AMUSEMENTS.

EMPIRE THEATER, Twelfth and Morrison—Vaudeville.

SHIELDS' PARK, Thirteenth and Washington—Vaudeville.

PROGRESS IN STREET IMPROVEMENT.—There is a strong probability that the long delayed repair of the asphalt pavement on Morrison street will be completed soon. The Trinidad Asphalt Company has been doing good work in the way of repairing lately and has one side of the lower section of Third street about completed. The work has been delayed a little by building material occupying one side of Third street between Ankeny and Burnside streets, but the contractors have promised to clear it away, so that the street could be put to rights last night. Superintendent Taylor hopes to have a stripping gang at work on Morrison street today, and to begin repairing the pavement between Third and Front tomorrow. He will make quick work with this section, taking up the north side of the street first, so as not to blockade it, and it will be only a few days till the pavement on Morrison street will be in good order from Front to Fifth, for the first time in no one knows how long. Washington street is beginning to look as it should, and the City & Suburban Railway Company had a gang of 20 men and a steam concrete mixer at work on Yamhill between Second and Third, yesterday. The paving of that block with preserved wood blocks will soon be completed. The block between Second and First is completed. When heavy grooved rails are laid in concrete, and the surface of the street paved with wood blocks set right up against the rails, with no raged lines of stone blocks along the tracks, the street will look about as well and is as smooth to drive over as if there were no railway tracks on it. If care is taken to replace any defective blocks, or any which may give way, the pavement on Yamhill can be kept as smooth and easy for vehicles to cross as can be desired for many years.

NEW SPECIES OF APPLE.—There are some bright geniuses among the motormen on the Woodstock electric line. One of them has a fruit ranch in the Clackitat country, and occasionally goes there to see how the woolly aphis, codlin moth and other friends of the fruitgrower are flourishing. His associates on the line rather enjoy guying him when he returns, and do their best to make life enjoyable to him. They have lately discovered that he has a new variety of apple on his ranch, called the "cider sponge." The peculiar property of this apple is that one going out early in the morning, before the sun is up can squeeze from each of them a large cupful of cool, refreshing and delicious cider. During the remainder of the day the fruit hangs as destitute of moisture and as flabby as a squeezed sponge, but at night it fills with cider again, and is ready to yield another refreshing draught in the morning. They say this rare and wonderful apple was produced by grafting a liar onto a cider press, from connection with which he eventually escaped with the loss of a limb, but whether it was a leg or an arm is not stated. The ranchman admits that the story is true, and says he is planning to increase the number of his cider sponge apple trees. He is having a lot of cheap cider presses set out on his ranch, and says he will have no trouble in finding enough liars among the motormen on the Woodstock line to graft them all.

RUSH TO PAY WATER RATES.—Quiet reigned at the waterworks office yesterday, after the hurry and bustle of collecting water rates for the month. The rates have been paid up more closely than usual this month. Monday was the last of the ten days of grace allowed, and on that day there was a grand rush. The people stood in line at both desks all day long, sometimes the whole length of the long room, most of the time 50 in the string, and never less than a dozen. As the average water rate is $1.40, and $4200 was taken in Monday, it can be imagined that a good many water consumers were waited upon. Many who have a large water rate to pay put it off to the 10th, and increase the rush on that day. The average rate of $1.40 does not include sprinkling, and some family rates for large residences are $4 to $5. The sprinkling bill runs up quite high in places, the highest bill on a double block being $14.

MERCURY FAILS AS TO DATES.—William Braden, who has been inspecting the construction and maintenance of sewers for the past 26 years, has gone to Tillamook for a vacation, and to indulge his taste for trout-fishing and clam-digging. He said just before leaving that this was the first vacation for him in 26 years. The other deputies in the City Engineer's office say he forgets dates occasionally, and that when he went on his vacation last year he said it was the first he had had in 12 years. He takes his vacation regularly and is entitled to it. He can catch more trout and get obstructions out of more sewers than any of the gay young deputies who would like to jolly him about his vacation statements.

ANOTHER opportunity will be given you on the 18th, 19th, 25th and 26th of this month to purchase very low excursion tickets to points East over the Northern Pacific. These tickets are good on the "North Coast Limited" or on either of the other overland trains. Call on or write A. D. Charlton, Assistant General Passenger Agent of the Northern Pacific Railway, 255 Morrison street, corner of Third, Portland, Or., for full information, maps of routes, sleeping-car reservations, etc.

