Because the picture he painted of George Washington bore strong marks of resem blance to William Tell and his likeness of a crawfish looked more like a lobster, R. G. Berger, a sign painter, was not able to collect the full amount of his bill, and brought suit for the amount in Justice

The case was heard yesterday, but no decision will be given until today. The evidence of the witnesses was conflicting, and Judge Reid insisted that he must first visit the scene of dispute and see for himself if the father of his country wore Ger-man features and if the crawfish was of the wrong species.

The suit was against J. L. Mitchell, representing the Order of Washington. sign had been painted on the inside of the fence on the baseball grounds of the Na-tional League. The order had decided that their lodge needed advertisement, and that they would make an appeal to the people who visited the baseball grounds. Berger was called and instruced to prepare an appropriate sign to advertise the Order of Washington. Now, upon the literature of the lodge is a likeness of the Nation's great character, and the only specifica-tion as to the sign to be painted was that it was to have a large picture of he of

The sign was painted and the members the committee visited the grounds, me of them had not really went to see the game, but they were willing to pay the price of admission in order to view with pride the handsome sign and tell their neighbors that they were members of the Order of Washington. But their pride was stung as they sat and listened Who is that?" people asked on every

"Washington? That does not look like Washington." The matter would then be discussed, and each time the conclusion was reached that it really did look like some great character and that William Tell was the most likely subject to apply the likeness to.

When the painter went around to col-lect his bill he did not meet a very warm eption. His price was $75, of which he had collected about $50, and the members wowed they would not pay the remaining (25, for they were not satisfied with the work. In fact, they were not willing for the picture to be on the fence at all, and Insisted that the painter smear the like-ness over with colored paint and make a design of a different sort. A new design was made of red, white and blue colors and no statesman now adorns the fence but still the lodge members are not will-ing to pay the bill.

The case was argued yesterday by Otto Kraemer for the plaintiff and Charles Lord for the defendant.

"What did the picture look like?" asked Mr. Lord, in his effort to show that there might be a mistake. "Did it look like Judge Kramer?" The Judge has red hair, The Judge has red hair, and the witness smiled as he remarked that there was red, white and blue on the

An effort was made to prove that the workmanship of the painter was generally poor, and the proprietor of the Quelle res-taurant was called. "I employed him to paint a sign for me," said the Baron, as he took the wit-ness-stand. "I told him to paint a picture of a crawfish, and when he got through with it it locked much more like a lob-ster than it did a crawfish." Witnesses were called by both sides who had seen the pictures. Among some of them the opinion prevailed that Washington's picas for the crawfish on the fence, it looked patural enough to eat. Others were of the opinion that the pictures were all wrong and that the painter had no husiness to ask for pay under the conditions. Washington's portrait is gone and the Judge will not be able to see whether or not the painter did justice to the theme, but the painter did justice to the theme, but the fish is still gleaming on the fence and ture could not have been mistaken, and as for the crawfish on the fence, it looked fish is still gleaming on the fence and Judge Reid will today decide the case, in-fluenced greatly by his opinion as to whether the likeness is of a lobster of

H. E. DOSCH TO RETURN. Special Commissioner to Osaka Exposition Will Sail August S.

Colonel H. E. Dosch, special commissione to the Osaka Exposition, will leave Japan on the steamship Korea for Portland or August 8. A letter declaring that this was his intention was received yesterday by Secretary Henry Reed of the Lewis and Clark Exposition. Colonel Dosch has asked that any instructions relative to his work in Japan be mailed not later than July 12. The exposition at Osaka is drawing to a close and since the interests of the Lewis and Clark Fair are in good hands, Colonel Dosch has found it easy to depart from Japan in August.

Aside from representing Oregon's in-terests at the Japan fair Colonel Dosch has succeeded in placing the exhibits of this state with a newly formed commer-cial agency which will represent Oregon products alone and from which excellent results are expected. The local business men have been placed in communication with the new company.

