ROAD CAN BE BUILT

Portage Appropriation Is Sufficient.

OPINION OF ENGINEER HAMMOND

Little of the Roadbed Will Require Extensive Grading—Full Report Will Be Made to the Board in About a Week.

SALEM, Or., July 1.—(Special.)—Civil Engineer A. E. Hammond, of Portland, who has been engaged by the State Board of Portage Railroad Commissioners to make the preliminary survey of the route from The Dalles to Celilo, was in Salem today.

In an informal verbal report to the board he said that the work of making the survey is progressing satisfactorily and that he will be ready to make a full report in about a week. He has encountered some difficulty on account of the high water in the Columbia, but this was not sufficient to prevent the survey being made.

Mr. Hammond also reported to the board that, after studying the conditions of the region over which the railroad is to be built, he is of the opinion that the road can be constructed for the amount appropriated by the Legislature, $5,000. He finds that with the exception of two or three short places there are no portions of the road that will require extensive grading.

Go Prepared.

In preparing for your summer outing a little forethought may save you no end of trouble. Mr. John H. Manly, a dry goods merchant of Belleville, R. I., while packing an outfit for camping a few weeks on Narragansett Bay, came in a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for emergency use. The second day in camp his little boy was taken with cramp colic. The first dose of this remedy gave relief and the second dose effected a cure. Think of the pain and suffering this boy would have had to endure without this remedy at hand to relieve him. Such cases often result fatally. For sale by all druggists.

KNAPP'S PLEA INSANITY

ALLEGED WIFE-MURDERER BEGINS HIS DEFENSE.

Mother, Brother and School Teacher Testify That He Was Severe of Strong Mind.

HAMILTON, O., July 1.—In the Knapp murder trial today, Police Officer Charles Merton testified to the vain search for the Knapp said he had thrown away at Lindenwall, Prosecutor Gard then rested, and Darby, of the defense, moved the court to order a verdict of "not guilty on the ground that murder was not proven. Judge Selden overruled the motion and the defense began. The chief defense is insanity.

Knapp's mother, Mrs. Susan Knapp, was called. Her testimony tended to prove that Knapp was insane as a result of injuries received in youth. The mother said a colt had kicked him in the head when he was 6 years old, at their home in Fort Wayne, Indiana. He was unconscious for days, and always thereafter complained of pains in the head. Later Knapp fell out of a mow and again injured his head. Brain fever followed the accident. He was struck on the head by a baseball bat at Moline, Ill., and again seriously hurt.

The mother said she regarded Knapp as insane after these attacks. Once he went away and said he was in San Francisco. His condition became so noticeable that the boys called him "Loony" Knapp. He wrote a play and tried to make his sister wear wings and impersonate an angel.

This afternoon Mrs. Knapp detailed her husband's action about the time of the alleged murder, relating numerous wild assertions and acts tending to show insanity. In reply to a direct question by Lawyer Darby, she said she thought Alfred Knapp was sane, but that she had no recollection of the trial. She said she had no recollection of the trial.

The deposition of Mrs. M. T. Marshall, Knapp's former teacher at Madison, Ind., was read after Mrs. Knapp left the stand. Mrs. Marshall said that Knapp was a dull, disobedient boy, incapable of learning and lacking, in her opinion, all discrimination between right and wrong. She thought he was unbalanced. He was often sick in school and subject to bad headaches.

Cyrus Knapp, of Cincinnati, a brother, said that on the date of the alleged murder he visited Knapp, who acted irrationally, sitting with his head in his hands. Knapp told him he was an actor, and he expected to be the next Mayor of this city. Answering the direct question, he said that he regarded Alfred Knapp as insane. Court then adjourned.

CHICAGO, July 1.—A bill to secure a decree declaring void the will of Jonathan Clark, the millionaire contractor, whose fortune at the time of his death was estimated at $2,000,000, was filed in the victims of the disaster, James Wilds, father, and Jube Wilds and James Wilds, Jr., sons, were working together near the 17th level.

The complainants declare that in 1880, while their father was engaged in the construction of a house at Lake Geneva, he became infatuated with Caroline Patterson, at the home of whose mother he boarded while there.

Oscar Oelf and Jacob Jacobson, brothers, and the sole support of a widow and two little sisters, were killed below the 2nd level.

Arrangements have been perfected for caring for the dead bodies as fast as they are removed from the ill-fated mine. The shafthouse at No. 1 mine has been transformed into a temporary morgue, and here the bodies will be washed, embalmed and dressed in new clothing and later will be removed to the Finnish Temperance Hall, where the corpses will be laid out in rows on the floor for identification. The coal company will defray the funeral expenses in most cases. No funeral arrangements have been made and none will be made until after tomorrow.

