It seems to be written in the book that the Browns are never to win a game when it is extended into the extra-inning stage. Yesterday's outcome, with the exception of the trimmings which Umpire McDon ald and "Speck" Hurlburt furnished, was in keeping with other extra-session affairs in which the Browns have been engaged.

Some one must have furnished McDonald with a "Native Son" backbone plaster before the game, for he sent Hurlburt, bat and all, out of the game and grounds in the third inning, because the big outfielder slammed his bat on the nd when he was called out on strikes and for daring to stand on the plate and turn his optics, agleam with wrath, on him. Admitting that Hurlburt was at fault, it was rather surprising to see Umpire McDonald suddenly stricken with the nonarrival of Oakland from the rigidity of the vertebrae during this series, | north for he has stood his share of abuse, worse than Huriburt's, without using his author-

But let that pass-the game was San Francisco's by right of timely hitting and fast work on the bases. The bid that the Browns made for the game, after fighting up hill, proved that the motto of the team is, "Never say die." No better proof of this is needed when the story of that pinth inning is told. Three singles, four stolen bases and a costly error by Anderson gave the Saints a lead of four runs in the first inning, and it was with this han-dicap that the Browns began their battle for the game. In Portland's half of the same inning Huriburt. Van Buren and Nadeau found Herr for three singles, which, with the assistance of Kelly's er-ror, gave the Browns two runs. Things were looking good for moving up to 'Fris-co's total, when Hollingsworth hit straight into Herr's hands, and the ex-Oaklander shot the ball over to Irwin in time to catch Nadeau as he was trying for the switch at third. This was a sample of the luck in which the visitors were fated to play during the engagement, for in almost every inning some member of the Browns was destined to hit square into the waiting mitt of a Saint.

Scoring Is Resumed, The sleughter of the first chapter was ning, when a single by Krug and a two-bagger by Lynch placed Krug where he could score on Delmas' fly to Raldy, who took Huriburt's station in the right gar-yards wide. Shea was after it quickly and passed the runaway ball to Thielman in time to kill Lynch at the plate. In the sixth Raidy introduced himself to one of Herr's curves, and he placed it for a sin gle. Van Buren drew a pass, Nadeau sac rificed them a station each, and randy scored on Anderson's out from Delmas to Kelly. Up to this time Herr held the Browns without a hit, and it looked as if the man who couldn't get along with Grandma Lohman wasn't going to give the Browns another look-in at the game, But the fats were getting ready for Herr. They were waiting for the ninth inning, laughing at what was to come, and not minding the two additional runs Uncle Hank Harris' pets made in the seventh Browns Tie the Score.

Some of the fans were getting ready go home, when Biake came up in the ninth, because Hollingsworth had hit a fly to Krug. When he lined out a single, the yell that rose brought them back in a Then, to add to their giee, Jay galiop. Then, to add to their glee, Jay Andrews soaked the Spalding for a sin gle. Shea was out by a close decision at first, and the hopes of a tie-up became gloomy as a cell in the city jail. The flicker of hope that still lingered was cen-tered in Thielman, and that stout-hearted pitcher, that had been doing his work well, in spite of the bad eyesight of Mo-Donald, did not disappoint them. He seemed an age at the bat, but he got what he was after, and he stung the ball for a single. It was Raidy, Raidy! that the crowd appealed to. He had been out of the game for some days, but his bat-ting eye was as bright as a harvest moon. Two strikes were on him. Once he jeited the ball and it fell foul to left. Again he swung his bat and the ball sailed again to left. Opinions differ as to whether it fell fair or foul. McDonaid thought it fair, and a merry-go round followed. Blake, Andrews and Thielman raced home. and in their wake came Raidy. He had completed the circuit, and his home run tied up the proceedings.

There was a mass meeting of Saints.

