Rome remained in the papal power, and a French garrison was maintained in the city until the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian War. When the French withdrew, King Victor Emmanuel advanced upon Rome, which, after a short bom-bardment, displayed a white flag. The following day, September 21, 1879, the garrison marched out, and the papery was shorn of its last vestige of tem-poral power. Fius IX did not abate his claim to the papal dominions, and was kept virtually a prisoner. Leo XIII also maintained the papal claims, and he, too, regarded himself as a

Marquis de Castellane.) ROME, July 22,-An exchange of visits and opinions, not so much by the cardinals themselves as by friendly election comoters, results today in the disclosure of two great succession currents, one favors Cardinal Rampolia and the other Cardinal Serifino Vannutelli. The cardinals who are weary of Leo's policy will not accept Rampolla, the failure of whose

French policy is being used against him. For the first time the French cardinals will not vote as a unit. In their discussion today Rampolia openly upbraided them with cowardice because they had a weaernment to defeat but feared to use it. The weapon was a transfer of the protectorate of the Catholics in the Orient to Germany, Italy and Austria. This would smash Combes' ministry. Rampolla is an intransigeant. His opposition to the Italian government is famous. While no pope will make overtures to the Quirinal, many cardinals decline to accept the responsibility of inaugurating the new reign by making a bitter enemy of the Italian government. It is believed if Rampolla finds he cannot be elected he will transfer his strength to Di Pietro. We carry all sizes and Hitherto he intended to transfer his fol lowing to Gotti, and failing to elect him both would unite upon Di Pietro, but it is isters and Ventilators in believed the disclosures regarding Gotti's brother has given him his coup de grace. She is a Parisian secress, who predicted the next pope would be a white-haired. barefooted monk, Di Pietro is 75, saintly, scholarly and frail.

Rampolla's most powerful rival now is Serifino Vannutelli, who is a great friend of the United States. Gibbons is his personal friend and admirer and it is expected will work for him. Should Vannutelli fail he will back Agliardi, contenting imself with the secretaryship of state. Agliardi is vice-chancellor, an office second only in dignity to the papacy. TRUCE WITH THE STATE,

Vatican May Wave Temporal for

July 22.-(Special.)-Pending the development of the policy of the new pope, a truce exists between the two great disputants for the temporal sovereignty of the Roman see-Italy and the Vatican. Should Leo's successor renew the traditional claim of the church, well-informed persons fully expect that the old warfare will be resumed and the incoming pontiff will technically become like his predecessor, a prisoner in the Vatican.

However, it is not anticipated that the ontest will assume a violent character. It is believed to exist more in theory than in fact, as the chief candidates for the papacy are said to favor waiving the insistent proclamation of claims that revolt the liberal sentiment in Italy. Early in his administration the new pope may reaffirm the church's temporal attitude, but thereafter he is expected to pursue a policy almed at the reassertion of the moral sway of the papacy over the conscience of the Italian people. The opportunity for an effective stroke in this direction is ideal at present. Rome and

Italy are calm and chastened. They have indergone a spiritual baptism-some say Leo's triumph was complete at the hour of his death. All over the country there are evidences of a great obscuration of sordid things and a corresponding heightening of high ideals. The old note of discord is still, and the impulse of Leo on the land is emphasized in the eulogy of the dead pope by the King. It is felt by many of the highest ecclesiastics that this moral victory must not be sacrificed by too rigid adherence to a policy that, to say the least, is temporarily imprac-ticable. They say it is better to have the substance than the shadow of sover-

DOOR HAD LONG BEEN LOCKED. Processon Waits While Search Is

Made for Lost Keys. ROME. July 22—While the remains of the pope were being carried into St. Pet-er's this evening the private ceremony of depositing the urn containing his vis-cera in the church of Saints Vincent and cera in the church of Saints Vincent and Anastasius was taking place.

