

The Oregonian.

Entered at the Postoffice at Portland, Oregon, as second-class matter. REVISED SUBSCRIPTION RATES. Daily, with Sunday, per month, $4.00; per quarter, $12.00; per year, $42.00.

UNITED STATES, CANADA AND MEXICO. 10 to 15-page paper, $2.00; 16 to 20-page paper, $3.00; 21 to 24-page paper, $4.00.

NEWS FOR DISCUSSION. Intended for publication in The Oregonian should be addressed invariably to "Editor The Oregonian," not to the name of any individual.

FOR SALE IN KANAS CITY, MO., BY RICKS & CO. Clear Co., Ninth and Walnut streets. For sale in Colorado Springs, by C. A. Bremer.

YESTERDAY'S WEATHER.—Maximum temperature, 63; minimum temperature, 45; precipitation, .04 of an inch.

TAMMANY'S NEW TRUMPH. It was a silly argument, made in support of the administration of New York that it had given better government, cleaned up the streets, stopped political grafting, drained marshes and purified noisome places, forced dealers in merchandise to keep their goods boxes and garbage off the sidewalk, improved the sanitation of the schools, increased and improved the water supply, pushed street-cleaning to a high point of efficiency and reduced the death rate in all the crowded districts of the city.

A government that forces people to "clean up" and is popular in any large city. This is what the Tammany politician magniloquently calls "invasion of the sanctity of our homes."

These are the reasons why Tammany gets so huge a majority against the Low administration. Yet in its work and results that administration was admirable. But a clean city and reduced death rate are no arguments for the mass of the voters. They want and will have "an open town."

THE PIRATES "NEED THE MONEY." It may be hoped that the rebellion announced in the State of Panama will prove to have force behind it, and that it may take such course as would make it possible for the United States to encourage and even to aid it.

Our Government should have no more dealings with the robbers who are making extortionate demands upon it, for the privilege of constructing the canal. We still have the alternative of Nicaragua; and if revolution in Panama, which has hopeful features, should be successful for the Colonians, the government is bankrupt and could make no force to resist them.

troubles in Colombia, that their treasury is bankrupt, and propose that they are loaded with heavy debts. This is given out plainly as the reason why they did not ratify the treaty.

There is a stronger and more pressing reason why we ask $25,000,000 as payment by the United States for the certain advantage which it will get from this commercial enterprise.

A DRAWN BATTLE. The result of yesterday's election in fifteen states and three important cities seems absolutely destitute of bearing upon next year's National struggle.

THE TAMMANY IDEA that the election of McClellan affords encouragement to the National Democracy is the merest buncombe. The issues in New York, as we have elsewhere shown, were not at all National. The complete refutation of this Democratic claim is found in the fact that last year the Democrats carried Greater New York by some 122,000, yet this majority was overcome in the state so that Odell defeated Cole for Governor by 10,000.

AMERICAN TRADE UNIFORMED. A few custodians of the foreign trade, voicing their sentiments from the nail keg and cracker box of the country store, as well as through the columns of the newspapers, view with much anxiety the aggressive attitude of Russia in Manchuria.

Personal differences in the Booth family seem to have been increased rather than diminished by the death of Consul Emma Booth-Tucker.

Improvements in the postal service, including rural delivery, extension of the star route service, increase in the number of clerks and carriers, etc., have largely increased the annual deficit of the Postal Department.

The stories of Chief Officer Bruce and Chief Engineer Ward, of the wrecked steamer South Portland, make the tale of Captain McIntyre, of the same vessel, dark by contrast.

fight has already been made in the far East, and the Manchurians, as well as the Japanese fully understand that it is to their interest to trade with the United States.

INCREASE IN FLOUR TRADE. For the first time in the history of the port the exports of flour from Portland for the first four months of the season are in excess of wheat exports.

As a method for determining results, practice will always be preferable to theory. Here are some of the results of the ship-subsidy system.

Limitations of Livestock Department. The Oregonian ought to print some of its issues on blue paper. In a late issue it discussed gravely the advisability of exterminating Idaho and Oregon muskies.

Big Money in Hops. A recent visitor to Oregon, writing to an Eastern paper, said among other things aimed to be complimentary, that hops in the Willamette Valley sometimes yield $100 an acre, at 25 cents a pound.

Silver Lining to the Cloud. Aberdeen, while it lost much by the fire, gained a great deal by the advent of a heavy rain.

Too Silly to Believe. Notwithstanding the fact that he has been indicted by the Federal grand jury for opening a letter other than his own with an intent to defraud, the people of Oregon believe ex-Congressman Malcolm A. Moody when he says that he is guilty of no wrong-doing.

Highly Original Theory. Westfall Western Ways. Will the Lewis and Clark Exposition be a benefit or a detriment to this locality is a question that has two sides.

SPRIT OF THE NORTHWEST PRESS. His Chance to Make Good. Springfield News. The Stuslaw and Yaquina Bay Appropriations were not included in the Chief Engineer's report on appropriation for water-way improvements.

Miracles of Charity Already. Albany Democrat. The Portland newspaper men have shown what they can do along the line of minstrelsy, and hereafter it is to be hoped they are more charitable in their criticism of visiting professional minstrels.

What, Only Once? Astoria Astorian. For once Hitchcock has found persons in Oregon not connected with land frauds.

