The picture shows what the relative positions on the homestretch would be were all the record-makers in a race, with Lou Dillon going under the wire. As is shown a wide gap was made in records at the time when the bloycle sulky came into use. As is shown, on Lou Dillon's time, all but four of the record-makers would be badly distanced in a mile trot with a two-minute mark. Flora Temple would be away down the stretch, nearly 800 feet from the wire, Dexter about 700 feet, Goldsmith Maid about 600 feet and so on through the list. In connection with the picture illustrating relative distance, it is pertinent to take account of the number of years that have passed in bringing the record from old-time figures down to the present mark. Before the days of Flora Temple, Lady Suffolk was the queen of the American turf. Her record, made at Hoboken, N. J., in October, 1849, was 2.23%. That record was reduced by a second or two in following years by two "converted" pacers, and by Talony, who went a mile in 2:27, in July, 1853. But the modern-day figures date from Flora Temple's performance. Here is the tabulated summa Flora Temple, October 15, 1850, 2:19%; Dexter, August 14, 1867, 2:17%; Goldsmith Maid, September 2, 1874, 2:14; Rarus, August 3, 1879, 2:13%; St. Jullen, August, 1880, 2:11%; Jay-Eye-See, August 1, 1884, 2:10; Maud S., July, 1885, 2:08%; Sunol, October 20, 1891, 2:08%; Nancy Hanks, September 28, 1892, 2:04; Allx, September 19, 1894, 2:03%; The Abbot, September 25, 1900, 2:03%; Cresceus, July 26, 1901, 2:02%; Lou Dillon, August 24, 1903, 2:00.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6.—(Special.)— It was a large-sized tank of whitewash in which Oscar Graham soused the Portland baseball outfit at Recreation Park this afternoon, and more than 8000 spectators looked on. Superior and heavy stick work is what brought in nine runs for Oakland and netted a total of 12 base hits, five of them doubles, for the cripples, but it was Oscar Graham's mighty south paw that allowed but two safeties and prevented fallies being scored on the Portland sheet. Lohman's boys started things in the third inning, when they beat in three runs and touched up McFarlan for four safeties. Graham beat out the ball he dropped a message last night. It read: "Will in front of the plate, O'Hara hit one through McFarian, advancing Graham and for you." The terse telegram was signed and putting himself safely at first corner. Buck Francks cracked out a hit to right, driving home Graham and putting O'Hara | the two gomes he pitched safely on third. Francks pilfered the sec-ond sack, but Moskiman went out on an Infield fly. Charlie Schwartz swatted the hunting grounds. Reports from Salem, leather for two bases, which was responsible for the home-coming of O'Hara and Francks. Murdock fouled out, Messeriy these who know a twirler when they see one will recognize the goods in this ment later on Gorton's infield hit. But the ninth and last time the cripples were permitted to slug the luckless McFarian was the spectacular part of the show. The least said about the morning game at Oakland the better it will appear for the Portland crowd. Cooper pitched for the cripples and Shields performed a like service for Portland: Each twirler was hit for five safeties, but Pete's pets brought home a total of three runs, while not one Webfoot made the round-trip journey Portland played the game in ragtime, and a total of eight errors is quite sufficient for any pitcher to lose his game. Raidy, ngsworth and Elsey were the chief offenders, and they each contributed two errors to the day's performance,

JERRY POWERS GOING EAST. Greatest Admirer of Browns Will

Withdraw Smiling Countenance. Jerry Powers, an ardent admirer of the frowns, general good fellow, and for the last couple of years employed at a local cigar store, left festerday morning for Indianola, Ia. Jerry's departure from Portland will be a great surprise to his many friends, who have looked upon him as a sort of fixture. He will also be greatly missed by the members of the baseball team, for it was Jerry who took a flying trip to Sacramento last Spring when the club was being tramped on by the Southern teams, and by his genial good humor and enthusiasm encouraged the Browns to keep plugging away. When the Browns won their first game from Mique Fisher's crew on Good Friday, Jerry was the hap-plest man in the country.

Powers goes to Indianola for the purpose of going into business with his brother, who visited Portland several weeks ago for the purpose of taking Jerry back with him. Jerry liked selling clears, but he was finally persuaded to join his brother in the clothing business. The good wishes of his Portland friends, and they are many, go with him, and while they predict that he will soon tire of Iowa and again return to Portland, they hope his usiness venture will be successful.

CONGRESS OF NATIONS.

Delegates From Fourteen Occupy Cells at Police Station. Fourteen nationalities were represente upon the police docket up to 1 o'clock this morning. Never before within the re-membrance of the oldest officer has such an assortment of men and women from many lands appeared before the bar. "Drunk" was the charge on which the majority went behind the bars. The day opened with William Hicks, an American. J. O'Bryan was naturally from Erin. Sweden did not suffer long for want of adequate representation, for soon John Nelson had a ride in the sober-up wagon. From the shores of Finland came John Leighty. A wee bit too much brought George McAndrews to the station. Yes, he was from Scotland. A little black-eyed girl from the North End, named Marie Buttes, was the delegate from France. Withelm Henckle, having imblbed more lager beer than he could carry, joined the congress of peoples in the big cell. J. Nelson was from Norway. Eure Karn gave Russia as his birthplace.