A curious hitch occurred when the solemn procession arrived at the door of the special depository in the crypt. It was stopped, as the key was not to be found. The attendants hunted high and low, and finally were obliged to break down the door. The depository had not been opened since 1846, as, contrary to custom, the viscera of Pius IX are at St. Peter's. The rector of the Church of Saints Vincent and Anastasius will ask that the viscera of Pius IX be transthat the viscera of Pius IX be trans-ferred to his church also, in order to make the sequence complete,

The will of the late pope is still un-opened, as proved by the fact that his apartment is scaled. Otherwise the objects there would have been distributed. It was the instructions left by him. Leo's intimates say, however, that they know that the testament begins with advice about religion and morals, and that it declares his firm intention to leave all he possessed to the church, including probably what must appear to be personal property, on the ground that no one coulclaim anything he had during life, as he had generously provided for those bound to him by ties of blood and affection. The report published in the United States on the authority of the Tribums here to the effect that the will had been appeared by Cardinal Orsella and that it opened by Cardinal Oregila and that it showed the pope had left a private fortune of $15,000,000, was premature and was re-tracted in a later edition of the Tribuna

At this morning's session of the cor gregation, when Cardinal Oregita asked if the conclave would be held in Rome, it is rumored that only Cardinals Martenelli and Steinhuber objected on the ground of possible influence of the Italian gov-ernment, Cardinal Oreglia, who himself, at the time of the death of Pius IX had favored the conclusion to hold the con-clave outside of Italy, today declared that interference by the Italian govern-ment was impossible, and the proposition to hold the conclave at Rome was car-ried unanimously. The congregation de-cided that all participating in the con-clave should not be allowed to hold comcation of any kind with the outside

In 1878 Cardinal Hohenlohe was per-mitted to have his meals goot from home, through which medium it is said he noti-fied Crispi, then Minister of the Interior of Italy, and Bismarck about the pro-ceedings of the conclave. It has been decided that the cells occupied by each cardinal in the conclave shall be chosen by let. Preparations for the conclave have already begun in the Sistine Chapel, where the balloting will take place. It is said that an agreement has been reached by the ecclesiastical and governpon with which to lure the French gov- ment authorities to have the Italian troops enter St. Peter's should any dis-turbance occur during the three days that Leo will lie in state in the chapel of the sacrament.

WASHINGTON, July 22. - Charles Hedges today was removed from the office of superintendent of free delivery of the Postoffice Department, on the charge of falsifying his diary and loaning his traveling commission. It is charged that he reported himself at various places, when, in fact, he was not at those places on the dates mentioned, in some instances being hundreds of miles

Mr. Hedges, while making no general denial of the charges, contended that they were not sufficient justification for moval. Ervin Thorpe, postoffice inspec tor in charge at New York, who has been assisting in the administration of the free delivery service since the inception of the investigation, has been designated acting superintendent in place of Mr. Hedges. The official statement made public today by Fourth Assistant Postmaster-Genera Bristow, says in part:

"On October 25, 1900, he (Hedges) states when in fact he was at Maretary John Sherman. On December 7, under oath that he was at various places. The engineer did not respond imthe business of the free delivery service.

In the month of October, 1899, A. W. Machen, superintendent of free delivery, was sick with typhoid fever and Hedges was at the department acting as superintendent. In his diary he states namely, New York, Philadelphia, Bridgeport, Conn.; Camden, N. J., and elsewhere, 'actually engaged in traveling on similar falsifications. The facts were submitted to the Postmaster-General some days since, who directed Hedges' removal for the reasons above set forth." The case was worked up by Postoffice

Inspector George Sutton, assisted by Inspectors Bennett and Johns, There were several charges on file against Mr Hedges, but none of these constituted the basis of his dismissal. The acts which led to his removal were discovered by the inspectors in the course of their general investigation of the records of the free delivery service. The case has been under investigation for several weeks. Mr. Bristow summoned Mr. Hedges just before the close of office hours this afternoon and notified him of his dismissal. Mr. Hedges was appointed to the posta service from the Tenth Congressional District of Texas on July 1, 1898, and was appointed superintendent of free delivery July 1, 1901. His salary was $3000 a year. He had charge of the free relivery service in the cities, the rural free delivery being under another superintendent and both having been under the general supervision of August W. Machen. In a statement

tonight, Mr. Hedges said: Salary Not Sufficient,

"While I was assistant superintenden of free delivery with headquarters at New York I was called to Washington to take charge of the entire service while Mr. Machen was ill with typhoid fever. While so acting I got $2000 salary as assistant superintendent, while Mr. Machen re celved $3500. It was necessary for me to get the per diem allowance to make the services and the compensation equal. It has been the practice of the office for the party taking the place of the head of the service to claim per diem in some form. In my case I was also supervising the Eastern division while officiating as gen eral superintendent here.

