his horse in response to their de-He immediately whipped up his horse and his assailants fell off. Many bodies are being shipped away, and there are now standing on the depot platform nearly 20 coffins which have been brought in during the day for shipment.

J. N. Teal, under whose direction the Portland relief fund and supplies are being distributed, arrived here late yesterday afternoon. Upon investigating the cituation, he found that 26 persons were destitute, and he made immediate arrangements for their care. A list was made of those for whom help was needed. and a camplete outfit of bedding tele Clothing for each individual was also ordered, and a few hundred dollars placed with the leading mercantile firm to be used in procuring aderen now being cared for by neighbors.

Destitution in Valley.

'I find considerable destitution in the valley outside of Heppner," said Mr. Teal, 'but of course it is overshadowed by the In Heppner the scenes of death and desolution are all close together. Not one ruined house is seen at a time, but scores, and so the more scattered losses of the outside settlements were partially overlooked by those who supplied the relief committees with information and data. I believe that we have now arranged for the relief of every deserving victim of the flood.

In Heppper I left matters in charge of J. N. Davies, who has instructions to keep a force of 100 men employed at day wages etil further notice. This hired labor can be used to better advantage than volunteer work, because men can be ordered to do this thing and that without injuring anybody's feelings. One thousand dollars a day is being expended by the organization of Heppner citizens in general charge of the relief work, and this should alleviate all serious suffering from physical wants. The work is being conucted in a business-like way, as we have arranged for the employment of a bookkeeper, timekeepers, and experienced foreparently, been duly insisted upon, is that organization or committee which has made a regular list of these things. As sequence, we have heard no aggregate estimates but only instances of individual losses. Told one at a time, they are not impressive in the face of the wholesale figures obtainable at Heppner." Mr. Teal will proceed to Portland at the first opportunity.

TRAINS WILL BUY MONDAY.

Bridges Repaired and Track Restored-Bodies in Culverts.

IONE, June 18 .- (Staff correspondence.)-According to Superintendent O'Brien, the O. R. N. Co. will have a train into Heppner by noon on Saturday, and possibly by Priday night. On Monday the regular schedule will be resumed, but owing to will be strengthened at once, the trains will probably occupy about an hour longer than the regular time in making the run from Heppner Junction to Heppner.

The many small bridges between lone and Heppner, six or eight of which were washed out by the flood, have all been repaired. At 4 o'clock this afternoon the bridge crew finished the last bit of crib work a couple of miles this side of Meppner. There remains to be laid less than a mile and a half of track, and this can possibly be completed tomorrow. The roadbed, which was carefully inspected by W. H. Kennedy, chief engineer of the many, is said by him to be in very might have been more serious."

Under the direction of E. A. Klippel, superintendent of telegraph for the O. R. & N., and T. W. Goulding, district superintendent of the Western Union, telegraph wires have been brought within 1% miles of Heppner and will be completed tomorrow morning. This will give a second wire into the city, and will relieve the congested condition of the telegraph service immediately.

W. A. Storle, general foreman of the bridge and building department, has been working a gang of 70 men ever since Sunday, and under the general direction of Superintendent O'Brien and his assistants. W. Ballons and M. J. Buckley, nearly 300 men have been engaged in repairs. The result talks for itself. The bodies of four females, three adults, and one girl, were found in the various culverts by the bridge gangs. As was the case with every other body recovered outside the city limits of Heppner, the water had stripped the corpses of every vestige of clothing. The bodies were loaded into a "corpse wagon" and sent to Heppner for identification and buriel.

BLAZING HOUSE ENGULFED. Dramatic Incident of the Flood Witnessed by Survivor.

IONE, June 18 .- (Staff correspondence.) -Fred Hart, who was the telegraph operator at Heppner during the flood, tells of as ghastly and spectacular a sight as said Mr. Hart, "and, looking up from the depot toward town, I saw the great wall of water in the distance. About the next thing I remember distinctly was pulling four children, who held each other's hands, through the rising water to the billside a few hundred yards away. We reached this in safety, although the station agent and his wife were drowned. The water in advance of the main body or wall conthen the crest of the flood awept by beneath us. Upon its top big residences danced, some upside down, others on their sides, and all revolving as they went.

"On the top of one great wave a dwelling tossed. Inside, it was all on fire. An oil can had evidently exploded, and flames were shooting forth from some of the win dows. At another a woman was screaming in her mortal fear, so shrilly that her voice carried high above the tumult of the flood. Presently a wave leaped up against the dwelling's side, a great tree rose perpendicularly from the churning waters beside it, and then a whirippol opened and the tree and blazing house sank beneath the flood.

"Somehow, in the excitement of the moment, the spectacle did not greatly impress me with its horror. But since my mind has partially digested the incidents of the flood, I feel that this was the weirdest of them all, and there were Shared Perils of Wild Ride. HEPPNER, Or., June 18 .- (Staff Corre spondence.)-Leslie Matlock said tonight that Bruce Kelly, who made the ride with him to Ione Sunday night, did as much to notify the people below of the oming flood as he did himself.

"I did not think of getting notoriety from the ride," said Mr. Matlock to night, "nor did Kelly either. Our sole thought was to save as many people from the flood as possible. He and I rode all the way together until we were within three miles of Ione.

"Kelly and I were brought up in this We know its ranges and the bends in the river. We rode over the hills at first in order to get ahead of the water. But before we started I broke into Gilliam & Bisbee's hardware store and got a pair of wire cutters." This act of Matlock's shows his forebarbed wire fences would have stopped their ride.

Quits Raising Wormy Apples.

A farmer from Clackamas County was in the city yesterday. He has a very large orchard of apple trees on his place which has not received so much care as is be-stowed on orchards planted of late years. The result was that he grew lots of moss on his trees and many wormy apples. He was consulting with the agents who have sold his apples for years in regard to the precautions to be taken to prevent worms in his fruit. He found that washes and sprays for destroying insects are going out and that spraying the trees with pow-der is in more general use. The powder is blown by a beliews from a nozzle so arranged that it puffs the powder up under the leaves and all over them, and it is death to insects. After the farmer had gone the agent remarked that he seemed to have experienced a change. When a year or two ago he was advised to spray his trees to kill moss and insects and so produce spples free from worms he resented the advice. He said that if he sented the advice. He said that if he wanted to raise moss on his trees and have worms in his apples that was his business. The agent replied that he appeared to be fairly in this business and to understand it as he was making a great success and producing more worms to the hox of apples than any one else. Soon after he shipped a large lot of apples to the agent which were so full of worms that they were condemned and sent to the garbage crematory and cremated. The farmer made a great roar, but it did him no good. Now he is evidently inclined to no good. Now he is evidently inclined to quit raising wormy apples.

NERVOUS DEBILITY

Dr. Talcott & Co. Specialists for MEN ONLY 2504 Alder St., Portland, Or.

Men, Come to Me.

I want every man that is suffering from any special disease or condition to come and have a social chat with me, and I will explain to you a system of treatment which I have originated and developed after my whole life's experience in treating diseases peculiar to men. It is a treatment that is based on scientific knowledge. I have no free proposition, no trial or sample treatments to effer you. My education, my experience, my conscience, my reputation, condemn all such quackery. If you will call and see me I will give you, free of charge, a thorough personal examination, together with an honest and scientific opinion of your case, and if I find your case is curable. I will insure you of a permanent cure, inasmuch as I will give you a written guarantee to cure you or refund to you every cent you have paid in case I fail to effect a permanent cure of your condition. I make no charge for medicines, as they are always included in the nominal fee asked. I attribute my success to promising nothing but what I can do, and always doing what I promise.