SHIPBUILDING ON DECLINE Bureau of Navigation Submits Its Report for the Past Fiscal Year,

WASHINGTON, July 2-The Bureau of Washington, July 2—The Bureau of Navigation reports that during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1903, 1535 vessels, of 56,075 gross tons, were built in the United States and officially numbered, compared with 1657 vessels of 673,981 gross tons for the previous fiscal year. Returns of ves-cels under construction on July 1, 1903, in the United States indicate for the new fiscal year an output below that of the past year just ended.

The world's shipbuilding reached its highest point in 1901. The diminished output since then has been less noticeable in the United States than abroad. The principal decrease in the United States for the past year has been in steel eteamers built on the Great Lakes, which numbered 41, of 131,660 tons, compared with 52 of 161,797 tons for the fiscal year 1901-02. The only item of considerable increase has been the cheaper forms of construction — unrigged canal boats, barges, etc., numbering 220, of 75,574 tons, compared with 297 of 57,502 tons for the previous year.

SECOND BAPTIST BRETHREN DID NOT ATTEND CONVENTION.

Desire of Pastor S. C. Lapham to Live in Christian Brotherhood Makes Him Keep His Flock at Home.

The Second Baptist Church was very conspicuous at the meeting of the Williamette Baptist Association held in the Third Baptist Church, of Albins, Tuesday and Wednesday, not by the presence of delegates and the pastor, Rev. S. C. Lapham, but by their total absence from the floor of the convention. Mr. Lap-ham's name appeared several times on the programme for addresses, but at no time was he before the association. On the other hand, the Central Baptist Church, the offshoot from the Second Church, was very much in evidence. Rev. William E. Randall, the pastor, delivered the annual sermon and made the principal report on education.

It is very unusual for a prominent Bap-tist Church to refuse to take part in the proceedings of the annual meeting of the association, especially when urged to do so, as in this case, and when the paster is given a place on the programme. It was the outcome of the action of the re-cent Baptist Council in the recognition of the Central Baptist Church, without ex-pressiy stipulating that the new church should not establish treif in the field oc-cupied by the Second Church, and because the council refused to receive and consider in open council the protest of the Sec-ond Church. For these reasons the Sec-ond Church decided not to participate in the proceedings of the Willamette Bap-tist Association Convention, although urged to do so.

Rev. Stanton C. Lapham, the paster of the Second Church, yesterday said: 'The outsiders got a wrong impression of the true situation, and think there is more in it than there really is. We simply dropped out of the convention of the association for this year for the reason that if anything should come up concerning the relations of the Second Church and Mr. Randall and his associates, we would not be present, and should not be compelled to answer. We want to live in Christian brotherhood and don't want to prolong the trouble. If the case had come up we should not have remained quiet, and for this reason we thought best to remain out this year, but will attend next year with our delegates. Mr. Randall's prominence on the programme may be ac-counted for from the fact the programme was made up nearly a year ago."
This was Mr. Lapham's diplomatic explanation. However, in speaking of the work of the council, which recognized the Central Baptist Church, he said: "It was an unheard-of proceeding that the church mostly interested should not even have been invited to take part in the council of recognition, and that the counsent to that body. Our protest was pre-pared in the most courteous manner. We simply protested against the examination of the differences between the two churches by the council without the Second Church being allowed to be present with represent atives, and further, we objected to the establishment of an opposition church in our midst-between the Second Church on the north side and the Calvary Church on the south-there being a little more than a mile between them. That was what we protested against, and not against the recognition of the new church. We felt if Mr. Randall started a church in this territory it would be nothing more than an opposition church. We were not given any representation in the council, although there were severe reflec-tions made on the Second Church, which we were not permitted to answer. A Bap-tist minister from Spokane declared that above all things the Second Church should have been permitted a representative be-fore the council of recognition. But we fore the council of recognition. But we did not want to carry the trouble into the association, and decided to remain out un-
