

THIRD MAN IS GONE

Another Mystery at the Head of Grave Creek.

MINER DISAPPEARS FROM SIGHT

J. L. Dickenson Has Vanished as Completely as Harmon Snyder and Old Man Kirk Did Before Him.

ROSEBURG, Or., Sept. 10.—(Special.)—J. D. Wilson, a reliable citizen of Yoncalla, Or., tells of the mysterious disappearance of his uncle, James L. Dickenson, near the head of Grave Creek, Jackson County.

Dickenson was last seen alive by his mining partner, Henry Zimmerman, on April 2. Together the men had gone from their mine to Placer a few days previous, Dickenson remaining there temporarily and Zimmerman returning to the mine.

Three days later Dickenson returned to the mine and spoke to Zimmerman, who was busy in his cabin. A few minutes later the latter came outside, but Dickenson had disappeared and has not been seen since. The missing man had many relatives in this county.

It is a strange coincidence that the place where Dickenson disappeared is just over the ridge from where Harmon Snyder mysteriously disappeared three months ago and only a few miles from Coffee Creek, where an old man named Kirk disappeared about two years ago.

Mr. Dickenson was about 55 years of age, of medium height and weighed about 165 pounds.

RIGHT TO CONDEMN PROPERTY.

Supreme Court Ruling in Case Brought Up by Boom Companies.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Sept. 10.—(Special.)—The Supreme Court, in an important decision filed today, ruled that the corporation may have the right to condemn the property of another corporation of like character to be used for like purposes.

The right to condemn in any particular case depending upon the facts and circumstances appearing therein.

In the case before the Court the Samish Boom Company had been doing business under the laws of the state for years when the Union Boom Company organized and purchased the land booming grounds from the state that had been in use by the Samish Boom Company. The latter then sought to condemn the land, but the lower court denied its petition.

The Supreme Court holds that Samish Boom Company, though having rendered itself liable to action for ejectment as trespasser by the owner, had not forfeited its right to render its possession lawful by the exercise of its power of eminent domain. The lower court is ordered to amend its decree so that the amount of damages under the condemnation proceedings.

CHILD MURDERER TO HANG

Mob Was Ready to Lynch Jackson if the Verdict Was Otherwise.

MISSOULA, Mont., Sept. 10.—A special to the Missoulian from Hamilton says that the jury in the murder case brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree being out one hour and 15 minutes.

The case is that in which Walter Jackson was charged with the murder of a four-year-old Fannie Buck, of Stevensville, August 13, the child dying from knife wounds inflicted.

The defense was weak today and took up but little over an hour. Jackson, sat unmoved during the entire trial and showed no comprehension of the verdict. He ignored his father and mother, who both wept.

Judge Webster will pass sentence next Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The penalty for the crime is hanging.

A mob had been organized quietly during the trial with the intention of taking Jackson from the jail in case the verdict did not meet with their expectations and lynching him. When it became known that hanging would result from the verdict the armed men withdrew to let the law take its course.

MISS CLARK INHALED GAS.

Handsome Daughter of the Late San Jose Millionaire Found Dead.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—Miss Isabella Duncan Clark, daughter of the late William Squire Clark, the San Jose millionaire, committed suicide in her apartment at the McNeill hospital early today.

On a chair by her side she placed a small gas stove, from which the gas had escaped, the fumes of which caused death.

There was no doubt the deed had been planned deliberately, for the dead woman was patently disturbed and clad in a dressing-sack and on a stand nearby was an envelope addressed to Dr. McNutt and containing a holographic will.

The dead woman was one of the four handsome Clark sisters, well known in this city and San Jose, and was 23 years old. Miss Clark suffered frequent spells of melancholia and had twice before attempted suicide.

OLYMPIA COUNCILMAN ARRESTED.

Charged With Obstructing a Government Waterway.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Sept. 10.—(Special.)—Because the city is endeavoring to build a floating dock for public uses in the Fourth-street end of the Government wharfway forming part of Olympia's harbor, Mrs. E. Horst today caused the arrest of two of the members of the City Council and a number of workmen employed on the boat on the charge of obstructing a Government waterway.

The boat is being built for the accommodation of the people who come to Olympia in boats to do their trading. The float was moored alongside of the upper end of Horst's dock, which was the moving cause of the difference.