DEATH OF MRS. JENNIE ALBRIGHT.—Mrs. Jennie Albright, wife of G. A. Albright, died at the family residence, 301 Sellwood street, at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, aged 28 years. She had been sick with dropsy and heart disease about three months. Mr. and Mrs. Albright were married in Albina, she being a native of Oregon. The funeral will be held from the Evangelical Church in Upper Albina, at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

APPROPRIATE CIGAR SIGN.—One of the prettiest and most suitable signs imaginable for a cigar store was seen yesterday in the shape of a tobacco plant growing in a pot. Such signs are not common, and most of those displayed are rather scrubby-looking plants. The one seen yesterday was a large and thrifty specimen, about as fine as could be grown in a pot, and just coming into bloom.

BOY SHOT BY PLAYMATE.—R. Livingstone, the young son of President R. Livingstone, of the Chamber of Commerce, was painfully hurt yesterday by being struck in the left eye by a ball from an airgun accidentally discharged by one of his playmates. Dr. R. Nunn was summoned and found that the injury, while painful, will probably not result in the loss of the eye.

NEW FRUIT IN SEASON.—The very last of late cherries are in the market, and a little too long kept to be nice. Grapes are coming in to take their places, but the varieties arriving so far are small and not desirable. Oregon tomatoes, fresh, plump and ripe, are becoming plentiful and reasonable in price, and they are throwing all imported ones in the shade.

LOW EXCURSION rates will again be placed in effect by the Northern Pacific on August 18, 19, 25 and 26 to points East and return. Tickets will be good for stop-over and bear limit of three months from date of sale. For full particulars call on or write A. D. Charlton, Assistant General Passenger Agent of the Northern Pacific Railway, 255 Morrison street, corner of Third, Portland, Or., for full information, maps of routes, sleeping-car reservations, etc.

TOMMY RYAN FINED $15.—After a lot of talk about prosecuting Patrolman Hemsworth for shooting him in the leg while being arrested, "Tommy" Ryan, once one of the pugilistic stars of the city, pleaded guilty to the charge of frequenting an opium joint and was fined $15 by Municipal Judge Hogue yesterday morning. Ryan's suit of $1000 against the officer for damages has not yet been officially heard of.

SCHOOLS TEACH TOO LITTLE

Senator Miller Turns Attention From Politics to Education.

M. A. Miller, State Senator of Linn County, has been taking in the metropolitan sights of Portland for several days. Mr. Miller is a Democrat, as thoroughly dyed in the precepts of the party as any disciple of Jefferson. Last year he defeated Percy R. Kelly, of Albany, in the fight for election to the Legislature. Mr. Miller is an outspoken protester against the expanded curricula in the public schools. "Our schools, in trying to teach too much, teach too little," is his sentiment. Yesterday he gave vent to his opinion by citing one example. At the recent civil service examinations in the Federal building, one person misspelled 17 words out of 20, and another ten out of 20. Mr. Miller believes in getting back closer to reading, writing, arithmetic and spelling.

"Spare me," said he when asked why Linn County had gone Republican in the last election. "I'm out of politics, entirely out. I just came to Portland on a small matter of business. When I come down next time I may have something for a newspaper item. Please excuse me today."

SAVE MONEY BY NOT BATHING.—It seems impossible that any one civilized enough to live in a house would have the bathtub disconnected, to save the 50 cents water rate, and yet the plumbing inspector is kept busy looking after people who not only do this, but employ a cheap tinsmith, and neglect entirely to seal the waste-pipe connecting with the sewer. In this way the trap soon goes dry, and the sewer gas has admission to the house. Many such cases would never be found out were it not necessary to report the disconnection to the water office in order to get the 50-cent rebate on the water bill. The report is turned over to the plumbing inspector, and he investigates and sees that the waste-pipe is properly sealed. In many small houses where the bathtub is disconnected in this manner the bathroom is small, and in some projection or out-of-the-way corner, and the tub is used as a storehouse for clothing, and sometimes a bed is made on top of the tub. The prospect of a family living in such a house, with no bathtub and the sewer gas having free entrance through the unsealed waste pipe, must be very favorable for typhoid fever and other diseases. Only a plumbing inspector knows what chances of contracting disease some people will take to prevent a little expenditure. Yesterday a hard effort was being made to get him to grant an extension of time for closing up a vault where there were sewers on every side. He said ample time had been allowed for this, and the owner of the property must either close the vault or move out. Such vaults were not allowed inside the city limits. There was no other in the block, and none could be allowed, and it must be closed at once. The applicant for the extension endeavored to make out that the vault had been complained of as a piece of spitework, but there was only one answer, it is contrary to law and it must be closed, and at once. When people want to live without bathtubs and with vaults about, they ought to remove to Timbuctoo.

