BARBER LAW IS VOID

Judge George Says Board Had Too Much Power.

IT CANNOT BE DELEGATED

Briggs, of the Barber School, Wins His Suit-Law Should Specify Qualifications, Not Leave It to an Examining Board.

The members of the State Board of Barber Examiners might as well be so many ambassadors to islands in the Dead Sea for all the power the office gives them. Judge George ruled yesterday that the board is unconstitutionally on earth. This the court holds, is because the act of the Legislature creating the body allows them to fix the standard to which all applicants for tonsorial honors must attain. By doing this, Judge George be lieves the Legislature delegated the exam-iners with legislative authority, which, h avers, is a very unconstitutional thing to

All this tends to throw the three me bers of the board out of an official job.
They are: J. C. Weis, Frank T. Rogers and H. G. Myer, the latter of Salem. Messrs. Wets and Rogers say they barely agree with the court, and will most prob-ably carry the case to the Supreme Court, in order to get that body's interpretation of the law

They say that the ruling of Judge George, if it stands, will be a blow to the barbers of the city.

"It will allow unsophisticated country youths to attend some pretentious barber school for a few days, and then go forth into the world with the false idea that they are qualified as barbers." said Mr. Rogers. "They will be unable to get work in any decent shop, and will then proceed to start some little dump of their own, cutting the regular scale of prices in order to attract trade. There are many things required of a barber, and it is contrary to the ideas of public safety to turn a lot of anskilled apprentices loose upon the pub-

The ideas of Mr. Weis in this connection are much the same. "We will appeal if we have any appeal coming." he said. In passing upon the case, Judge George out that the enactment in question does not provide what shall be the requisite capacity of a person to follow the vocation of barbering, but leaves it entirely to the board. Nor has the act. the court further holds, the requirements prescribed in the laws of other states, as, for instance, in Washington and Minnesota, where they are sustained. There the law provides for the age of the person. moral character, freedom from infectious diseases, study and practice at the trade, or possession of skill in the use of tools and the preparation of same for use, steron of tools, the knowledge of com mon diseases transmittable by contagion or infection, as to how to avoid spreading diseases and other qualifications. Some malifications looking to the protection of blic health at least, it is stated, should ut a license from the State Board

Judge George decides that the barbers act confers arbitrary powers upon the board, and is not only amenable to this charge, but also that the Legislature has either not declared the requirements for qualifications of barbers, but has at-tempted to delegate to a board the exerof a legislative prerogative to fix the prerogative is vested solely ature. Discussing the question, the court says:

The vice of the act, it would seem is that it prescribes no general requirements or regu-lations governing a set of barber officials. but undertakes to confer upon them purel arbitrary power to interfers with the rights of a citizen to pursue a lawful occupation.

Power Can't Be Delegated. Under the police power of the state there an be no question as to the authority of the Legislature to prescribe qualifications for the wing of any profession, trade or occupa plicants actually possess these qualification but the Legislature cannot delegate power t a bourd, or to anybody else, to enact the law itself prescribing the qualifications. That must be done by the Legislature alone.

Referring to the medical and other similar statutes, Judge George says:

Medicine, surgery and dentistry, being re-garded as learned professions, are governed by general laws which have been upheld by the courts. In the medical law the board was to be appointed by the Governor from among the most competent physicians of at least five pages competed physicians of at least new years' practical experience. Examinations were to be in anatomy, physiology, surgery, obstetrics, therapeutics, practice of medicine, chemistry, materia medica, diseases of women, medical jurisprudence. Knowledge and skill the state law fixed as the standard for the practice of medicine and surgery, and the readiest board was the tribunal to accertain sedical board was the tribunal to ascertain of the standard fixed by the state for practice and the courts have sustained the standard and as a reasonable one for that profession

Too Much Power Given Board. Referring again to the barber act, th

Referring again to the barber act, the court says further:

The barbers law, however, is scant of any requisite prescribed by the Legislature. It not only falls to prescribe any test, but attempts to delegate this whole matter to a board of three barbers, instead of fixing at least something itself. Nowhere in the act does it prescribe any qualifications for proper capacity for a barber, but instead, in section 2, it says. "The board shall prescribe the qualifications of a barber in this state." This power, to my mind, must be exercised by the state and appear in the act, and cannot be delegated. The ear in the act, and cannot be delegated. To pear in the act, and cannot be deregated. The Legislature ought, liself, to fix some reason-able qualifications, and a board he merely a tribunal to peas upon the fact as to whether the applicant possesses what the Legislature holds is essential to the practice of barbering. The act says the board shall proceed to ex-amine the applicant, but what in, or to what extent, is not premuribed, and, being satisfied (in its own mind) as to his qualification, shall

(in its own mine) as to us quantitation, such issue a certificate allowing him to work. Unless a barber has a certificate, he cannot follow his existing accupation, and will be subject to fine and imprisonment if he does. This is a very arbitrary power to confer on three men of that or any other trade or profess the opportunity for arbitrary power to say that any other barber can or cannot work at his trade, unless these three men are satisfied that cation of knowledge of barbering, or even experience in barbering. It prescribes absolutely no qualification as deemed by the Legislature to be essential and sufficient, but, on the contrary, leaves, delegates, as it were, all to the pleasure of a selected few barbers to shut out the many harbors (if it is oblesse the feet from laboring at a lawful, useful and largely mechanical occupation.

A law which in theeff undertakes to it, set in any heard or body of officials a discretion which is so purely arbitrary, and which may, on the face of the law, be exercised in the interests of those the board may see fit in their ure to favor, strongly seems to my

Frank Lapoleon, a diswasher, was tried and convicted in Judge Sear's Court yesterday of stealing $150 from George H. Hawley on December 19, 1901. The three want out to see the elephant and Hawley and Clark drank considerable. They took Lapoleon to their room and, when the awoke in the morning, Lapoleon and Hawley's money, $150, had disappeared. The prisoner denied the charge, but failed to convince the jury that he told Trying Claim to $15,000 for an Arm. The trial of the suit of William Tink-man against Inman, Poulsen & Co. for $15,000 damages for the loss of his righ arm was begun before Judge Frazer yes-terday. Thikman is a minor, is years old, and is represented by his mother, Lena Knoll, as guardian. The boy was working at a planer several months ago, and his orm was caught in the machine, and injured so hadly that amputation was necessary. In the complaint it is charged that Inman, Poulsen & Co. were wilfully negligent in putting Tinkman to work at the planer, when he was wholly inexperienced and not informed of his danger. The day was almost consumed by counsel in se-lecting a jury and the members of the body were taken over to the mill late in the afternoon to view the machinery. Judge O'Day and Charles J.