Councilmen Richardson and Weston were directing the work which was being hastened in order to have the work completed before an injunction could be served.

INDIANS OWN THE TIDELANDS.

Washington Supreme Court Sustains Land Commissioner's Ruling.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Sept. 10.—(Special.)—The state has no title to tidelands that lie within the limits of an Indian reservation, where the boundaries of the reservation were fixed by treaty with the Indians, executive order of the President, or patent by the Government issued prior to the admission of the state to the Union, according to a decision handed down by the Supreme Court today.

The decision settles a much mooted question and vests title in the Indians to a very large area of tide lands within the borders of the state, as the boundaries of nearly all the reservations that abut on Puget Sound extend to the low tide line. The decision sustains a ruling of the present board of State Land Commissioners.

SEATTLE CARS RUNNING

Company Hires 30 New Men and Turns Away 60.

SEATTLE, Sept. 10.—There was no change in the street-car strike situation today. The company operated all but four cars on all the lines during the afternoon. Eighty men all told failed to show up for work. The company hired 30 new men today and turned away 60 other applicants because the officials did not have time to examine them.

The strikers abandoned picket work today, and made no attempt to get men to leave their cars. The leaders frankly admit that they are studying out a plan of campaign, but they say they will yet win out.

The strikers are waiting for Richard Cornelius, president of the San Francisco Union, to come. He is due here on Saturday.

They are also in communication with the international headquarters in Detroit, and they do not know just what to do until Mr. Cornelius gets here. He will be given charge of the street-car men's aid of the strike if he cares to take hold of such a slim following, and will work in harmony with the advisory board, composed of delegates from the other unions of the city.

TRIBUTE BY A FRIEND.

SALEM, Or., Sept. 10.—Martin L. Chamberlain was born in Dryden, Mich., May 17, 1848. His parents with a large family came to Oregon in 1857, by way of the isthmus, leaving Detroit, February 1 of that year. They were two months making the journey, coming from San Francisco to Portland on the steamer Columbia, W. H. Dall, Captain.

"Dall," as all his friends called him, was fond of telling how, upon their arrival at Portland, their household goods were landed on a bank among the stumps and logs, and the father took the entire family to a restaurant some distance away for a decent meal again. After that matter was attended to he decided to explore the surrounding country on his own account, but losing his directions, he became lost and finding the river again, followed it until he came to a pile of mixed freight, among which he recognized two small rocking chairs belonging to his younger twin sisters, which had been brought from Michigan, and with them he remained until his parents appeared, finding him in the wilderness.

The principal object his father, Joseph Chamberlain, had in coming to Oregon was to do missionary work among the Indians. After a few years he returned to the home of General Joel Palmer, at Dayton, he located at Grand Ronde and taught school at the agency for four years. In 1852 the entire family moved to Marion County and settled in the hills some 20 miles south of Salem. At this time the family consisted of one son and seven daughters. Twelve years later the mother died, and having previously lost the father, the large family was left without its natural protectors, but with that noble character which was his uncle's death, Martin proposed that the household should be kept intact, and he remained at the head of the family, until he was elected a member of the legislature, and he was elected in 1858. At this time the family were of age and earning their own living. The sisters are all living, are all married but one, and each of whom is an honor to the name and to the community where she resides.

As a young man Mr. Chamberlain was a clerk for several years in the book store of H. D. Bous, and was elected County Clerk in 1859, and re-elected in 1860. In 1858 he was elected a member of the State Senate for Marion County, and served through two sessions of the legislature, during the last of which he secured the passage of the measure which provided the State Reform School.

During the succeeding years he was engaged in various business enterprises in Salem, and in 1865 he was appointed to the responsible position of clerk of the State Land Board, beginning the work on January 1, 1865. With never varying fidelity he discharged this trust, always to the satisfaction of the Board and to the interest of the people at large. His close application to the increasing business of this important branch of the State Government was the indirect cause of his breaking down and his final resignation.

Martin L. Chamberlain was for years a prominent and active Oddfellow, and at the time of his death was a leading member of pioneer Chemeketa Lodge, No. 1. In 1855 he was married to Miss Rose Wel-
