And Three Thousand Spectators Howl "Fake."

POLICE NIP LUNACY IN THE BUD

Diavolo's Ride With Clara Schaar on His Shoulders Does Not Come Off and Bedlam Breaks Loose on Multnomah Field.

THE LETTER THAT STOPPED THE ACT.

Portland, Aug. 13.—Mr. Charles G. Klontz, manager of the Loop Company, Multnomah Field, City—Dear Sir: I see by the local newspapers that one of your performers, Diavolo by name, proposes to carry a girl with him tonight in his ride through the loop. In view of the fact that this act is dangerous beyond reason, I hereby order that the said feat be not performed in this city. Yours truly, CHARLES H. HUNT, Chief of Police.

Nearly 300 deluded people paid their money last evening to see Diavolo loop the loop with a woman on his shoulders at Multnomah Field.

One hour later the male portion of the 200 people who had paid their money to see Diavolo loop the loop were threatened to wreck the Multnomah Clubhouse.

Bravely attired in tights as if she really intended to attempt the ludicrously impossible feat and ride with Diavolo to the sound waves threatened to wreck the Multnomah Clubhouse.

Diavolo, the dare-devil, shouted the strong-lunged gentleman on the stage, "I will now ride through the loop with Miss Clara Schaar upon his shoulders."

The crowd shuddered. At last they were to see a great catastrophe. The same keen pleasure that thrills the eager crowd which surrounds the scaffold at a public hanging thrilled the deluded 300. Most of them really imagined that the feat was to be attempted.

Not a bit like it. Marching with admirable military precision across the field advanced two of Portland's famous policemen upon whom Chief Hunt and General Beebe have set the seal of silence and an overdose of white goods. The policeman—Price and another—went to see the manager and the loop-the-loop lunacy was nipped in the bud. Miss Schaar appeared much relieved, and little wonder, for had the policemen carried on their shoulders the manager and the loop-the-loop lunacy was nipped in the bud. Miss Schaar appeared much relieved, and little wonder, for had the policemen carried on their shoulders the manager and the loop-the-loop lunacy was nipped in the bud.

The whole performance last night was most amusing to the 150 persons who paid 50 cents each to sit in the grandstand, and it was equally exasperating to those 100 unfortunate who delivered 25 cents to sit and stand in the outer and distant darkness, which represented the unreserved accommodations.

The stage was pitched immediately in front of the grandstand, and from this point a view could be had of the vaudeville performance which preceded the hair-raising loop-the-loop.

But the people in the 25-cent seats were clear at the other edge of the field—so far away that not even in the daytime could anything be seen. To add to their misfortune, all the loop-the-loop apparatus was arranged carefully between the stage and the cheaper seats, and, moreover, the performers, true to human nature, faced the grandstand, and the 25-centers could only see their backs.

A growing impatience was the result. A dog and monkey circus was the first act on the stage. The chairs on which the canines sat were carefully arranged in a semi-circle facing the grandstand. The people in the distance could see only the chair-backs.

"Flies," they roared with brutal sarcasm when the aristocracy in the grandstand applauded. "Flies," they roared. Presently the suave announcer introduced a dancer to the grandstand. Then he picked up a megaphone and commenced to repeat the announcement to the 100 unfortunate 50 yards away, and he abandoned it.

"Why don't he loop the loop?" shouted two or three hundred disgusted sightseers from the darkness.

The grandstand roared with laughter. The misfortune of our fellowman is always most amusing. Here and there a woman sympathized. "Poor things! They can't see at all," but as a body the grandstand enjoyed it.

A whirling dervish commenced whirling to the unmelodious clapping of some Arabian castanets. Seven other members of the troupe stood behind him, their backs to the 25-cent seats, and completely shut out the view. The dervish whirled and whirled.

"Choke him off," yelled the 100 wrathful people in the distance. "Why don't he loop the loop?" And so it went.

Finally Diavolo and the woman who was neither going to do or die marched across the field towards the loop, and a vague feeling of distrust fell upon both the 25 and 50-cent seats. A brief pause followed owing to the inexcusable delay of the policeman, and it was utilized to announce to the hushed crowd that Diavolo and the dancer would surely loop the loop. Finally the pride of Portland arrived, and according to the intelligent instructions of General Beebe and Chief Hunt talked on business only.

With simulated sadness the announcer climbed the stage again and faced an impatient roar of "fake."

"The police," he began, but the crowd understood. For several minutes the 25-centers took advantage of the opportunity to get even.

"Fake," they howled, "fake, fake, fake," and finally quieted down to hear the explanation.

"Miss Schaar," shouted the manager, "is perfectly willing to loop the loop, but the police will not allow us."

"How much did you pay the police?" called some distant malcontent, and once more Bedlam broke loose.

"Throw the police out. They're easy," screamed another exasperated gentleman, as soon as he could make himself heard.

"If any one thinks this is a fake," howled the announcer, "I can show him this letter from the Chief of Police."

And 300 people roared for the announcer to show it to them.