Asleep but Will Waken. More Observer. Portland will very soon awaken to a sense of duty more important than hounding its Mayor and Chief of Police, when it realizes what it means to permit so many fire traps to go up in the heart of the city.

If the Shoe Fits, etc. Des Chutes Echo. The Oregonian's forest reserve articles are apparently nothing more than a covert attack on Congressman Williamson.

Wisdom Through Experience. Pilot Rock Record. Gambling, as well as the saloon, we regard as an important branch of the studies he mastered in acquiring a thorough education in the school of experience.

How She Captured Him. Washington Times. A lady from Alexandria, Va., visiting in Philadelphia quite recently, told an anecdote of her retiring cook, which is good enough to be told again.

The Woman's Club, at Grant's Pass, is about to go into politics, and the members are probably practicing the most graceful way of holding their skirts when on the stump.

CAN ROOSEVELT BE BEATEN? The Washington correspondent of the New York Post, after going over the Presidential situation thoroughly from a disinterested but well-advised standpoint, reaches these conclusions:

It is asserted that six men could get through tomorrow and decide that Roosevelt was not to be beaten and that he would be. This is, perhaps, true. The Republican party, as a National organization, is peculiarly in the hands of a few bosses.

Some of the Eastern critics are pointing out the great advance that has been made in musical comedy by the omission of the singing. At first sight, this seems almost equivalent to saying that Macbeth would be improved by the omission of Macbeth.

Some of the Eastern critics are pointing out the great advance that has been made in musical comedy by the omission of the singing. At first sight, this seems almost equivalent to saying that Macbeth would be improved by the omission of Macbeth.

Some of the Eastern critics are pointing out the great advance that has been made in musical comedy by the omission of the singing. At first sight, this seems almost equivalent to saying that Macbeth would be improved by the omission of Macbeth.

Some of the Eastern critics are pointing out the great advance that has been made in musical comedy by the omission of the singing. At first sight, this seems almost equivalent to saying that Macbeth would be improved by the omission of Macbeth.

Some of the Eastern critics are pointing out the great advance that has been made in musical comedy by the omission of the singing. At first sight, this seems almost equivalent to saying that Macbeth would be improved by the omission of Macbeth.

Some of the Eastern critics are pointing out the great advance that has been made in musical comedy by the omission of the singing. At first sight, this seems almost equivalent to saying that Macbeth would be improved by the omission of Macbeth.

NOTE AND COMMENT. The Star's Twinkler. If I were a diamond bright, Full of fire and of sparkle, Alive in the garish light, And dead wherever it darkies, Then should I wish to dwell In a place would never be shady, And that, as you all can tell, Is the hand of the leading lady, When, wildly singing her grief, The prince she tightly embraces, Her ring is in the garish light, And glitters from all its facets; And when with a gesture grand The rouge she will daily baffle, To ring on her outstretched hand Looks like the prize in a raffle, Or does she, in drizzling a toast, Uplift with a cheer the bumper, The thing that impresses you most Is: "The diamond's surely a thumper." In short there is nothing can stay The stone from obtaining attention, So next time if you go to the play Just see if this rhyme's an invention.

Words and the Song. Some of the Eastern critics are pointing out the great advance that has been made in musical comedy by the omission of the singing.

Some of the Eastern critics are pointing out the great advance that has been made in musical comedy by the omission of the singing. At first sight, this seems almost equivalent to saying that Macbeth would be improved by the omission of Macbeth.

Some of the Eastern critics are pointing out the great advance that has been made in musical comedy by the omission of the singing. At first sight, this seems almost equivalent to saying that Macbeth would be improved by the omission of Macbeth.

Some of the Eastern critics are pointing out the great advance that has been made in musical comedy by the omission of the singing. At first sight, this seems almost equivalent to saying that Macbeth would be improved by the omission of Macbeth.

Some of the Eastern critics are pointing out the great advance that has been made in musical comedy by the omission of the singing. At first sight, this seems almost equivalent to saying that Macbeth would be improved by the omission of Macbeth.

Some of the Eastern critics are pointing out the great advance that has been made in musical comedy by the omission of the singing. At first sight, this seems almost equivalent to saying that Macbeth would be improved by the omission of Macbeth.

Some of the Eastern critics are pointing out the great advance that has been made in musical comedy by the omission of the singing. At first sight, this seems almost equivalent to saying that Macbeth would be improved by the omission of Macbeth.

WEX J. "I want a hero for a new story," said the author. "Let me see," said a friend. "Suppose you take a man who has read all your books?"—Atlantic Constitution.

"I want a hero for a new story," said the author. "Let me see," said a friend. "Suppose you take a man who has read all your books?"—Atlantic Constitution.

"I want a hero for a new story," said the author. "Let me see," said a friend. "Suppose you take a man who has read all your books?"—Atlantic Constitution.

"I want a hero for a new story," said the author. "Let me see," said a friend. "Suppose you take a man who has read all your books?"—Atlantic Constitution.

"I want a hero for a new story," said the author. "Let me see," said a friend. "Suppose you take a man who has read all your books?"—Atlantic Constitution.

"I want a hero for a new story," said the author. "Let me see," said a friend. "Suppose you take a man who has read all your books?"—Atlantic Constitution.

"I want a hero for a new story," said the author. "Let me see," said a friend. "Suppose you take a man who has read all your books?"—Atlantic Constitution.

"I want a hero for a new story," said the author. "Let me see," said a friend. "Suppose you take a man who has read all your books?"—Atlantic Constitution.