GAVE HIM DELERIUM TREMENS .- A man who had probably been drinking rather freely was startled and shocked yester-day by the sight of a strange appearing vehicle, resembling a glorified flat-car bearing down on him as he was crossing Third street. The monster was bedecked with banners in yellow and black, and a huge protuberance rose in the middle Rushing up to a friend on the sidewalk he wildly exclaimed: "What is it? What is it? Have I got them again?" The friends endeavored to soothe the frightened man, and finally calmed him down by assuring him that it was nothing but an advertising car, and finally succeeded in getting him to go home. Several who witnessed the affair agreed that such spectacular cars were a nuisance and should not be allowed on the streets, but it is scarcely probable that any method of getting rid of such nuisances will be found. It was ascertained that the man scared was slightly addicted to spells of delerium tremens, and that he had once been scared into a fit of them by meet-ing on his way home early in the morn-ing some camels and elephants, the advance guard of a circus entering the city. He just knew there could be no such animals there, and that he must be delirious, and he was. Ever since he has been nervous, and things like that awful-looking car drove him wild. PORTLAND WOMEN'S UNION MEETS.-The first regular meeting of the Portland Women's Union for the Fall term was held at 510 Flanders street yesterday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. H. L. Pittock, in the chair. Following the regular routine business, there was some ion as to future work and entertainment. Committees, were appointed by the president as follows: Pinance, Miss A. Cremen, Mrs. A. Meier, Miss Falling and Miss Hoyt; Household, Mrs. Ralph Prager, Mrs. S. A. Erown, Mrs. P. J. Prager, Mrs. S. A. Erown, Mrs. P. J.

The earnest workers among the members are beginning to devise ways and means whereby a much-needed adon may be made to the building.

TEXTILE EXHIBIT AT LIBRARY.-In the children's room at the Public Library a new set of bulletins in the textiles will be posted today (Tuesday). The library is indebted to the Linen Thread Com-pany, of New York and San Francisco, through the courtesy of Mr. Barbour, for a very attractive set of samples, Ilthe processes through which the rough flax passes before it becomes finished thread. The Cordage Company, of this city, kindly contributed some interesting specimens of the hemp used in making rope. Another section of especial local interest is the woolen exhibit the gift of the Portland Woolen Milis, of Sellwood, which is especially complete, from the pelt to the finished cloth. It is expected that the silk and the cotton fabrics will be similarly represented. Each group of specimens is supplemented by pictures and simply worded explanations of the processes. The first of a series of story hours on the subject will be held from three to four o'clock this (Tuesday) afternoon. The textile exhibit will be retained in the children's room for two

FUNERAL OF PATRICK J. CRONIN.-The funeral of Patrick J. Cronin, who died last Friday at his home, 260 Nartilla street, was held yesterday at the Cathe-dral of the Immaculate Conception. Rev. Father McDevitt was celebrant, Rev. Father Kennedy deacon, Rev. Father Gregory sub-deacon, and Rev. Father Thompson the master of ceremonies. Rev. Father Dominic, of Mount Angel College, was organist, and music was also rendered by the cathedral choir. J. Adrain Epping sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee," which was Mr. Cronin's favorite hymn, and the sermon was preached by Rev. Father McDevitt, who was with Mr. Cronin when he died. The text was: "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord." In-terment was at Riverview cemetery, the pallbearers being John P. Sharkey, William Savage, J. E. Werlein, W. Crosby, J. F. Huffman, and Ed Wertheimer.

NEWS GOT HERE FIRST.-A young cou-ple, who reside in a country town, are in the city on a visit to friends. They arrived here Monday morning, and on the way purchased a Portland Sunday paper on the train, in which they were astonished to see it stated that they were visiting friends in Portland. This was 11 hours before they arrived here, and of course the paper was printed a whole day before they arrived. They have been lost is wonder and amazement ever since they saw the announcement in the paper, and cannot imagine how it came there. Probably the paper has a correspondent in their town who happened to know that they were coming to Portland and sent the news ahead of them. Such a triffing matter should not attract attention in these days of strenuous jour-

BOARD OF TRADE MEETS TONIGHT .-Considerable business of importance will be transacted at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trade, which will be held tonight—the naming of delegates to the National Irrigation Congress, which meets at Ogden, Utah, and the ap-pointment of a committee to co-operate with the Oregon Livestock Association to arrange for the entertainment of mem-bers of the National Livestock Associa-tion, which meets in this city next Janu-It was largely through the efforts of the Board of Trade that the meeting of the National Livestock Association was secured for this city. MOVE MONARCHS' REMAINS Old-Time Hawaiian Ceremony Is Revived for the Occasion.

HONOLULU, Sept. 1, via San Francisco Sept. 7.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—All the remains of Hawaiian monarchs in the royal mausoleum in Nuuanu cemetery have been removed from the mausoleum to a temporary structure near by, to allow repairs and improve-ments of the mausoleum, for which the last Legislature appropriated $17,500. The bodies were removed in their costly cas-kets by night, and with something of the old-time Hawsiian ceremony for such occasions, and the scene at the cemetery was an impressive one, Ex-Queen Liluokalani was present to witness the removal of the bodies of her ancestors and other relatives, also the Prince and Princess Kalanianaole and others of royal lineage.