"I will bet $100," began the announcer, but the crowd was not sporty, and they wouldn't let him explain what he was willing to bet on.

"Give us our money," they shouted. But they didn't get it.

The Oregonian is enabled to deny the report that Chief Hunt is to loop the loop tonight with a pair of roller skates strapped to his manly breast.

FIRE AT ESCAPING MAN

Policemen Capture Prisoner After a Stern Chase.

After chasing John Wilson for four blocks, firing as they ran, Officers Stitt and Price captured the man who had eluded Stitt's grasp at the very doors of the police station last evening. The exciting race would have doubtless been prolonged up Washington street had not Wilson collided with a frightened pedestrian while looking backwards.

Within a block of the police station Wilson saw a girl of the No. 12 street, with whom he was acquainted, and an altercation ensued in which Wilson struck the woman in the face. Officer Stitt appeared around the corner, and, taking in the situation, arrested Wilson and marched him off to the station. As the fracas had occurred at Third and Oak streets, the policeman never thought of his captive's trying to escape.

Just as Wilson was about to enter the portals of the station he dodged to one side and fled quickly up Oak street. Like a flash Stitt was after him, and Patrol Driver Price also joined in the chase. When two policemen closed in on Wilson turned up Third street and coming to Stark made for Fourth. Price fired four shots over the fugitive's head in the hope of making him surrender, but he hurriedly turned to the right and disappeared into the crowd. The time was shortly before 8 o'clock, the streets were crowded with people, and the sight of two policemen chasing a well-dressed man, firing at him meanwhile, brought out every eye within hearing of the shots. The crowd opened for Wilson to run through, and though the officers were steadily gaining they were still some distance in the rear, and the crowd becoming more dense all the time.

It was because Wilson turned his head to learn the distance between himself and his blue-coated pursuers that he was captured. At the corner of Fourth and Washington he collided heavily with a man who had just turned the corner and did not see the approaching form of the runaway. Thrown to the pavement by the force of the collision, Wilson was an easy prey for the officers who were upon him in an instant. He was taken to the station where a charge of vagrancy and use of offensive language was placed against his name on the docket.

The sound of the shots aroused the station to action. Knowing that they were fired within a block or two, Captain Moore hurried every officer on station duty and Wilson when captured had a strong bodyguard to the lock-up. He is 24 years old and well known in Whitechapel. If the runaway didn't pay much attention to the shots which were speeding after him, the crowd which thronged the streets certainly did. For several minutes afterward the streets where the shooting occurred were deserted. One man in his fright crawled under a cab on Fourth street and remained in this place of safety for five minutes.

FAGLES MEET TONIGHT.

Expelled Members of Aerie Seek Return of Their Charter.

Delirious sensations are promised for tonight's mass meeting of the ex-members of Portland Aerie of Eagles. The local birds are trying to effect the return of their old charter, and say that no other one will do. Through the efforts of Otis Patterson, the delegate elected to the grand lodge, from The Dalles, the Eagles hope to have their charter returned. Money is being subscribed freely, and when The Dalles delegate journeys to the grand meeting of the noble birds he will carry with him a supply of Portland coin to assist him in his purpose.

"Grand Worthy President Del Cary Smith is expected to be present at tonight's meeting," said one of the expelled eagles last night, "but we don't expect anything from him. He would be more than likely to throw us down."

If reports are true, John Watson, Edward Holman, R. C. Wright and Harry Kreitzer may expect a roasting at the meeting this evening. Rumor has it that these gentlemen, while sitting in the rear of a saloon one day not long since, planned the expulsion of two-score of Eagles who were recently unceremoniously kicked out of the nest. Watson, it seems, wanted to go to the grand lodge this year, but was jobbed by his friends and in the heat of passion allowed the story to escape. Should this matter come up, and there is every reason to believe that it will, there will be something doing with the talons tonight.

SLASHES HIS THROAT.

Solomon Baker, Middle-Aged Man, Attempts Suicide.

Solomon Baker, a middle-aged man, supposed to be a stranger in the city, attempted to kill himself on the street yesterday afternoon. With a sharp knife he slashed his throat and his bleeding near the corner of Front and Flanders streets. Patrolmen Roberts, Price and Vaughn were summoned, and they picked the wounded man from the street and placed him in the patrol wagon, in which he was taken to the St. Vincent's Hospital. The wound extended from ear to ear, but was not of sufficient depth to injure the windpipe, and it is thought the man will recover. Drs. Siocum, Sheldon and Storey stitched up the gash.

What prompted the rash act is as yet unknown. Baker refused to talk, other than to say he wanted the matter hushed up as he did not want his relatives to be told of his misadventure. A check for $100 and some money were found in his pockets.

SAYS HE THREATENED TO KILL.

James Jacketta, an Italian who can speak English, little English, was arrested last night by Policeman West on Front street, near Sherman, charged with threatening to kill on the complaint of Frank Guglielmo, whose father was recently killed in a knife affray outside his school. Jacketta insisted that he was innocent of the charge, and did not know why he had been arrested.
