Today's Mentions From Olds, Wortman & King's

The "Different Store"

Avoid the Driftwod

One of the grandest sights to be witnessed along the rugged, rockbound coast of old New England is, just after a storm, to wander along the beach and watch the foam-crested waves lashed into fury by the force of the gale, come tumbling in, bearing upon their mighty bosoms tons of wreckage and driftwood, made such by force of the elements and the discords of man and nature. Industrially considered, "driftwood" means the rubbish that plays so large a part in the narrow, confined, restricted methods of individual stores that have no access to the avenues that formulate and build. How can you expect such stores to advance thus early styles to be shown and worn by fashionable people? Poor copyists at best, they have little to copy until OUR SHOWING is announced complete for formal opening. Our organization is far-reaching; it stands for early creating and quick selling results. It owns the past, commands the present and compasses the future. First, we have the services of a fashion authority who is a permanent resident of New York, in touch with every style leader of the Old and New Worlds; secondly, the services of ten as expert buyers and designers as are gathered at the command of any retail organization in America. These experts have undergone a system of training too severe and exacting for "fakers." The bungler is set aside by this house, and the successful contestant's survival makes his diploma a worthy tribute to excellence of taste and judgment of values. You'll find no "driftwood" in our selections of Fall merchandise, everything is worthy of this house, of our clientele -reliable, dependable, no "drift" or rubbish at any price. A bargain here will be a real bargain—an Olds, Wortman & King value. From the lessons of "Driftwood" something may be gathered to your advantage. The privilege to learn is yours—accept it.

This morning we print the conclusion of the Sunday and Monday serial of Store News for this week—three days even do not suffice to tell it all; these published mentions are merely little runners springing out from strong vines that run riot thro' all the store, bearing rich, ripe, fruitful values in worth and fashion.

GO AND LOOK

BUT AVOID THE "DRIFTWOOD"

Not an Eastern store of note has yet an-nounced its formal Fall opening. Reason why? Because intelligent merchants are aware that styles are not as yet complete and await the full ripening of the luscious fruits in fachion's gardens. Less conscientious houses-this side the "Rockies" - announce full showings - formal "openings" of such lines as women's wear and millinery. This store is ready with hundreds of advance styles - with a show grander and greater for this Reception Week than any advertised "opening"-but we will not betray the confidence of our customers by false statements. There are styles yet to come -no store in America has them yet-we await their arrival before announcing a completeness of stocks that would warrant THIS HOUSE, with its many exclusive lines, announcing a formal opening, and when you read flowery announcements of such "openings," bear this in mind-YOU WILL NOT, YOU CANNOT SEE THE AUTUMN FASHIONS as they are mirrored in the style salons of Paris and New York-the real right things in perfect completeness, until you see them at Olds, Wortman & King's. Go and see, we urge you, but AVOID THE DRIFT-WOOD. After you have been and seen, you will better appreciate our exposition that will open when fashion waves her wand and says-"complete."