WHERE DID THE LOGAN BERRY ORIGINATE?—In mentioning the fact a day or two ago that a new berry, a cross between the blackberry and dewberry, had just been brought out in California, a comparison was made with the Logan berry, a cross between the blackberry and raspberry, which it was stated had been originated in Oregon. This it appears was an error, owing to the writer of the paragraph not being an expert on berries in any regard except that of eating them. Three persons have hastened to call attention to the mistake, but there is a discrepancy in their statements which leaves the origin of the berry still practically in doubt. One says it was originated by General Logan, of California; another that this honor belongs to Dr. Logan, of Arkansas. The third states that it was accidentally originated by Judge J. D. Logan, of California, while trying to cross blackberries, the raspberry having stolen a march on him. The Logan berry was first grown in Oregon in the Magoon nursery, on Gravelly Hill, in 1881, the first berries ripening in 1882, but just where it was obtained is not definitely known. The Oregonian would like to correct any error it may have made, but under the circumstances does not see exactly how this is to be done. And as so many fine fruits have been originated in Oregon, and so many which have been originated elsewhere have been improved after being introduced by the climate and soil of Oregon, it is only natural to suppose that all superexcellent fruits and berriers have been originated here. So the statement will be allowed to stand as made for the present.

MULTNOMAH CLUB EXCURSION.—The very word of "low jinks" to a Multnomah man means more than tongue can tell. It is a quiet, gentlemanly stag picnic. Its reputation has traveled far beyond the limits of Portland. It has worked on the feelings of the women friends of the members, and they have all expressed the greatest desire to attend them. So the boys, just to show the girls that their hearts are in the right place, have decided to share with them their usual annual outing this year. The "low jinks" will give way to a good old-fashioned basket picnic for the members and their friends. The club has chartered the Gatzert for Sunday, August 16, for a trip up the Columbia, through the locks and back to Bonneville, where an opportunity will be given to land and enjoy a quiet lunch under the shade of that beautiful grove. This outing promises to be one of those affairs, perfect in every detail, for which the Multnomah Club has for many years been famous. It will be a day of quiet rest and enjoyment. Those wishing to attend will be able to procure their tickets at either the club or the boat's office at the foot of Alder street. As the capacity of the boat is limited it would be well for those who expect to attend to secure their tickets at once.

PERMANENT EXHIBIT MOVED.—The office and permanent exhibit of the State Board of Horticulture has been removed from the Chamber of Commerce to the second floor of the Mohawk building, corner of Third and Morrison streets, where Secretary George Lamberson will be found ready for business. The exhibit of minerals is in position, and the exhibits of grains and fruits in jars will be moved in this week. The room is smaller than the one formerly occupied on Washington street, and there will be no wall space for exhibits of grains and grasses, and only such exhibits of this kind as can be kept in glass cases, will hereafter be taken in. It is found that sheaves of grains arranged on the walls are mainly attractions for rats and mice, and will therefore have to be left out of the present exhibit. The best possible exhibit of grasses and fruits, preserved and in glasses, will be displayed, and all friends of the exhibit are invited to send in choice specimens.

NOT A VOTE FOR MILES

OREGON IS FOR BLACK FOR COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

Grand Army Men's Admiration for Miles Tinged With Regret—Those Who Go to Encampment.

It is not likely that General Miles will get a single vote from the Oregon delegation for Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army at the National encampment which opens in San Francisco on Monday. On the contrary, it is predicted that a solid vote will be cast for General John C. Black, ex-Commissioner of Pensions.

