STATE FAIR HAS A BALANCE

How Much Is Not Definitely Known, but Will Be Determined in a Few Days-Officials' Efforts Worthy of Commendation.

BALEM, Or., Sept. 20.-(Special.)-The State Board of Agriculture nearly com-pleted its work of paying premiums today and nearly all the exhibitors have removed their property from the grounds, leaving the State Fair grounds in the quiet and almost deserted condition which prevailed two weeks ago. The financial affairs of the board have not yet been straightened up so that the exact results of the fair from a monetary standpoint can be determined, but it is quite certain that the board has a respectable sum to its credit. The attend-ance was much larger than last year, the number of side attractions and business enterprises that rented space were great-er than last year, and the patronage in every respect was increased. The expense ning the fair has been somewhat heavier than last year, but it is safe to may that the board will find itself with a balance with which to make improvements or prepare for next year's exposition. The last ten days have been strenut times for the State Board of Agriculture, composed of W. H. Webrung, president; J. H. Settlemeler, vice-president; Jasper Wilking, George Chandler and G. A. Westgate. The greater part of the work of preparing for and conducting the fair was left to President Webrung and State left to President Wehrung and Secre-tary M. D. Wisdom, and all who have attended the fair have joined in the general commendation of the manner in which these officials have performed their work. They have worked early and late, attending the varied wants of scores of people who needed information or had troubles to tell.

In their work the board had the able support of their chief assistants, Wylie A. Moores, assistant secretary; C. A. Murphy, superintendent of the pavillon; F. L. Kent, superintendent of the dairy department, and George Gammie, superintendent of the livestock department. The people who come and go at the State Fair admire the displays but do not think of the work it has taken to plan and su-perintend the arrangement of the exhibits The work requires cool heads and willing hands, and these have been found to be possessed by the officers of the State Fair this year

Today the last of the awards of pre-miums in the livestock department were made public. This is the greatest depart-ment of the State Fair and the keeping of the records is a task that requires unusual skill and close application. The rec-ords have been so accurately kept by the clerks, Frank Welch and Edward Thielon, that no questions or disputes have arisen. The awards made public today were those in the sheep, goats and swine

The only extensive competition in the Contests for sheep premiume was in the Cotswoids and Shropshire breeds. The Baldwin sheep & Land Company, of Hay Creek, had the only entries in Spanish Merinos, American Defaines and Ram-bouillets, Mayor McKinney, of Turner, had the exhibits of Leicestors; Charles F. Ladd had the only Southdowns and E. Ladd had the only Southdowns, and Richard Scott the only Dorset Horns. In all these classes the animals entered were found to be worthy of premiums, even without competition, and the awards were made accordingly.

In Oxford Downs there were but few en-tries, Peter Whiteaker, of Corvallis, taking first on ram, 2 years or over, yearling ram, ewe lamb and pen of four lambs, all without competition. In this class C. P.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene Sept. 20.-(Special.)-The football season has opened at the university, and pigskin gossip is the topic of conversion. Several members of last season's team will report for practice again this Fall, and the freshman class will contribute some excellent material.

It is the early in the sea-son to get a line on the 'varsity eleven, but, with the material now reporting for practice, coupled with the fact that Ore-gon may boast of having one of the best coaches in the West, it seems tenable that the university will put a strong eleven in the field this senson. Coach Smith is ac-quainted with the old collegians as football players, and the style of play is the same in the two institutions, so no time