MRS. WEATHERED.

Booster for the Centennial on Her Way East.

St. Paul Pioneer Press. Mrs. Edith Tonier Weathered, of Portland, Or., stopped off in St. Paul yesterday on her way to Atlantic City, where she is going as a delegate from the Portland Press Club to the 13th annual convention of the International League of Press Clubs.

Mrs. Weathered is well known in newspaper circles, and through her active connection with the great exhibitions that have been held in this country. She represented Oregon at Omaha, Buffalo and Charleston, and will perform the same office at the St. Louis Exposition. She owns and edits "The Exposition," a paper published in the interests of the Lewis and Clark Centennial, and is also one of the most active workers and a commissioner for Oregon's big fair.

Mrs. Weathered is very sanguine over the prospects of the centennial, and thinks that it will compare favorably with any of the big world's fairs that have been held in this country. The object of the fair is to show to the world how rich and productive is the soil of this country, how varied its resources, how well adapted it is to manufacturing industries of all kinds and what admirable facilities it has for commerce with the whole world, but more particularly with the Orient.

The site of the exposition will be known as the "Rose City." This is fitting, as Oregon is, par excellence, the rose state of the Union. To show what she can achieve in the way of rose-growing, a plot of 25 acres will be laid out in roses. A committee of ladies has been appointed to call on all the house owners to get them to plant every available piece of garden with roses, so that the city will appear to be a veritable bower.

Although the exposition does not take place until May 1, 1906, the engineers are already busy grading the grounds, affixing chances will be taken on not being prepared at the schedule date.

Another feature of the exposition that the ladies are making a prominent part in is the movement to erect a statue on the grounds in front of the women's building to Sacajawea, the little Shoshone Indian girl who was so prominent a factor in the success of the Lewis and Clark expedition.

Sacajawea was a Shoshone, but had been stolen from her own people and taken to the Mandans in the land of the Dakotas. She became the wife of a fur trader, but could not get over the longing to return to her own people and the land of her birth. One day when she was longingly watching the great red ball of fire dip low in the West, Lewis and Clark, and their attendants, appeared and began making friends with the Mandans, and trying to gain some information of the route to the land beyond the mountains. After many fruitless consultations with the Indians, whose old chiefs made quaint and bewildering sketches on the ground and skins, little Sacajawea, 15 years old, and with a papoose on her back, declared her intention of piloting the expedition.

Her narrative of her life on the trail is romantic and sympathetic in the extreme. When the men were sick with mountain fever it was she who knew the healing roots and herbs wherewith they were nursed back to strength and their wounds were soothed by the leaves that she made trips into the forests to find. When food ran short, it was Sacajawea who found the harmless herbs and wholesome camas, and when the hostile red men attacked the little band of explorers, the pleadings of the Indian woman and her explanations of the friendly intent of the expedition saved them many an encounter that would have ended disastrously.

When endeavoring to navigate a swollen stream the boats were upset and Sacajawea was jumped into the river at the risk of her life and rescued a box containing Captain Clark's papers, charts and notes. Through all the countless difficulties and troubles encountered by the explorers, Sacajawea stayed with the expedition and with Lewis and Clark safely reached the mouth of the Columbia River.

Hawks Fly 150 Miles per Hour.

Successful American. It is said that the speed of swallows, when emigrating, is not less than 50 miles an hour; so that, when aided by the wind, they soon reach warmer latitudes. It has also been calculated that the swallow can fly at the rate of 82 miles an hour, and hawks and several other tribes at that of 150 miles an hour!

HOPELESS CASES

When the doctor leaves and says the case is hopeless, what remains to be done? Nothing, if the doctor's word is final. Much, if you will listen to the statements of men and women who were once "hopeless cases" given up by doctors, and who were perfectly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Nothing is more sure than that thousands of men and women with diseased lungs, obstinate coughs, hemorrhage, ematation and night-sweats, have been restored to perfect health by the use of the "Discovery." Will it cure you?

It has cured in ninety-eight cases out of every hundred where it was given a fair and faithful trial. By that record you have only two chances in a hundred of failure and ninety-eight chances of being restored to perfect health. It is worth trying.

Abram Free, Esq., of Rockbridge, Greene County, Ill., writes: "My wife had a severe attack of pleurisy and lung trouble; the doctors were up to the eyes in her. She commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she began to improve from the first dose. By the time she had taken eight or ten bottles she was cured, and it was the cause of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' is the best medicine in the world for lung trouble."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser containing over a thousand large pages is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.