Veterans are reluctant to discuss the reasons for their opposition to Miles, but their admiration for his splendid military record seems to be tinged with regret that he has allowed his vanity and political ambition to tarnish his fame as a soldier. His course during and since the Spanish War is strongly condemned by old soldiers, who well know how close he has gone to insubordination in stirring up trouble for the Administration.

This state will be well represented at the National encampment. In addition to the department officers, who are ex-officio members of the National encampment, there will be three delegates and three alternates, and nine of the 15 living past department commanders, who are ex-officio members for life, will attend. The department officers who will attend are: Commander D. H. Turner, of Newberg; Senior Vice-Commander T. B. McDevitt, of Portland; Assistant Adjutant-General J. E. Mayo, of Portland. The delegates are: H. Sutcliffe, of Portland; L. W. Ingram, of Oregon City, and B. F. Pike, of Moro. The alternates are: H. S. Allen and Jacob Deckenbach, of Portland, and Thomas Dealey, of Astoria. The past department commanders who will attend are: G. E. Caukin, O. Summers, H. H. Northup, C. P. Holloway, J. A. Sladen, of Portland; F. H. Lamb, now of San Francisco. J. C. Cooper, of McMinnville; S. B. Ormsby, of Salem, and E. W. Allen, of Los Angeles.

Others who will go are: Judge Advocate I. G. Darr, color-bearer; A. C. Edmunds, General Compson, Commander Nevins, A. H. Shurtleff, M. J. Morse and wife, P. Neuberg, J. S. Shepard and wife, Colonel W. H. Jordan, J. E. Hall, I. Weston, L. N. Guy, P. J. Eastwick, Enos Swan, E. W. Maxwell, R. H. Schwab, William Showers, George O. Wood, J. Warick, C. A. Malarkey and P. P. Bodley.

General Summers has already gone, accompanied by his wife and son, and Mr. McDevitt, Mr. Caukin and Mr. Sutcliffe will also be accompanied by their wives. The headquarters staff and most of the delegates will leave here tomorrow night, others going today and Saturday, those being the days on which the excursion rates apply.

The department headquarters of Oregon will be established at the Occidental Hotel, San Francisco.

BAD FOR WATER MAINS.

Escaping Electric Fluid Destroys Pipes.

That the water pipes are injured by the electric fluid flowing from the wires of the street-car lines is now thoroughly believed by the members of the Water Board. At the meeting yesterday afternoon the report of George J. Walker, the superintendent of the telegraph system of the fire department and the City Electrician was read, in which he told the board that electrolysis had certainly destroyed several pipes which had been specially tested for the purpose of ascertaining the truth. A piece of pipe now on exhibition in the water office confirmed the report's findings.

Though the street-car companies have been repeatedly notified of the danger to the water pipes from improperly insulated wires, the managers have paid little attention to the demands made upon them. Manager F. I. Fuller, of the Portland Railway Company, has, it seems, acknowledged that portions of the water pipes had been damaged by the escaping current, but he denied that other parts had been so injured.

How to forcibly bring the condition and the increasing danger to the minds of the street-car men was the question before the board.

"Is there any other way than to take up the street-car tracks?" asked Mayor Williams, as though he was about to order the removal of the car lines as a matter of course.

Advice was not fortheoming. Besides the Mayor those present at the meeting were W. M. Ladd, Dr. S. E. Josephi and Dr. Dav Raffety. None of them are practical electricians and the word electrolysis had a bad sound to their ears.

"If we sent them a bill for damages it might bring up the question," suggested Dr. Josephi. But this did not seem to meet with popular approval.

City Attorney L. A. McNary was there in his official capacity and the Water Board gave him something to do.

"I move that the matter be referred to the City Attorney with the suggestion that he report to the board the best remedy for the present conditions," said Dr. Josephi. So Mr. McNary will have to learn something about electrolysis.

The new road of the Portland Railway Company to Portland Heights will, from Ford street, travel over the force main which supplies that portion of sky land with water. A street-car track over a water main is not a good thing for either party, and the railway company, in a recent letter to the board, advised that the main be moved. This didn't strike the Water Board in the right place.

"The company has no right to lay tracks over our mains," said W. M. Ladd. The company will be notified to this effect.

