THE FAIR ERIN'S EXILES

IRISH GIRLS IN LARGE NUMBERS EMIGRATING TO AMERICA.

They Find Positions Easily Although They Arrive at the Rate of 2000 Per Week.

When the newspapers announced last Wednesday morning that the White Star liner Cymric had reached port with 780 Irish girls aboard many a housewife headed for the battery in the hope of getting a good cook, maid or nurse. But while Irish lassies are coming to New York now at the rate of 2000 a week they are a vanishing import and not 2 per cent of them are in the market for employment. In the first place, says the New York Sun, one must subtract the number that arrive here with railroad tickets or passage money to take them to other parts of the United States. As soon as they have passed the immigration officials they start on their inland journey. Then there are those who are booked for New York and have relatives and friends to receive them. They are held at Ellis Island until 5 o'clock. When their relatives or friends call and satisfy the officials that all is right the immigrants are turned over to them. There remain then the girls whose relatives have failed to call for them and such as have no relatives and friends here. All of these are turned over to the representatives of the Roman Catholic charity called the Mission of Our Lady of the Rosary for the Protection of Irish Immigrant Girls. The girls are brought to New York and housed in the mission building at 7 State street. Here friends can call for them up to 10 o'clock at night. The house can accommodate about 50 girls. That is more than the number uncalled for as a rule. When the Cymric got in last Tuesday with her big cargo of girls all were taken away by relatives except 25. These the Rev. Anthony J. Grogan escorted to the mission house, where they were lodged and fed without cost. By noon on Wednesday all had departed, in charge of friends, but one. In the meantime the doorbell was kept ringing all day by women who came from all parts of New York seeking servants. On the door of the mission house was this sign:

WE HAVE NO SERVANTS.

It did not appear to act as a deterrent, for women who came by street car, in carriages and in automobiles read it and calmly rang the bell just the same, arguing, woman-like, that it wasn't meant for them. On the priest's desk in the office inside were many letters saying, "Send me a good girl at once," or "I would like a first-class nurse girl right away." "We can't fill one in twenty of the applications that come to us in this way," said Father Grogan. "The girls who are booked for New York are, of course, the only ones available, and they prefer to go with their friends and let their friends find places for them. In the first place, I have no doubt that many of them would be much better located if they would take the offers of employment that are open to them here, but they all seem to prefer to let the relatives or friends they know here locate them. If you go, we don't argue it with them; yet often, when I see a clean, bright girl going away with friends who have not these qualities, I wonder if her future life would not be brighter if she came to America without a single friend to greet her. "There is plenty of employment always for Irish girls in domestic service, because they make the best servants. Of course, a large percentage of the girls who come here have got to earn their own living, and it is rather surprising that so few of them will accept the offers of good wages as domestics open to them here. "From the last of April until the end of June is the big season for Irish immigration. The ocean liners bring about 2000 Irish girls a week during that period. Then the number falls off for the rest of the year. "We make no charge for the care of the girls, whether they are with us a few hours or for three days. We take them away from the mixture of nationalities and classes on the island, and they appreciate it, and often, long afterward, they get donations from girls who remember the kindness shown them here. "The last girl to be provided for of the 35 taken by the mission house from the Cymric's load reached New York with the idea of going to Akron, Ohio. It seems that two years ago an Akron woman traveling in Ireland met her and said she would employ her if she would come over. Still her faith in the promise the girl came to America. When she told Father Grogan about it he suggested that she stay over until he made inquiries about the woman and also learned if she still wanted a servant. A telegram of inquiry was sent to Akron and brought a reply that the woman kept a hotel there and that its reputation was none too good. On the priest's advice the girl abandoned the idea of going to Akron and was engaged at once as a cook in a fashionable household at 25 a month. The number of Irish girls coming to America exceeds the number of boys, thus differing from the immigration figures of all other races. Analysis of the Irish immigration now shows that the girls constitute almost 50 per cent to 40 per cent of men. On the other hand, the immigration as a whole shows 65 per cent of men to 35 per cent of women. In the matter of education, the Irish immigrants far surpass most of their fellows from other lands. Last year the percentage of illiterates from Ireland was only 27, while among Italians it was 52.6 and among Poles 25.8. "I can understand why the girls outnumber the boys," said Father Grogan. "There is very little industry in Ireland now to offer employment to girls. "There is a little in Cork, Belfast and Dublin, but most of the immigrant girls come from the country districts. They have been brought up on little farms, but there is nothing at home, nor in the neighborhood, for girls, so naturally they come to America. "Three steamers a week with the Irish colonies aboard is the average now, and many people bound for South Ferry or uptown stop to watch the little flock that comes across to the mission house about 5 o'clock in the afternoon of arrival days. Many of these are comely, some are very pretty and the great majority have the grace of neatness.

Jewish Charity Gifts Reach Millions. New York American.

Donations and bequests aggregating $2,500,000 for charitable and educational purposes, were made by Jews in the United States during the 12 months ending August 25.

Elias Jacob, of Tulare County, Colorado, gave the largest sum—$915,000, a trust fund for the benefit of university graduates who shall select 20 acres of Mr. Jacob's Tulare County property and there form a settlement. Congressman S. R. Guggenheim gave $50,000 to the Montefiore home for chronic invalids. Children of Leonard Lewisohn gave $50,000 to the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society, with a promise of $75,000 conditionally. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Loewer of Brooklyn, gave $10,000 to the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Mortimer L. Schiff $25,000 to the Education Alliance. Henry Siegel gave $20,000 to the Stony Wood sanatorium.

Stack for Lack of Material. La Grande Chronicle. "La Grande is the poorest town we have struck," said the manager of a mind-reading-clearvoyant-seance outfit recently. This is a beautiful comment on the intelligence of La Grande. In the cities only those who are feeble or have fallen, and have nothing else to do or are groping about in the darkness patronize these fakir-fantasies, in whom they have no confidence and who have no confidence in themselves.
