INADVISABLE HOODLUMS AT SEASIDE.—A number of Portland people who are sojourning at Seaside for the summer have been considerably astonished and not a little disturbed by the actions of a few hoodlums from some part of Idaho, who have taken a cottage at a central part of the beach for the season. The streets in Seaside are narrow and unpaved, except that plank sidewalks have been laid to relieve residents from tolling through the sand. Of course there are no municipal rules and regulations governing the use of streets and sidewalks there, as most of the people staying there are from Portland or other towns, and such matters can be safely entrusted to their good sense or good manners. It appears, however, that there are no rules or regulations governing the use of streets, and presumably no sidewalks in the obscure part of Idaho in which the people are mentioned as having taken the estate residence. Not only do they use their horses on the sidewalk, but they ride them up and down the sidewalks, forcing women wheeling baby buggies and all others out on the sandy street. When remonstrated with, they say: "This is a private walk, and appear to think that this settles the question, although the walk is in the street which is dedicated to the public. In explanation of why these hoodlums are allowed to violate all the rules of civilization and common sense, it may be stated that there are but few residents in that vicinity except women and children. It is probable that when the men folk go down to spend Sunday these "bad men from Idaho" will receive some instructions in regard to the use of sidewalks, and if this does not suffice to make them mend their ways they will find Seaside an unpleasant abiding place.

EPICUREAN SAMPLES BLACK BARK.—A man of epicurean tastes, who has been accustomed to a diet of chinook salmon, secured a fine specimen of the big-mouth black bass, now becoming common, and had it cooked for his breakfast yesterday in order to judge of the quality of the fish. He found the flesh very white, flaky and firm, and there was so much fat in the fish that it could be taken out in layers, like hard out of a hog. He never saw so much fat in a fish as was in that case. The fish was delicate in taste, and probably deserves all the nice things that have been said of it, as a table fish, but after all he thought it lacked the richness of chinook salmon and the flavor of trout. One's taste, for fish, depends on "how he was brought up."

TRAMPER OVERWHELMED WITH ADVICE.—A trampster hauling a load of some three tons of old hardware to the Pacific coast yesterday was put in a disagreeable predicament by the tap or nut falling off the end of an axle, and the wheel getting loose. He was overwhelmed with advice. Acting on some of the advice, he tried to screw under the exposed arm of the axle and when he had raised the load he had to go off and hunt up another jack screw to put under the body of the truck in order to release the first one and get the wheel in place. He says advice is cheap, but it is not practicable to be worthless.

THE RED ROSE THAT GREW BLACK.—Sheriff Storey had on display at his office yesterday a "rose of the Jean La Barre variety, which he considered as great wonder as the Snapdragon raised by Mrs. La Grande. The outer circles of petals, nearly half the flower, were so dark colored as to appear almost black, while the center of the rose was a bright red. The soil and climate of Oregon put all sorts of freak ideas into flowers the character of which is not to be expected, which have become settled and those which think only of surpassing all of their kind grown out of Oregon, and they usually succeed in doing this.

CITY HALL JANITOR LOOKED OUT.—Head Janitor Simmons, of the City Hall, is anxious to ascertain who snapped the lock on him when he went out on the roof Tuesday to put the flag at half mast on account of the death of the pope. He was imprisoned on the roof for two hours, and when he called to people passing they imagined that something had gone wrong with his upper story. Finally by throwing down his clothing he attracted the attention of the janitors, who came up and released him. If he finds out who locked him out, it is probable that there will be another lockout on the force of janitors.

WATERMELONS SELL BY THE POUND.—The new plan of selling watermelons by the pound is proving very satisfactory to both customers and retailers. The latter say they have been successful in selling the small melons as easily as the large ones. Heretofore, they say, every customer who did not get the largest one in the pile imagined that he was being cheated. Watermelons of this quality are now coming in and are being sold at about $1.00 per cent. The large ones are not ready for market yet, and nothing has been seen as yet of the seedling variety promised.

MISSOURIANS TO WELCOME CHAMP CLARK.—The colony of Missourians in Portland are making preparations to extend a hearty welcome to Representative Champ Clark, and a prominent citizen of their native state, who has a reputation as an orator and writer which is broader than the whole State of Missouri. As the arrangements for his reception are chiefly in the hands of W. M. Davis, the friends of Mr. Clark need have no fear as to results.

HARVEST JUBILEE SERVICES.—Bethel Church, at 30 North Third street, is holding harvest jubilee services tonight. J. A. Wisdom speaks on "Unveiling the Monument." Other speakers are Judge John F. Caples and W. A. Brady. The public is welcome.