BIG SIGN TAKES A FALL

Elmer J. Wallace Is Injured and Plate Glass Window Smashed.

While engaged in placing a large and costly sign in position on the Morrison street front of the furniture store of Tull & Gibbs, at the corner of Second, yesterday morning Elmer J. Wallace, the painter of the sign, met with quite a loss and was quite seriously injured on his shoulder and had a narrow escape from being killed.

The sign, which was 93 feet in length and three feet wide, weighed between 600 and 700 pounds, and bore in large letters sawed out of a thin board and heavily gilded the inscription of the firm's name. The sign was to be attached to the building just above the first story, and had been hoisted to its place by four tackles, and as Mr. Wallace says, in two minutes more it would have been made fast," when one tackle hook broke. The weight coming suddenly on the second tackle, it broke also, and the third and fourth followed suit in quick succession. The immense sign of course came down by the rim, and Mr. Wallace, who was standing on a ladder superintending the work of putting it up, had barely time to duck his head as it passed, grazing him on the shoulders, tearing his clothing and inflicting a bruise, the severity of which he could only roughly estimate at the time.

The sign on striking the sidewalk broke into several sections and many pieces, one of which in some manner struck one of the large plate glass windows in the front of the store, cracking it into slivers. Mr. Wallace could only rub his injured shoulder as he saw the $300 sign and $125 worth of plate glass in ruins and realized that he was out and injured over $300.

Of coures, many of the spectators were anxious to give him advice in regard to placing signs in position. Some said that it should have been made in sections, and others that it should have been suspended on rope slings, into which the tackles should have been hooked. Mr. Wallace told these that he had put up dozens of such signs here and in Seattle, and had never met with any such accident before. The sign was to be attached flat to the front of the building, and therefore could not be hung on rope slings. Large screw eyes had been fastened into the sign, into which the tackle blocks were hooked, and the giving away of the hook at one end of course caused the others to break and brought on the general smash.

Mr. Wallace took the misfortune cheerfully, but did look a little glum as he rubbed his shoulder and spoke of the large number of books of the finest gold leaf used in gilding the many and large letters in the sign. A good many of these will be saved uninjured, but it will take some time and several more books of gold leaf to get a new sign in condition to be attached to the building.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

Sale Opens Tomorrow.

The advance sale of seats will open tomorrow (Friday) morning for Amelia Bingham's special company, which will present at the Marquam Grand Theater next Monday and Tuesday nights Clyde Fitch's play of social life, "The Climbers." This brilliant play will be enacted by a more than ordinarily clever company, a statement vouched for by the list of names following: Wilton Lackaye, W. L. Abingdon, James Carew, Ernest Lawford, George Spink, James Kearney, Carl St. Aubyn, Bijou Fernandez, Frances Ring, Adelyn Wesley, Maud Turner Gordon, Georgia Cross, Helene Lackaye and Lillian Wright.

Every Movement Brings a Laugh.

"It happened to me that way once," said Julian Rose at the Empire Theater last night, and the big audience laughed. "Our Hebrew friend" looked solemn again, and the audience laughed again. He waved his hand and they shrieked with glee. The great impersonation of Mr. Rose had put the spectators in that gladsome state of mind where they laughed uproariously at anything.

And when a performer can do this he is certainly worth going to see.

Shields' Amateurs Tomorrow.

Great amusement is promised at Shields' Park tomorrow night, when a choice collection of amateurs will appear. The young lady who recited "Curfew" last Friday will tell about "Aunt Jemimah at the Opera," and Miss Florence Abbott will sing, and several more equally interesting features are on the programme. The regular bill is great this week, and many seem to think that it is the best of the season. This hot weather makes Shields' Park a Mecca for amusement-goers.

Next Week at the Empire.

Next week at the Empire many new and attractive acts will be added to the present bill, among the more prominent being Van Fossen and McCauley, singers, dancers and comedians. Manager Baker is determined to make the silly season gay.

Baseball Pictures at Shields'.

One of the big features for next week at Shields' Park will be a polyscope picture taken by Mr. Shields of the big Sunday baseball crowd a week ago. The picture came out fine, and every face that came within range of the camera will be recognizable on the screen. Nine others big acts will appear, and a most excellent programme is promised.