To cap the climax, C. Ching, a Chinese, and Belle Baker, a woman of color, were arrested at 874 Second street, the first for keeping an opium joint and the wom-an for induiging in the drug. And then, after such a mixture, James Smith, an Englishman, was given a ride and bed for the night.

WOULD REFORM CHINA. Leader of Revolutionists Will Arrive in Portland Today.

Leong Chai Chu, the president of the Chinese Empire Reform Association, will arrive in Portland today. He comes from the East, where he has been working for several months in the interests of reform. It is expected that he will remain in the city a week or ten days, and during that time will deliver a number of lectures and short addresses upon the reformation of the Chinese Empire. (
The reformer coming to Portland is one of the inciplent revolutionists whom the Chinese government has been trying to capture for several years. He was expected here several months ago, but went East from Victoria, B. C., instead.

With Leong Chai Chu is travelling a daughter of the great reformer, Yuan, who has a price set upon his head by his home government. The girl is about 18 years of age and has been studying in India for some time. She goes to an Eastern college for further study after making a tour of the Pacific Coast with Leong ons to their first two, a gift, a hit bats-an, a fumble and two singles adding Chai Chu.

MEN AND WOMEN OF TODAY TRAVEL THE PACE THAT KILLS.

House Preaches Vigorously Against the Vices of the Age and Decadence of Nation.

vices of the times came in for a scathing denunciation in terms which leave no room for mistake as to his meaning by the Rev Edwin L. House at the First Congregational Church yester-day morning. The sermon was entitled "The Pace That Kills," and was a general condemnation of the modern high ssure life and exhortation to a quieter, simpler life.

Dr. House, after alluding to the burn-ing of an automobile and the wrecking of a passenger train trying to make up lost time, in the way of an introduction came to the application of his subject in saying:

"Our age is one of frantic baste and rush. The old leisure is gone. We have no time for proper and adequate mental development; no time to see our children and families; no time to give to moral culture. Boys and girls are rushed for ward out of days that rightly belong to them, to take up duties that rightly be-long to men and women. Young men and women too often come forth from school and college with frail bodies and overstrung nerves.

"Then look at some of the business methods of our day. How men by a fast ace that kills, are trying to amass wealth. Short cuts are made, Get-rich-quick methods are adopted, and many nen go so far that they deliberately stea from their employers, or from a deluded

And then we have a social pace that kills. In order to get into society, to stand well, and attract attention, one must be a 'faultless dresser.' The pace among young men and women of today of moderate earning capacity is too fast. It either compels many to run into debt, or else drives them out on to the streets to act as highwaymen or, as often is the case, to defalcation.

one: 'We have fallen on easy times. Life is luxurious. Ours is an age of cushions and rosewater.' But there is arduous work to do. The city that has been given over to the control of gamblers and prostitutes, that has gone into partnership with the houses of evil, must 'reap the pace that kills.'

"There is a great city in En has a water supply with a deficiency of lime in it, and more warped and rickety limbs are to be seen in the children of that city than in any other city of Great Britain. And in our day religious living and thinking and voting, and social life is such, that the wonder grows, 'if there could be any manhood under such influence that would be robust and straightlimbed.' We may stand the strain for awhile, but in the long run we shall reap what we are sowing.

"Another pace that kills is riotous liv-ing. Lately our papers have given to us the career of two young men who have given themselves to women, wine and gambling, who took the downward grade, turned on steam and sent their palatial train to the bottom fast.
"And some of our young women have been going at a frightful pace. During the past week or two, the names of half a dozen women have been in the press in connection with the charge of murder, and back of the murder was the nameless sin, and others have been connected with various other offenses against society. until it would seem as if woman had come to the place where her life was making for destruction, rather than for reformation. "There is a picture in Paris called the Decadence of the Romans.' The brutalized faces have no trace of Roman dignity, as one can see in contrasting them with the noble features of the statues with the noble features of the statues which fringe the hall. It is a significant fact that the models for the faces were found by the painter in the streets of Paris. It might be worth some material gain for some great artist to give us a picture entitled; "The Decadence of the Americans' It might be true that degen-erate sons might sneer at the hardlhood of their fathers. But young men who have been introduced to dissipation, who get rotten before they get ripe, who spend all their time in the sublime contemplation of the height of their collar and the width of their shoe and the color of their necktie, are not the men who will compare very favorably with the strong robust manly men of other days, and are not the ones to transform our cities, our politics or our morals.

"It is time that the best element of the city put their hands on the throttle of city politics, and time that all who love virtue and home, and morality, live a quieter, plainer and simpler life, if they would save our young men and women from the pace that kills."

GAMBLERS ARE LOAFERS. Rev. W. B. Hollingshead Denounces

Them as Enemy of Honesty. Rev. W. B. Hollingshead, pastor of Cen-tenary Methodist Church, East Side, spoke last evening on "The Sin of Gambling." "Gambling bears direct relation to the commercial interests of the community.