"Herbert W. Valentine, now in the New York postoffice, and formerly stenographer there under me, surrendered private letters and notes to the inspectors which gave them this information. "I used to drop him a line when I was traveling to keep him posted on my whereabouts. Valentine is the one who used this postoffice commission. It was used with the knowledge of General Superintendent Machen and of First Assistant Postmaster-General Johnson. Valentine was anxious to go out on field work. Mr. Bristow refused to allow the issuance of a commission for Valentine on the ground that he was a clerk and not an officer. Mr. Machen, however, held that as Valentine was engaged on the work of the office, his use of the commission was not illegal. He Did Visit Mexico. "As to the San Autonio reference, I was in Mexico, but not examining mining property. I did not see this mining prop-In making my reports, I never put down towns that I had not visited, nor did I put down all the towns that I visited as I was permitted to do. But He Has Hard Fight for Senator.

SEATTLE IS NOT UNITED

Two Factions Will Not Willingly Accept Him.

WHAT WILL M'BRIDE MEN DO?

Railroad Interests Will Support Pacific Coast Companies' Attorney-John E. Humphries and His Candidacy for Governor.

New political lines are in course of formation among King County Republicans, and politicians are uncertain as to the outcome of a fight for control of the county that has been precipi-tated by Sam H. Piles' announcement of his candidacy for the position of United States Senator. Piles is a railroad atterney, and a successful King County politician. His candidacy probmeans a three-cornered fight. John E. Humphries wants King County to support him for Governor, and this further complicates the situation. ***************

SEATTLE, Wash., July 22-(Special.)-The announcement of Samuel H. Piles' andidacy for United States Senator Indicates the character of fight that may be expected at the Republican primaries in this county next Pall. There is certain to be one of the most interesting political conflicts the county has seen, for there are at least two factions of the Republican party here who will not willingly accept Piles as the King County candidate, Yet ne is better known and a more able politician than any other man who has fought for recognition in King for years.

"I've never been on the losing side," Mr. Piles has frequently said in summing up his political fights in King County, and there is no doubt but that he is right in this claim. But there have been times when one would have to work pretty hard and move rather actively in order to be able to put his finger on Sam Piles. There have been times when Mr. Piles seemed to be sitting on the fence, and when he seemed to have no positive opinions on

This has not injured him from a political stanopolnt, and is merely asserted to indicate that Mr. Piles' declaration that he has always won is not intended to convey the impression that he has dictated King County politics. Mr. Piles has never attempted that, and it is questionable whether he could have succeeded.

The new candidate for Senatorial honors is naturally of a cautious nature. Upon impulse, he is likely to enter upon a stubborn contest, and to make one of the hardest fights ever waged to gain a point, But, naturally, he prefers to get along without stirring up too much trouble.

This is clearly illustrated by his action at the last Republican county convention. Mr. Piles is a railroad attorney, and, as such, he was made chairman of the county convention. He was delegated authority to appoint a committee to choose a delegation to the State Republican convention. Railroad interests believed they were fully protected, but when Mr. Piles' committee had announced its list the names were evenly balanced. There were as many anti-railroad delegates as men opposed to Governor McBride's railroad commission policy. Sam Piles had been politic. He had merely avoided another fight, and, though he incurred the displeasure of the railroad politicians by this act and lost the fight at the Tacoma convention, he is still regarded with sufficient favor by railroad politicians to indicate that they will not fight him in his King County struggle. At the same time he stands better with the anti-railroad men.

There has always been a feeling among politicians of King County and the State of Washington that some time Piles would be a candidate for the United States Senate. Even in the days when the "Cherrystreet crowd," as Hunt, McGraw, Grant, Hellborn and their friends were known; Piles stood well enough in political circles to be discussed as a Senatorial possibility. And at various times since his name has been put forward.

Leigh Hunt evidently never forgot Piles, and the probability that he could win a Senatorial contest with Piles as the man sent to the front. When Hunt came back before the last state campaign and discussed the possibilities of founding a new paper in Scattle, it was with the intention of alding Piles to be eeleted Senator. Hunt's health gave out before he could carry out his plan, and his physicians positively forbade his entering active business. He went abroad and remained quiet for a year or more. Now it is reported that Hunt is again in this country, and he might re-enter King County politics. In any event, the Piles part of his programme is to be carried out,

King County wants a Senator, and the hold-over members of the State Senate from King County would like to elect some man from Seattle to the United States Senate in order to vindicate themselves, They claimed last Winter to have gained individual pledges from holdover Senators that would give them a big prestige in next year's Senatorial contest, and the feeling that this is true is sufficient to inspire a number of King County men with ambition.