Irwin, Lynch, who had allowed the ball get away from him, and the rest of team orated at McDonald, and by signs and profaulty tried to convince the official that Raidy's hit had hit the ground outside the foul line. About ten minutes were taken up in this discussion, and a disposition on the part of Irwin and his hired men not to continue the game. Van Buren insisted that the game proceed. McDonald seemed unwilling to use his authority, as he did in the case of Huriburt. Herr had got "his," and during the parley Iberg was given time to limber up -a thing which never should have been allowed by McDonald or the Brown man-

Eleventh Saves the Saints.

When Iberg got into action, he passed one up to Van that dropped into the hands of Delmas. Neither team scored in the eath. In the lith inning Jacobs, San Francisco's new backstop, who is con-structed like the running-gear of a grass-hopper, bunted out. Shay walked, and Meaney singled. Irwin struck out, but McDonald did not see it that way, and finally he also drew a pass. This filled the methers and know a pass. cushions, and Krug smashed one at Van Buren that was traveling like a fast ex-press. The hall passed the Deacon, and, while Raidy was fumbling it. Shuy and Meaney scored. Irwin came home on Lynch's out to Blake. Shea's single became a run when Irwin threw Raidy's Thisiman had struck out, and Van Buren hit to lberg and was killed at first.

The grandstand look a decided dielike to McDonaid's decisions, and some pretty stiff language was banded him. He finally located some one who was passing "hot things" to him and demanded of Vigneux that the objectionable person be removed. He refused at first to go on with the

EASY DAY FOR THE CRACKS

WEEDING OUT PROCESS BEGINS AT TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Goss Defeats Grelle in Two Straight Sets-Close Games in Ludies' Singles.

Nothing unusual or unexpected happened in the tennis tournament yesterday. All the favorites who were expected to win captured their matches with comparative case. It was a day of weeding out and the atrongest players proved them-selves the fittest by surviving in the pre-liminary tests. And as a result of the liminary tests. And as a result of the weeding-out process in the men's singles, eight men are candidates for the consolations with as many more to be determined tomorrow. The day was perfect for playing and there was present an unusually large first-day crowd of lates. usually large first-day crowd of interested spectators. It was definitely learned that neither Goward nor Powell, of Victoria, would be able to be present. Breeze, strokes, of Tacoma, and Freeman, of Pasadena, are expected to make their first apparance today.

No particularly brilliant tennis was displayed, though it is apparent that the standard of play, so far as the local players are concerned, has been considera-bly improved. Goss was the only star of first magnitude, who had a match on and draw, subjected himself to the critical eyes of A the cranks who are endeavoring to sebeen cure a line on the form of their respec-tive favorites. He defeated Grelle handily in straight sets, though Grelle ran up-four games in the second. Score: 6-1, 6-4. Six of the 17 games were deuce. The closest and most interesting games played were in the ladles' singles. The draw in this event was unfortunate in that the strongest players are grouped in | 3 and Breeze and Prince at 4. the first half. Miss Heitshu won from Miss Josephi, 6-4, 6-3. Each of these play-

Miss Strong defeated Miss Robertson, 7-5, 6-1. In the first set Miss Strong son, 1-3, 5-1. In the first set alias strong led at 5-2. Miss Robertson captured the next three games. The eleventh game went to deuce and was finally won by Miss Strong, who then took the next and the set, 7-5. The second set was comparatively easy, 6-1. But two matches were scheduled in the men's doubles and both resulted as expected. It took Herdman and Ewing four games to study out the style of game of Corbett and Mackie. After that there was no question as to the outcome and the more experienced team won out, 6-3, 6-0. Herdman and Ewing had good team work and smashed in excellent style. Corbett made many clever returns. The match between the Wickershams

It is understood that the minor leagues will demand that the reserve rules be en-forced. When Ban Johnson was in the city last week, he said that no matter what agreement was made, the American League would stand by the contracts with its players. The contracts run from two to three years, that being the only way the American League could get the star players of the older league to desert or sign contracts with the new league. In the old league the contracts usually stand for the playing scason only.