Twenty-three caskets were removed with much solemnity from the mausoleum and placed in order in the temporary shelter prepared for them, while the royal retainers chanted oliolis, or funeral songs The mausoleum will be repayed and the walls and roof will be plastered. Insects were beginning to eat their way into the chamber and threatened to attack the caskets.

The board of agriculture and forestry has decided to take severe measures to keep out plant disease from Australia Samon, the Bahamas and other countries from which pineapples, coffee plants and other plants come here. The board will maintain a plant quarantine as long as there are reports of dangerous plant dis-cases in the country which send seeds and plants here.

A cablegram has been received from the Department of Justice at Washington declining to express any opinion as to the right of members of the Legislature of Hawali to run for county offices. As a result, under an opinion of the Hawalian Attorney-General, several Legislators will be candidates for county offices.

All the $327,000 worth of bonds issued under the authorization of an act of Contress to pay off the Chipstown fire claim.

gress to pay off the Chinatown fire claims growing out of the plague fire, have been taken up with the exception of $57,000, which is tied up by litigation.

The question of whether Hawall should erect a building at the St. Louis Exposition or not is being much discussed in Honolulu. There is talk of adding to the lægislative appropriation of $30,000 enough o provide for a separate building in which to house the exhibit to be made. E. R. Stackable, collector of customs for the district of Hawaii, arrived here today on the steamer Sonoma to meet Assistant Secretary A. B. Armstrong, of the Treasury Department, and discuss with him matters concerning the Customs Bureau in Honolule. It is understood that the visit has something to do with the or-der made some time ago, and recently rescinded, whereby the baggage of passen-gers on through steamers was examined at Honolulu.

George R. Carter Secretary of Territory, arrived today en route to New York, where he will endeavor to negotiate the sale of bonds under the loan of $2,225,000 authorized by the last Legis-lature. The loan is now awaiting the approval of President Roosevelt.

"Where Is Cobb?" at the

Louis Eagan's farce, "Where Is Cobb?" written to create laughter, at popular prices, was played at the Marquam last pinces, was played at the Marquam last night to a large audience, and particu-larly pleased the gallery. Mr. Eagan was one of the playwrights on the late Charles H. Hoyt's staff, and has had the benefit of considerable experience in the art of creating farces. "Where Is Cobb?" was first produced three years ago in the East, but it has not been played along the Pacific Coast until this present season. One week ago the present company began its tour with the farce in California.

There are three acts, enlivened with several specialties, and the cleverest and several specialties, and the cleverest and most enjoyable of these is the excellent violin playing of Marion George. She is a pretty girl and acts creditably in the farce as Dolly Dexter. But she is in her element as a violinist, and displayed a pleasing, luscious tone in Musin's "Mazurka Concert." Her bowing was particularly graceful, and in reply to an encore she played Pierre's "Serenade," and then with a muted string she gave the loved, familiar "My Old Kentucky Home." The singer of the company is Agnes The singer of the company is Agnes George, who is about 14 years old, and she displayed a pleasing, natural soprano voice. She captured the gallery with a pretty bailad, "There's Nobody Just Like You," and for an encore she sang the popular "Apona." By this time she had popular "Anona." By this time she had made herself solid with the gallery, and as soon as she started "Anona" the boys as soon as she started "Anona" the h They knew paniment for her. paniment for her. They knew it by heart, evidently. They gave the little singer four encores and howled for more. Katherine George, the contortionist, is a pretty, dark-haired girl, and she is more skillful than most contortionists usually are. She twisted herself into various knots, until one began to fear she would have difficulty in untying herself, but with a bound she was on her feet, bowing her thanks in reply to the applause.

"Where Is Cobb?" deals with the tribulations of Phillip Cobb (Harry Pollard), a son of Leander Cobb, a millionaire.

Phillip has married an actions Thelis a son of Leanuer Coop, a Philip has married an actress, Dolly Dexter (Marlon George), but she insists on the fact of her marriage being kept secret because she fears that she will lose professional engagements if it should be known that she is a married woman. She and her young husband live in a New Mork flat, where the janitor is Bill Cobb (Godfrey Matthews). Bill's wife is Maria Cobb (Emma George), and com-plications ensue when Leander Cobb arrives on the scene and meets Maria, thinking that she is his son's wife, whom he has never seen before. Emma George had a needlessly grotesque make-up. She wore a red wig and had all her teeth blackened save one solitary ivory. Phil-lip Cobb is hounded by his creditors, among whom are a German grocer and an Irish butcher, and considerable fun ensues. The Irishman (Bert R. Var Cleve) defines an incubator as "a hospital for sick eggs." Phillip Cobb hangs around the flat disguised from his father and creditors as Jim, a waiter, and there are merry adventures and strange experiences until the mystery of the Cobb family is solved. Cobb, Jr., suddenly throws off his disguise, introduces his real wife to his father, and the letter gladly pays his son's debts. Then everything is lovely. Robert Lawrence and Harry Pollard worked hard to create fun, and they succeeded. "Where is Cobb" concludes with the performance toolship.
